Roll Call.

The sixth annual enrollment of members in the American National Red Cross will take place November 11-30, 1922.

Although the American Red Cross is a national organization, it receives its financial support and conducts the major portion of its work through its Chapters, Branches and Auxiliaries.
The success of the annual enrollment depends upon the success of the Roll Call in each individual Chapter.

Let Worcester County be among the first to respond to this call.

In speaking of the annual Red Cross Roll Call recently in Pittsburg, Judge Payne said that "Membership in the Red Cross is both a privilege and a patriotic duty of American citizenship. Congress created it as the national and international agency of the United States to meet all great emergencies. The demands upon it locally, nationally and internationally are persistent and insistent by suffering peoples at home
and abroad.

The Red Cross Roll Call is our annual call to arms. Every member is expected to stand at attention and respond "ready" and to renew allegiance to the army of service.
Only in this way can the work of the Red Cross be done.

There may be a few communities where the officers of Chapters do not recognize their obligation and their duty, but fail or neglect to have this Roll Call. The members of the Red Cross having the spirit of service
this is inconceivable, and is like a pilot who neglects to check his engine should stand idle when there is so much to do, while other devoted Red Cross men, women and children elsewhere are hard at work, is beyond belief. Such conduct is most inconsiderate and denies to others opportunity for service. Never should hold an office in a Red Cross Chapter and fail to obey this important call of duty.

The Red Cross is an army. Its members constitute this noble army fighting the battle of humanity. It is the army whose badge is service to all mankind; to humanity everywhere of whatever religion, race, color, or creed. If a Chairman, or other Chapter officer, is unwilling to have the Roll Call and afford the public an opportunity of enrolling in this army, resignation should at once be tendered and some other persons in sympathy with the spirit of the Red Cross should step into the leadership, to the end that the Chapter may take its place and march forward with the army, already at work.

The emergency is here. It is now facing the Red Cross at home and abroad. Our own ex-service men and disasters at home are constantly with us. And now, the American Red Cross has responded to the appeal of the President of the United States and has definitely undertaken
the work of saving the Christian and other refugees who have been driven by the Turk from Asia Minor into Greece.

There is no room for slackers.
Persons who cannot hear this call should aid in finding others who are willing to work and whose hearts respond to the cry of suffering humanity.

The local Chairmen in the County who have volunteered to give a part of their time and energy to the just cause are:
Mrs. Harris Corddry, Snow Hill,
Miss Anne Lloyd, Pocomoke City,
Mr. Theodore Funnell, Berlin,
Mrs. Maude DeWaal Parker,
Stockton,
Mrs. William Townsend, Girdletree.

Snow Hill, Md.

It is doubted if the people of Worcester County fully realize the importance of the presence in our midst of the County Nurse, Miss J. Alice Wilson, and the benefits to be obtained thereby. Miss Wilson has declared that she does not believe that the people realize her position here, and her willingness to respond to all calls that may come to her. A representative of the American Red Cross, Miss Wilson's duties consist in part in rendering assistance wherever a nurse may be needed. Nor should there be any hesitancy on the part of any one because of inability to pay. Miss Wilson has informed us that the standard charge for a nursing visit is fifty cents but the person visited may pay whatever they feel able and if unable to pay anything, then the visit will be made just the same without charge. It must be understood that whatever money is paid for the nursing visits go to the American Red Cross and in view of the wonderful work that this great body did during the late war and is doing now to alleviate the sufferings of mankind there should be liberal contributions where the financial condition of the person visited permits.

Obtained from the Red Cross and brought here after much difficulty through the influence of the many prominent persons interested in Red Cross work, the County Nurse is established in her office in the Masonic Temple, over the Post Office.
The office was donated rent free and the furniture was obtained from various sources through the kindness of other public-spirited citizens.

This appeal must not be misinterpreted to mean that Miss Wilson is not being kept busy, for the fact is that she has already made much advance in the promotion of the County Health Welfare. There have been established two classes:
which are receiving regular instructions in home hygiene and the care of the sick, and one other is in process of organization. In the schools of the County, Miss Wilson has instituted a series of physical examinations in which she examines the eyes, nose, ears, throat and scalp.
She also weighs and measures the pupils in the effort to determine their physical fitness as compared with the normal standard, and if defects are found, she gives such instruction as may be necessary to correct that defect, if possible.

Red Cross Aided 145,000 Victims in United States—Losses
Total $30,000,000.

Seventy-two disasters, with hundreds reported killed and injured, and more than 145,000 either homeless or requiring assistance, called for emergency relief measures, and the dispenditure of $1,441,486.80 by the American Red Cross during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1922, according to a statement based on the forthcoming annual report of the Red Cross. The greatest toll of life was taken by hurricane and tornado, the breaking of dams and torrential rains drove the greatest number of people from their homes. The property loss was estimated at more than $30,- 000,000.

The year's disasters reported included twenty-six floods, nineteen tornadoes, fifteen fires, four epidemics,
two theatre collapses, two shipwrecks (one an alrship), and a bridge collapse, mine explosion, railway collision, and a drought. Of the floods in the United States that at San Antonio, Texas, caused the greatest property loss, $6,000,000 and the high mark of fatalities, 100, while the flood in the vicinity of Vicksburg and Natchez, Miss., forced 33,000 persons from their homes.

A National Calamity
In the Red Cross disaster relief records there will probably remain for many years one calamity which touched nearly every state with a sense of horror and of loss. This was the distressing collapse of the roof of the Knickerbocker Theatre in Washington, D. C., resulting in thirty-six deaths and 125 persons injured.

Situated in the center of the theatre
the Northwest residential section this motion picture theatre was patronized
by many persons of prominence both in the official and civil life of the National Capital, whose family and personal connections radiated out over the entire country. The horror was intensified by a terrific snowstorm which, though it retarded, did not block Red Cross relief.

Airship Crash Finds Aid at Hand
The crash and destruction of the U.
S. Army's large alrship Roma in Virginia last February with the loss of 34 officers and men and 11 injured was the first disaster of its kind to call for Red Cross relief in this country. The suddenness of the accident, tested the preparedness of the organization and of the Chapter at Hampton, Va., but the response was immediate and relief furnished the survivors, also funds for the expenses of relatives of the dead,
who came from long distances to claim their own.

In the year's overseas record for aid rendered by the Red Cross two fires
in the Philippines, one at Manila, which destroyed 1,000 homes, with a
made homeless, the other at Iloilo,
which drove 3,000 from their dwellings.
In medical relief that was quick and effective the summer epidemic in San Domingo, which had a total of 22,000 cases with 225 deaths in a single day, tested the readiness of the Red Cross
for action, and the same can be said of the San Domingo hurricane, which killed 12 persons and reduced the homes of 182 persons to wreckage. A flood in San Salvador, with a death toll of 50 and 2,000 refugees, was also effectively handled by the local Chapter of the American Red Cross.

Relief Machinery Perfected
The year has seen the further perfection of disaster relief administrative measures in every field of American Red Cross activity, and that the work may be carried on to still greater accomplishments the American Red Cross is appealing for widespread renewal of membership during the annual Roll Call, to be conducted this year from Armistice Day (November 11) to, and including, Thanksgiving Day (November 30).

Red Cross Roll Call Heard World Around

The Annual Roll Call of the American Red Cross for registration of the membership for 1923 will begin on Armistice Day, November 11, and close on Thanksgiving Day, November 30. The ground work for this stupendous task of re-enrolling the membership throughout the world has been laid in a plan for the first complete and comprehensive system of registration of the Red Cross membership in all its 3,300 active Chapters at home
and abroad.

An important feature of the round-
the-world Roll Call campaign will be a universal effort to re-enroll the service of war-time Red Cross workers in the peace program by their participation in the Roll Call. In this way
the vast army of volunteers will once more affiliate with the work of the Red Cross in its manifold phases. Cooperation also has been assured by Government and private maritime interests in a deep-sea Roll Call that is designed to reach a very member or potential member in every part of the world who may be en voyage or temporarily in any port.

Thousands of Chapters will adopt the home canvass plan of enrollment which originated in Pittsburgh, where last year it resulted in a membership increase of 50 per cent. All records in this year's campaign will be kept on standard size cards to be filed by each Chapter for future use.

Driest State
According to records of the weather bureau, the lowest relative humidity
is found in some parts of Arizona,
although it is possible that certain sections of the deserts in southern California, where there are no recording stations, may show lower relative humidities than Arizona.

RED CROSS HEALS WOUNDS OF WAR

25,000 Disabled Ex-Service Men
in Hospitals After Four Years of Peace.

CHAPTERS' FIELD OF SERVICE

Every Veteran Needing Help Gets Individual Attention of Sympathetic Workers.

When on November 11 the world
halts to observe the fourth anniversary of Armistice Day, and the American Red Cross inaugurates its Annual Roll Call for the enrollment of the 1923 membership, its people of the United States may well pause to think of the unparalleled contribution to the cause of peace made by our Army and Navy in the World War. The glory of it is a common tradition; but the wounds of war remain. They are not healed in a day, in a year, nor in four years. And on Armistice Day there will be under treatment in Government hospitals over 25,000 ex-service men,
broken physically by wounds, ex-posure, nervous strain and exhaustion incident to their service in the war.

The Government without stint is undertaking to furnish these disabled men with the compensation and medical care to which they are entitled;
yet their especial care is a duty of the Red Cross. Why? Because the Government cannot handle the costs of ex-service men individually; it must handle these men in bulk under a standardized policy. The Government has neither the authority, the funds or the equipment for working out the problem of the individual man. There is where the American Red Cross finds its greatest field for service, aiding through its very active Chapters in reaching the disabled man with immediate practical help, assisting his family while his claim is emerging from the process of adjustment, furnishing articles of comfort, funds to tide over the difficult periods, the friendly touch of personal encouragement, helpful
recreation and worry-dispelling amusement. It is the warm hand of sympathy and understanding which the American Red Cross extends to the majority of these disabled ex-service men, some of them friendless in the whirl of life, thousands of them with wives and children dependent upon them, and hundreds of them frequently helpless in the face of grim necessity.

2,679 Chapters Aiding Veterans
In this work, upon whose accomplishment the American Red Cross is arguing a record-breaking enrollment in the Roll Call which opens on Armistice Day and closes with Thanksgiving Day, 2,679 Chapters in all parts of the country are engaged. This is more than one Chapter for every 100 disabled ex-service men, and the Chapters working together in harmonious unity
for the current fiscal year. Nations

Driftwood on the Stream of Life

By SYLVIA D. BELL

Though it was a hot Sunday morning in June, the bedroom curtains were drawn. Evidently the girls intended sleeping late to make up for what they had lost during the week. A thin stream of sunlight fell between the curtains and the window; the other a vivid autumn type, the other a decided brunette.

The humble room, contrasted with the silken garments and bobbed heads, spoke of lightness of character. The furniture was cheap and plain, the walls were bare of pictures and the two or three books on the table were of the dime novel variety. Evidently, every penny the girls earned was spent for clothes and amusements.

Someone in the next room was playing a phonograph, and strains of "Jesus, Lover of My Soul" filtered through the thin partition. Susie, of the Auburn hair, stirred restlessly, then, hastily grabbing a book from the table next to the bed, threw it at a door which at one time connected the two rooms.

"could not seem to compose herself. Finally, her restlessness getting the better of her, she roused her companion.

"Did you ever hear of such an ignorantus?" she complained, "trying to pull that Billy Sunday stuff on two jazz hounds like us."

"I'll say he doesn't know what sort of a cabaret he's roomin' at," yawned Susie. "But have you seen him, Susie?"

"Oh, it's a 'him,' is it? Bald head and wooden leg, I suppose, or else one of those 'la-de-da' chaps."

"You're on the wrong track, my dear," laughed Felice. "He's as spiffy a looking lad as you'd want to see."

"Well, spiffy or not, he'd better not step foot in my back yard," warned Susie. "There's no room for any angel face around me."

After a long pause, during which she completed her toilet and had started breakfast, she turned to regard Felice, who was rubbing her cheeks and penciling her eyebrows.

"Say, Felice, don't you ever get tired of this?" She flung her arms apart in a gesture which took in the emptiness of the room.

"Depends on what you mean by this," retorted Felice.

"Why, livin' in one room, gettin' meals on a one lung gas stove and bein' cooped up away from the birds an' butterflies an' flowers."

"Birds an' butterflies don't mean anything in my young life," Felice answered. "It's poached eggs that holds my interest just now. I'm hungry enough to eat a leather topkick."

"But, Felice, you don't understand. You've never lived in the country. You don't know what a glorious feelin' it is to sit on the cool green grass at night an' watch the fireflies an' listen to the hum of hundreds of small insects. You feel so peaceful an' calm an' the little breeze that come feel like the touch of angel wings."

"Guess that hymn rather got on your nerves, didn't it, dearie?" Felice purred in her rather elaborate toilet. "Your prayer meetin' leave me sent by the door just as you were recitin' an' calm an' the little breeze that come feel like the touch of angel wings."

"Guess that hymn rather got on your nerves, didn't it, dearie?" Felice purred in her rather elaborate toilet. "Your prayer meetin' leave me sent by the door just as you were recitin' an' calm an' the little breeze that come feel like the touch of angel wings."

BERLIN ADVANCE

More than that summer, Susie found flowers outside her door; and there were chance meetings, too, by which she learned that the giver's name was Charlie Ellison and that he had lived with his aunt in the country until he came to the city to work.

"And he always goes to church on Sundays," marvelled Susie in a confidential chat with Felice. "I told him if he played hymns 'cause he was lonesome that we wouldn't mind hearin' 'em once in a while, only for goodness sake to wait until after 9 o'clock Sunday mornin'."

"Now, look here," Felice began when Susie returned. "I want to know about this Charlie business. If you're goin' to hitch up with him I want to know it. I don't want to be left in the lurch like a discarded shoe."

"Felice, dear, did you ever hear of driftwood?" Susie questioned. "That's what the minister preached about this mornin'." "I wouldn't put it at what he was aimin' at so I whispered to Charlie an' asked him, an' Felice, that's what you an' I are—driftwood—driftwood as the stream of life. An' by an' by, we keep on goin', we'll get caught on the reefs an' go to smash, an' no one'll know or care what becomes of us."

"So I made up my mind I wouldn't be driftwood any longer. I am goin' to be good, strong wood with a sound heart, so when the right time comes I can make a bright, cheery fire on Charlie's hearth. An' I want you to stop driftin' toward the reefs, too, Felice. There's some one waitin' for you to provide light an' warmth for him, an' you can't do it if you're not sound an' true."

Felice turned toward Susie and smiled. "These hymns an' sermons certainly do have a queer effect on you, but you sure have got a way of reachin' a person's soul if they've got any. So I'll try to stop driftin', Susie, an' send out a few green leaves an' blossoms instead, for I know that driftwood is dead—an' that's the heart."

Ancient Stone Writings. The site of one of the earliest Christian monasteries in Ireland has been found at Mahe Island, Strangford Lough, near Belfast. The ruins have been identified as those of Nendrum monastery, mentioned in Mahe's "Life of St. Patrick" writing before 600 A. D.

Extensive excavations have been carried out and valuable material, including some stones with writing, the exact meaning of which has not yet been ascertained, have been unearthed. Some of the writings are believed to be of Danish origin.

In Gele's "Ecclesiastical History" it is recorded that in 634 Pope Honorius wrote to certain bishops of the Irish church about the Paschal controversy and Pelagius' heresy, and one of the bishops mentioned in this letter was of Nendrum, and the letter dated Mahe, after a bishop of the monastery.

Couldn't Repeat It. Over in Virginia on the golf course of the Washington Country Club is a particularly interesting hole. It is one of those complex, nerve-racking, plunging stretches of ground that are replete with trouble-making conditions. Some time ago the writer, while playing with Charlie Michaelson of the New York World, asked him colored caddy if he had ever served in like capacity for a certain very distinguished official. The youngster replied that he had, and when the scribe asked him what Mr. So and So had said when he came to that particular hole he replied: "Deed, boss, I'm sorry, sah, but mah nutter don't let me use that kin' of language."—Washington Star.

POULTRY

FOWLS NEED OYSTER SHELLS

Failure to Provide Laying Hens With Proper Materials Is Sure to Cause Disaster.

"Laying hens require oyster shells and limestone grit at all times as well as mash containing animal feed," said Prof. J. G. Halpin in an address to the poultry school at the Ohio experiment station.

This statement was based on an array of valuable data gleaned from years of experimental work at the Wisconsin experiment station. The data showed conclusively that failure to provide shells and grit for the laying hens is disastrous to profitable egg production, though, contrary to popular belief, this failure does not appear to cause soft-shelled eggs.

In order to get pullets in the habit of eating oyster shells and grit at an early age, it is the practice of the experiment station to keep these essentials before the birds during the brooder stage. When the pullets are out on range a quantity of the shells and grit are put on the ground near the colony.

BETTER PROGENY BY CULLING

Wise Plan to Discard All Fowls in Flock Except Most Vigorous and Prolific Layers.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) That culling the poultry flock to get rid of all those birds except the vigorous, prolific layers results in noticeable improvement in the progeny is shown by recent investigations at the United States experiment farm, Beltsville, Md. The late moulters selected from a flock of 100 Rhode Island Reds in the fall of 1920 laid seven more eggs per bird during their second year than the original flock of pullets. They were used as breeders the following spring, and the first Red pullets to commence laying in the fall of 1921 were found to be the offspring of these late-moulters. Their pullets in a period of seven months have already averaged about two dozen eggs per bird more than the original flock.

But it is not alone in number of eggs that the late-moulters' progeny excels, but also the value of the product, as the distribution was more even, a much larger proportion of the eggs being laid during the winter months. In the last seven months the daughters of the late moulters not only averaged two dozen eggs per bird more than the original flock, but the value of their product was, figuring at the same prices, about $1.04 per bird more during the same period. It is expected that this margin will increase during the next five months.

CHEAP POWDER FOR POULTRY

Mixture of Gypsum, Carbolic Acid and Plaster of Paris Will Eradicate Insects.

A cheap lice powder for poultry may be made by mixing three parts of gypsum, one part of crude carbolic acid with as much plaster of paris as the liquid will moisten. This is the suggestion of the Ohio station. The powder is allowed to dry before using. It may be kept in an air-tight container where it retains its strength for a long period. The powder is inflammable and must be kept away from fire.

Infested fowls, when thoroughly dusted are soon relieved from the attacks of lice. About 125 birds may be dusted in an hour, one pound of the mixture being needed to dust ten mature fowls. For head lice on chickens, the use of the ointment or mercurial ointment has been found effective. One part of the ointment is mixed with two parts of vasoline and a lump of the mixture about the size of a pea is rubbed thoroughly at the base of the feathers about the head.

PROVIDE WATER FOR CHICKS

Good Plan to Hang Barrel Under a Tree to Supply Water to Pans.

A good method to furnish water to chicks is a barrel under a shade tree that continually drips into a clean pan. It will not be necessary to refill this very often and it furnishes a constant supply of fresh water as it is needed by the chicks.

HOW THE GULLIES CAN BE RECLAIMED

Plowing-in and Seeding to Grass or Timber Recommended.

Farmers Should Build Self-Erasing Dams That Check Erosion and Cause the Filling of Space With Soil.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) Gullies are a source of great loss to the farmer. They run fertile land, interfere with farm operations, undermine buildings, encroach on public roads, endanger the life of stock and man, the beauty and lower the market value of the farm. They can be prevented by increasing the absorptive capacity of the soil by tilling, protecting the surface from erosion by proper cultivation, and by conducting the surplus water from the field at a low velocity. Gullies can be reclaimed by plowing-in and seeding to grass or timber, or by building self-erasing dams that check erosion and cause the filling of the gully with soil.

In checking gullying, the first thing is to stop it at the head. If possible, the water should be turned into a natural water-course before it reaches the head of the gully. In shallow gullies, a dam built close to the head will give a fill of soil in a short time. In deeper gullies, a longer time is necessary according to the condition and amount of washing. Brush and straw, firmly fastened down, make a good dam for stopping erosion.

In regions where timber and brush are plentiful good results in filling gullies have been obtained by the use of brush dams. In hill-side gullies where the flow of water is small the dams are commonly built of loose brush sometimes weighted down with logs. Where the flow is enough to overtop the dam, the brush can be held down by cross-pieces and stakes. Simply dumping the brush into a gully will not give good results.

Before beginning to reclaim a gully with soil-saving dams, a careful work of reclamation should be planned. If only a part of the work is planned it may not fit into the complete reclamation work which may be undertaken later. After the head dam is in place and erosion checked, a number of low, temporary dams can be used in wide, shallow depression that will gradually fill. If the gully ends in the side of a deep drainage channel, the lower end must be built up with a high dam. The higher the dams the fewer will be required, but several low dams are less costly than

POTATOES IN TOBACCO BARN

Farmers Who Grow Both Crops Can Save in Their Storage Building Equipment.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In sweet potato areas in tobacco territory, farmers who grow both crops can save in building equipment by using their fire-heated tobacco barns for the storage of potatoes. The changes needed and the methods of management that have been found good when the buildings are used for the two purposes are described by the United States Department of Agriculture in Farmers' Bulletin 1267, Utilization of Fire-Heated Tobacco Barns for Sweet Potato Storage.

Many farmers who do not raise a large acreage of sweet potatoes feel that the expense of a special storage structure is not justified, although through the use of pits, banks, or cellars they have been losing a large part of the stored crop. But if some building which serves another important purpose can be remodeled so as to meet both needs a greater part of the sweet potatoes produced can be saved at a small outlay of money. On farms which have fire-heated tobacco barns or similar buildings that serve their main purpose before the potato harvest, this saving is practical.

The bulletin contains detailed plans for converting tobacco barns, bill of materials for structures of a certain size, methods of storage-house management, and descriptions of a number of varieties of sweet potatoes. Copies may be obtained free by addressing the department at Washington, D. C.

Umbrellas Considered Effeminate. When umbrellas were first introduced into America, in the latter part of the 18th century, they were considered effeminate and were used only by women, as it was regarded as very effeminate to carry one.

MAPLE SWEETS

The delicious maple sirup and sugar is a delightful flavor for any dish and is almost universally liked.

Maple Sugar Roll.—Sift two cups of flour, four teaspoonsful of baking powder, one a teaspoonful of salt, cut in two tablespoonsful of fat and add three-fourths of a cup of milk, or enough to make of the consistency of baking powder biscuit. Roll out, spread with melted butter and cover with one-third of a cupful of grated maple sugar. Press with the rolling pin, roll up and cut in one-inch pieces. Lay in a greased pan, dot with butter and bake in a hot oven. Serve hot with butter.

Foamy Pudding.—Take one cupful of maple sugar, one and one-half cups of milk, and cook in a double boiler. Mix one-fourth cupful of flour with one-half cupful of cold milk and two beaten egg yolks, and stir into the hot liquid slowly. Return to the boiler to cook, stirring constantly. When cold fold in the two egg whites beaten stiff and serve in sherbet glasses.

Maple Sirup Cake.—Take one-half cupful of butter, three-fourths cupful of sugar, two eggs, three-fourths of a cupful of maple sirup, one-half cupful of ginger, one-half cupful of milk, two and one-half cups of pastry flour, two and one-half teaspoonsful of baking powder, two-thirds of a cupful of soda. Cream the butter, add the sugar slowly, then the eggs beaten without separating, then the sirup and the flour sifted with the dry ingredients. Bake in a tube loaf pan for fifty minutes.

Maple Tapioca.—Cook two table-spoonsful of tapioca in six cups of milk in the upper part of the double boiler until clear. Add one-fourth of a cupful of grated maple sirup, one-half teaspoonful of salt, stir in two beaten egg yolks and cook one minute, then remove, add a teaspoonful of vanilla and when partly cool fold in very stiffly beaten egg whites, beaten very stiff, and serve in sherbet cups. Top each with a cherry.

Concentration Highly Valuable. Few things are more valuable to a man than to be able to persistently apply himself to his task until it has been accomplished.

The Uncertain Future. It isn't the promised land, but the promised land that is important to the young man who is about to interview the girl's father.

Snake Staked Called Luxuries. In southern Utah a few greatest luxury that can be placed before a guest is a pot of snake-bone constrictor.

Life as I See It. Don't fuss with your neighbors about a few shortcomings. I know a very distinguished man who says "let" for "late."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Red Cross Activities.

The annual Red Cross Roll Call opens on Armistice Day, Nov. 11th, and there is need for everyone to join. Drawing no line of color, race or creed, and with the world its field, it carries succor to the helpless wherever they may be.

The Worcester County Chapter of the American Red Cross has been actively and energetically working all through the year. It has helped the ex-service men and their families. Money has been loaned to help during a time of dire necessity and to the credit of our soldiers, it has always been repaid as soon as they were able to do so.

The public health nursing was started in September, and our nurse, Miss Wilson, has been kept busy. Health lectures have been given in tuberculosis work, which were free to all.

Special class instruction has been given in first aid in the schools.

Many boxes of refugee garments have been sent, and the loan shelf for the community's need has been emptied and refilled many times during the winter and in case of fire and all clothing turned the Red Cross sent bundles of garments to help clothe the unfortunate ones.

Help keep our Red Cross strong for its continuing duties by answering the annual roll call, Nov. 11-30, 1922.

Nicholson--Trader.

Miss Eva L. Trader, of Berlin, and Mr. E. S. Nicholson, of Wardtown, Va., were quietly married Wednesday evening at 6.30 at the Manse, by Rev. J. Russell Verbycke.

The bride was becomingly attired in dark brown Canton crepe, with hat and gloves to match. The groom wore the conventional black.

Miss Trader was a highly-respected woman of Berlin and will be missed by many of her friends. Mr. Nicholson is well known in Virginia and liked by all. He is a grower of southern farm products, and is also engaged in the lumber and mill business.

Mr. and Mrs. Nicholson will be at home at Wardtown, Va., Nov. 14th.

We wish the happy couple much joy and success in life.

About 75 miners lost their lives last Monday, in the Reilly mine explosion at Spangler, Pa., and about 35 others were injured.

That "Old Flame" of Yours

By ELLA SAUNDERS

(© 1922, Western Newspaper Union.)

Dora had gone into town. She had left the living-room untidy, the kitchen was littered with dirty dishes, and Lawrence had not known anything of her intentions until he came home from the office and found the little note on the table, written in Dora's scrawling hand.

Lawrence cut himself some bread and butter and boiled two eggs, eating off the kitchen table. Dora was not coming back till the last car arrived. He went back into the living-room and sat down by the fire, his unread newspaper across his knees.

He had been married a year now, and he was looking back on that year with concentrated bitterness, and on the period of his engagement.

Dora was a little, joyous thing, forever ready with a laugh, carefree, irresponsible. They had taken to each other from the beginning, and they had had some lovely times together. But there had never been anything serious in their companionship, and when Lawrence asked Dora to marry him it was still all fun and romance. They were going to be happy together in a cottage all their lives.

How quickly romance's fairy light vanishes under the stern searchlight of matrimony!

There had been trouble from the first. Dora was hopeless as a housekeeper. She was always running into debt, she always wanted clothes and couldn't be made to understand that one had to cut one's cloth according to one's income.

But worst of all was the impossibility of any spiritual coming together. Dora's mind was as far as possible from Lawrence's. They never really shared anything together. They drifted further and further apart, and when Dora cried, Lawrence would pet her and try to appease her unhappiness, all with a dull sense of ache at his own heart.

Of late he had ceased trying, and Dora cried very much less. It could not go on much longer.

Then there had been Mary Bates, Lawrence and she had been all but engaged the year before he met Dora. Mary Bates was dark, tragic-looking, well-read, she understood everything.

They had really been soulmates, and no fortune or fleeting thought that passed through the mind of either but they could analyze and dissect.

How close they had come together! Mary Bates was temperamental. They had fearful quarrels, and terrible reconciliations. The girl had shook him to the very depths of his being. Only—she had met somebody else.

How he had pleaded with her for that love she had once given him! How scornful she had been! How bitter it all was!

That was why Lawrence had taken to Dora. But now the memories of Mary Bates ran through him like burning fire.

He must seek her, tell her he loved her, even though she had married the man who had come between them. She was life of his life, soul of his soul—he would love her to the end of time.

The whirling street car stopped outside the house. With a sigh Lawrence got up and opened the front door. Dora came running up the path, carrying an armful of parcels, half undressed, disgorging all sorts of things. It was just like Dora.

She ran into his arms. "Had such a lovely time in town, honey," she panted. "And supper at the Chinese restaurant. Darling—she gripped his wrist—do you really think they put rats in chop suey?"

"Of course not," answered Lawrence, smiling. How like Dora!

She came into the room. "You poor boy, I have been had to leave things in such a mess for you!" she said.

She fell to tidying up the room, and suddenly stopped. "Oh, what do you think," she exclaimed, "You remember that old flame of yours, Mary Bates?"

He almost hated Dora at that moment. "Yes, I remember her," he answered.

"Well, what do you think? I stopped in at Mrs. Dexter's this afternoon, and she told me the most dreadful thing. Mary's left her husband—you know they haven't been married much more than a year—and run away with another man. A palster, and such a horrid little man, everybody says. She was simply infatuated with him, and he's got a wife and three children. And Mary's left her own baby. Isn't it terrible, dear? I knew that woman was false all the way through!"

Lawrence sat by the fire while Dora bustled about the room. It was quite true. Mary would have treated him in the same way. And Dora was a loyal little person, even if she was freesponsible and couldn't understand. And one could not have everything.

He called Dora to him and sat her down on his knee. "Dear, I'm going to try not to be such a trouble to you, and to make you happier," he said. Dora kissed him. "Why, I'm always happy, dear boy!" she answered.

Why Black for Mourning?

The custom of wearing black as a sign of mourning originated with Anne, the wife of Charles VIII, of France, who, at the death of her husband, surrounded her coat-of-arms with black, and wore black in token of her widowhood. This was then in direct opposition to the usual custom, which was to wear white as the symbol of mourning. The royal fashion was adopted, and has ever since remained.

WHY HE IS A SCOUT LEADER

Herbert Mooney, assistant deputy scout commissioner, District 5, Cleveland, O., says he is engaged in scout work because he believes it is the best recreation a man can find after working hours. "A man should get out and forget business after the day's work is done," says Mr. Mooney, "and how else can he spend his time to better advantage than by mingling with young boys, the men-of-tomorrow?"

Snails Spread Devastation.

On the coasts of Ceylon quite lately a plague of snails occurred. Millions and millions were to be found everywhere, and some of them were reported to weigh a pound each. They began by feeding on and destroying young coconut trees, and then went on to the rubber trees. The government took steps promptly and managed to stop their devastations.

Smoking in Church.

Smoking is common in South American churches. A visitor to Peru records that at a church in Lima he noticed one of the congregation enjoying a cigar during a service, while through an open door he caught a glimpse of a bishop, in full episcopal robes, indulging in the same luxury.

Where Mole Shows Superiority.

A man wishing to dig a well usually chances his luck in doing so, and may waste a lot of labor and money in vain digging. The mole, which must have water, also digs wells, but seems to know exactly where to start operations in order to reach water within a reasonable distance.

PREPARE FOR BAD WEATHER.

Warm weather, such as we have been having for several weeks, can not last much longer.

There may be a sudden change any day and it is a wise man who makes preparation for cold, wet days. You can depend on the arrival of bad weather just as surely as the appearance of your annual bill for taxes.

If you wish to keep the doctor away, keep your feet dry and warm.

You Can Buy Genuine Leather Shoes Here

No other material equals leather for making shoes. There are no shoes made from more honest materials and expert workmanship than "All-Leather" shoes. Nothing can surpass the satisfaction and economy that a purchaser of "All-Leather" shoes experiences.

The makers of these shoes know their product so well that they stand back of an agreement like this:

"$5.00 cash and a new pair of shoes will be given to the wearer who finds paper in the heel, counters, insoles or outsoles of any shoes made by the Friedman-Shelby Branch of the International Shoe Co., St. Louis, Mo., bearing the above trade mark."

STATE NEWS BRIEFLY TOLD

The Latest Gleanings From All Over the State

THINGS SEEN AND HEARD

Cumberland.—George Coffinbarger, Martinsburg, a Baltimore and Ohio laborer, was struck by Pennsylvania Railroad engine No. 983 at Cumbo, receiving injuries from which he died a few minutes later.

Rockville.—In a suit against Dr. Jesse S. Trumppour of Linden, this county, for $5,000 damages for the loss of a dog, Girard H. Childs, also of Linden, was given judgment for $50 by a jury in the Circuit Court here.

Cumberland.—More than $16,000 has been realized as a result of the Salvation Army Home Service Appeal for $18,347. It was announced at the final meeting of the officers and workers of the campaign teams at the Fort Cumberland Hotel. The workers have about 1000 calls yet to make.

Hagerstown.—Because he refused to fight a forest fire after having been summoned by Forest Warden A. C. McAllister, Hagerstown, Hager, prominent Big Pool farmer, was arrested. The testimony of Hager's physician, Dr. J. P. Perry, revealed that he suffered from eczema and bronchial trouble, which rendered him physically unfit to fight fires, and Justice Mason, of Hancock, freed him of the charge.

Bethesda.—Representative Frederick N. Zihlman of the Sixth district delivered an address here in connection with the laying of the cornerstone of the new temple of Bethesda Lodge No. 204, A. F. & A. M. Presentation of the Washington trowel was made by Charles E. Callahan, Deputy Grand Master of Virginia, at the conclusion of which Percy Clift, worshipful master of Alexandria, Washington Lodge, A. F. & A. M., of Alexandria, Va., spoke. Benediction was pronounced by the Rev. James Kirkpatrick, A. L. Pitt and C. H. Becker assisted John R. Coyle in the arrangements.

Cumberland.—The George Washington Circuit Court of Allegany county for an injunction to restrain Francis J. Drum, president District No. 6, United Mine Workers' of America, Midland and Frostburg locals of the United Mine Workers, and 74 individuals from interfering with the affairs of the company, or with employees of the company, or persons who wish to take employment. The papers were sent to Chief Judge A. Hunter Boyd, who is at Annapolis, for an order. A number of men signed with the George's Creek Coal Company to resume work several weeks ago, but it is said that less than half actually took employment, due to intimidation.

Princess Anne.—Jake Downes, for whom a bench warrant was issued at the September term of the Circuit Court for Somerset county, is believed to have adopted a Santa Claus method to make his escape from the jail at Princess Anne, by crawling through the stove hole, climbing up the chimney to the roof of the jail, and then descending by the water spout to the ground. Deputy Sheriff Dryden says he knows of no other way in which Downes could have escaped, as the doors and windows were closed and barred. Downes was in the jail during the afternoon, but when his supper was carried to him, at 6 o'clock, he was missing. He is a small man, weighing only about 110 pounds. Downes is from Salisbury and at the September term of court testified in behalf of the defendant in a bastardy case. At the conclusion of his testimony several witnesses testified that he had agreed to accept a sum of money from the defendant to testify as he did. Downes was arrested upon a bench warrant on a charge of perjury and has since been lodged in jail here.

Baltimore.—At the annual meeting of the Eastern Shore Society, held at the Hotel Rennett, officers for the ensuing year were elected. George L. Radcliffe of the Dorchester Chapter was chosen president, succeeding John H. K. Shaughnessy, and Walter R. Gale was re-elected secretary-treasurer of the association. Phillips Lee Goldsborough again was chosen honorary member of the board of governors. Reports as to the present membership of the society, read by Mr. Gale, showed a marked increase over former years. There now are 600 members. Vice-presidents of the association, nine in number, one representing each county, are as follows: J. Herman Ireland, Kent; William J. Jones, Somerset; George W. Dexter, Talbot; Benjamin W. Woolford, Dr. Arthur G. Barrett, Cecil; R. Soote Rose, Queen Anne's; Frank D. Mills, Worcester; George E. Sausbury, Caroline, and L. Wesley Cooper, Wicomico. An entertaining program was furnished by Lafayette Temple, he humorist. A buffet supper concluded the meeting.

STATE CAPITAL

New State Rule Reviewed By Governor.

Annapolis.—What reorganization of the State government will mean to Maryland is to be set forth in detail by Governor Ritchie at the annual session of the Governor's Conference, to be held at the Greenbrier Hotel, White Sulphur Springs, Va., December 14, 15 and 16.

To this end he has made additional studies of the Reorganization Act, which becomes effective January 1, and arranged a summary showing just what changes will be made in the State's administrative offices.

The summary, in part, is as follows: Department of Finance—This department will be headed by the Comptroller and the Treasurer. The State Auditor, the Bank Commissioner, the Insurance Commissioner, the State Tax Commission and the State Purchasing Agent are all assigned to this department, although these officials all continue to be appointed by the Governor.

The more important administrative changes are as follows:

State Auditor's Department—The duties of the State Auditor, which at present cover the accounts of all State departments, State-owned and State-aided institutions, and all Clerks of Court, Registrars of Wills, Sheriffs, State's Attorneys and Collectors of State Taxes, are broadened so as to cover all county treasurers, collectors, fee officers and County Commissioners so far as State taxes and receipts are concerned.

This department has very much more work than its present staff can do, so that the audits are not frequent enough. To obviate this an annual appropriation is made for auditing assistance of nearly $20,000 instead of a little over $6,000, as at present.

Payment of Bills—All bills for merchandise, materials and supplies purchased by any of the departments or institutions of the State are required to be promptly forwarded to the Comptroller for audit and review and if found correct they are to be paid by the Treasurer upon warrant of the Comptroller.

The Comptroller, however, is given the power to exempt from this requirement such purchases as he may, from time to time, determine it is better for the department or institution to pay itself, and to facilitate payment of this character the Comptroller is authorized to issue checks.

Monthly Accounting for Fees—Every department, institution or other governmental agency is required to account monthly to the Comptroller and pay to the Treasurer all fees and revenues received by it, and the Comptroller credits the same to the agency so accounting; and these funds can be paid out only on warrant in accordance with law.

In order to provide for cases in which such monthly accounting may not be advisable, the Comptroller is authorized with the Governor's approval, to grant exemptions.

Department of Welfare—This department will be headed by the Board of Welfare, consisting of the Director of Welfare, with a salary of $4,000, and four unpaid members, at least one of whom shall be a woman. This board will take over the duties of the State Board of Prison Control, which will be abolished, and thus the new board will manage the Maryland Penitentiary and the House of Correction.

In addition to this, the five institutions for the insane and feeble-minded are placed in this department and are required to report to the Director of Welfare quarterly. These institutions will continue to be managed by their respective boards of management and trustees exactly as at present.

The Lunacy Commission and its secretary are abolished, and in their place there will be a Board of Mental Hygiene, placed in this department, consisting of the Commissioner of Mental Hygiene and six unpaid members, four of whom must be physicians, and at least one of whom must be a woman. The Commissioner is required to have had at least five years experience in the treatment of mental diseases.

Examining and Licensing Boards—There are 19 of these at present. Each will be required to submit annually to the Board of Public Works an estimate of its fees and expenses for the ensuing year, and only such expenses can be incurred as the board approves. This will provide supervision over the expenditures made by these boards, which is now lacking, as the boards at present can use their fees practically as they please.

Roads Ready For Winter.

State Roads Chairman John N. Mackall and Assistant Chief Engineer H. D. Wilbur returned from an inspection of the State roads on the Eastern Shore. Mr. Mackall reported that they were never in better condition to stand cold weather.

The Commission has shut down on all construction work for the winter, with the exception of a few jobs where there are only short stretches to complete.

The last link in the York road, connecting Maryland with the Pennsylvania State roads system, will be opened for travel within a few days.

City Densely Populated.

POULTRY

Improvement Made in Flock by Getting Rid of All Hens Except Most Prolific Layers.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Examining a Hen to Find if She is Laying—Measuring Distance Between Pelvic Bones.

Beltsville, Md. The late moulting selected from a flock of 100 Rhode Island Reds in the fall of 1920 had seven more eggs per bird during their second year than the original flock as pullets. They were used as breeders the following spring, and the first Red pullets to commence laying in the fall of 1921 were found to be the offspring of these late-moulting hens. Their pullets in a period of seven months have already averaged about two dozen eggs per bird more than the original flock.

But it is not alone in number of eggs that the late-moulting progeny excel, but also in the value of the product, as the distribution was more even, a much larger proportion of the eggs being laid during the winter months. In the past seven months the daughters of the late moulting hens only averaged 160 eggs each, but more than the original flock.

Methods Adopted by California Community Result in Better Health of Laying Flock.

A mortality of less than 10 per cent for the year among hens entered in the egg-laying contest of Sonoma county, California, last year is reported to the United States Department of Agriculture by local extension workers, who worked out the feeding formula used in the contest. The health record of the hens entered and their layed average of 176 eggs per hen for the 394 days have led many poultrymen to adopt the management and feeding methods used in the contest. It is estimated that 50 per cent of the poultrymen of the county have changed their method of feeding during the last five years, due to extension work influence.

TRADE-MARK ON FRESH EGGS

New Jersey Organization Making Use of Small Sticker on Produce Sold by Members.

A small trade-mark sticker is now put on all eggs sold by members of the North Haledon League, club in Passaic county, N. J. This organization was formed as a result of a meeting of poultrymen of the community with the agricultural extension agent to discuss the development of the poultry industry in that section. Each member pays two cents per bird owned, 8,000 birds being pledged at the first meeting of the club. All members use the trade-mark and guarantee eggs sold under it.

POULTRY NOTES

Water is almost as important as feed in egg production.

A large red comb indicates health and egg production.

Males in pens reduce the total egg yield for the year.

Early maturing pullets usually make good egg producers.

Ninety eggs pay cost. The 150-egg hen is worth six 100-egg hens.

Half blue ornament and half hard or tallow makes a good house killer.

The price of feed does not always disclose its real value in making eggs.

Germs are not little animals. They are tiny plants, the smallest living things known. They are sometimes called bacteria or microbes. You might have some idea of the size of a germ if you could take a grain of sand and split it into a million pieces. Of course, some germs are larger than others, but the largest cannot be seen without the aid of a powerful microscope.

What do you look for?

When you buy shoes, what is uppermost in your mind, style or comfort? You probably suppose that most people think of style—the look of a shoe.

Nearly everybody wants good-looking shoes, that's true, but most people are looking for comfortable shoes.

Among women, the so-called fashion shoes are bought by only fifteen per cent. Eighty-five women out of one hundred think of comfort first.

Enterprise Started in New York to Teach Art of Elocution to Preachers.

Ingersoll used to say that on the stage they pretend to be natural, and
in the pulpit it is natural to pretend.
It was a wicked saying when printed
without the winning smile; but what
would he have said had he heard of a
theater school organized to teach
preachers, not how to act, but how to use their voices to the best advantage?
Such an enterprise is now afoot in
New York city, conducted by Evelyn
Hall, an actress, under Theater school
auspices—which proves that the melancholy Preacher of Jerusalem was
wrong when he said there is nothing
new under the sun. Nor is it a thing
to be laughed at. Many a good sermon is spoiled because the preacher
does not know how to deliver it. Surely, if the preacher has the best of
good news to tell, he ought to use
every aid of art to tell it. Joseph
Parker learned much from his friend,
Sir Henry Irving, and Beecher used
to study Edwin Booth—asking him to repeat the Lord's Prayer, that he might hear it in a manner worthy of its depth and beauty. As between an
untaught voice and an artificial elocution
there is little to choose; but without going to either extreme there is an art of using the voice which brings out its natural quality and the service of the Gospel in the Century.

Oh Boy! Here's a Battery that Fits
the Pocketbook

We used to know a chap who wore two-dollar shoes, fifteen-dollar suits, a dollar watch, and threw his socks away instead of sending them to the mending basket. Said he'd a heap pay less and buy oftener.

If he was around here now he'd grab a Battery (Wood Separator) and have it on his quicker'n scat! We've seen lots of batteries—but never one within gunshot of the C.W. Battery (Wood Separator), for quality at anything like the price!

Price: for 6-volt, 11-plate, $15.85.

More Than He Bargained For

By H. LOUISE RAYBOLD

(Copyright, 1922, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"I don't care to marry a coward!" The words flashed forth from the white lips of an imperious girl who crouched in the stern of the catboat and held out a single-stoned ring to the man who faced her astounded.

"But, Millicent, I'm not afraid for myself. Can't you understand? It's of you I'm thinking." Wade Norris had never seen his fiancée in a temper before, and the experience was unpleasantly disconcerting and disillusioning. Then he, too, set his lips. "We are going back, nevertheless."

"Am I to understand that if I weren't here you would keep on?" demanded the girl.

Wade threw a glance at the darkening sky above them out toward the horizon, where a sharply defined black line speckled with white indicated advancing wind. "No, I hardly think I would," he murmured frankly.

"There, you see?" Her tone was cruelly triumphant. Did she really suppose that caution was synonymous with cowardice? Millicent herself was an up-to-date little dandy, but surely that didn't justify his taking her into undoubted danger, and for so unimportant an affair as a dance at Kimball Point.

Some moments later, Wade assisted a silent girl to the dock and, himself silent, watched her run up the path to the Shermans' summer home. Then, eagerly, he hailed up the sail again. There was nothing left to do but to show her how little afraid he personally was. Straight into the white squall he careened and Millicent, turning at the mercy of the waves, lunged, perhaps reluctantly, on the top step, saw the Waterbird scudding seaward at an ominous pitch.

Wade was too much occupied in managing his small craft to worry very much about what the outcome of the wild ride would be. Long ago he had passed the position where he would naturally have tacked for Kimball's Point and nothing now intervened between him and the open sea. Momentarily expecting the cessation of what, at worst, he had supposed to be a summer squall, he lifted his eyes at last to the west, only to be dumbfounded at the solidarity of the cloudbank there. Something chill and ominous about the wind at the same moment forced itself upon his attention.

This was more than he had bargained for. He must swing about at the earliest possible moment. But before that moment came, catastrophe had overtaken him. A sudden, violent gust, a shiver of the entire boat, and the maelstrom snapped in two, dragging the sail in the water like the wing of a wounded bird.

Wade all his life afterward remembered that night of agony, tossing at the mercy of the waves, drenched with spray, half frozen. Morning brought cessation of the storm but no hope, for the sun rose upon a shoreless waste of water. Nevertheless, Wade pluckily set to work with the sculling oar, partly to get some warmth into him, partly in a desperate effort to raise land or a lighthouse.

Well on toward noon, when Wade was feeling the effects of his long fast and unusual exertions, he caught a glimpse far away of what was undoubtedly a boat. Wade wondered if, after all, Millicent had seen his reckless departure and if, when he failed to appear again, she would have started out a rescuing party. Very likely the boat he had sighted was looking for him.

Anxiously he waited, though at one time its crew had not observed his frenzied signaling. Then, suddenly, it swerved directly toward him. Meanwhile Millicent had spent a wakeful night, made restless by the storm without as well as the reproaches of her own heart. To be sure, she expected Wade had many hours before landed safely at Kimball's Point and she would come around in the morning and apologize for scaring her half to death.

But morning brought no Wade. Toward night Millicent casually called his hotel, only to learn that he had not come. In and that the Waterbird had not been docked that night. Then it was that rescuing boat sped in his direction, only to report absolute failure. Days later word came in of a wrecked catboat found drifting twenty miles off shore, but by that time Millicent had given up hope and mourned Wade as driven to his death by her perversity.

As a matter of fact, Wade had taken on the adventure of his life. The boat so opportunely met was one of those daring craft which, now and again, in the spirit of Joshua Slocum and his Spray, set out to cross the ocean. Only a forty-footer, she was stanch, adequately equipped, seaworthy.

This man they had come upon was a problem. With no wireless, his rescue could not be signaled. On the other hand, to make a harbor would be to lose valuable time.

"Tell you what we'll do," said the skipper. "We're short one man anyway, and we'll sign you on, Norris, if you're willing."

And Wade, reflecting that the only person for whom he held the slightest interest in the world had just returned his ring and called him a coward, replied that to do so would be a great pleasure.

Weeks later Millicent, a thinner, more chastened Millicent than the imperious girl of old, listlessly unfolded the morning paper. Suddenly she gasped and her face slowly whitened. The shock of it was tremendous.

Forty-footer arrives at Cowes with crew of six, among them Wade Norris, thought to be drowned.

Wade was alive! Wade was alive! At first the realization of that miraculous fact was enough for Mil-

cent. Little by little, the somber thought claimed her attention that she had little right to rejoice. Suddenly to find that she had not been, in effect, his murderer, did not lessen her responsibility.

Millicent let the cable fall into her lap and her eyes were starry. Fate was being better to her than she deserved.

Tact of Lord Rosebery Shown in Way He Avoided Offending Well-Meaning Individuals.

An incident in connection with the visit of Lord Rosebery, the former British premier, to Oxford some years ago to unveil Lord Salisbury's bust is told by the Rev. Sir David Hunter Blair in his "New Medley of Memories." He says: "I had read just to his Oxford house a story told me by the principal of a Scottish university, of how Lord Rosebery, engaged to speak at a great liberal meeting in a northern city, found himself previously 'filing with a fantastically tactful protest, who provided for his guests no other liquid refreshment than orangeade in large glass jugs. As this depressing beverage circulated, the liberal leader's spirits, almost to zero; and it was by the advice of my friend the principal, who, between the dinner and the evening, he drove a terrace to an hotel, and quaffed a pint of dry champagne before mounting the platform and making a speech of fiery eloquence, which the good provost attributed entirely to the orangeade. The lady, unknown to me, passed on the defensible story to one of the Union committee, who took it very seriously; the result being that when Lord Rosebery reached the committee room, just before the inauguration ceremony, a grave young man whispered to him confidentially: 'There are ten and coffee here?' but I have got your pint of champagne behind that screen; will you come and have it now?' 'Well, do you know?' said the great man, with the usual tact, 'I think for once in a way I will have a cup of coffee.'"

Birds Deserve Better Treatment. Birds are actually the most helpful animal friend which man has, destroying the insect and rodent pests which devour his crops, and acting as scavengers to prevent the dangerous increase of carrion or filth. Yet most of them look upon man as an enemy and a stranger, and certainly not without cause, for have not birds watched the development of mammals, watched them spread throughout the earth, watched entire species rise, rule and perish, watch the multitudes of changes of a million years? Mammals are strangers, newcomers upon the face of the earth, often deadly enemies of the birds which fear them because of these things.

Screech owls, one of the smallest and commonest of owls of eastern North America, are among them. The owl's peculiar quavering notes may often be heard on moonlight nights in the country and where there are trees in town. It nests in hollow trees, either in the orchard or forest, and lays four to six white eggs, usually in April in the latitude of New York. It also nests freely in bird boxes. The present species is remarkable for being dichromatic, presenting two phases of plumage—the one gray, the other red, irrespective of sex, age or season.

WORKED OUT AS HE PLANNED

Shrewd Mining Promoter Knew Just How Long Women Would Keep Secret He Imparted.

The psychology of selling was probably never applied better than in the disposal of the Weismann Mining company during the copper boom of 1906 and 1907. Mr. Weismann, who owned all the stock, gave a lawn party in the western city where he lived at the time. To this affair he invited all the men in the town who had any money worth his while, as well as their wives.

Taking aside the ladies one at a time, he confided to them over a glass of lemonade the following: "I would like to see you make a little pin money without any risk. If I could trust you not to betray my confidence by taking your husband's tea my plans. I don't mind you buying 100 shares of Weismann Mining stock, on which you will make 1,000 per cent, but if you should divulge this to your husband he might buy several thousand shares and interfere with my plans in the market."

Of course, every lady gave her sacred promise, and broke it before she went to bed.

Weismann Mining, which was listed on an eastern market, was sold to the last share before noon the next day. —Wall Street Journal.

Slipping in Saskatchewan. Recently in Saskatchewan, Saskatchewan, there was a home-brew contest for women, and the women were given licenses to allow them to indulge in this industry. There is keen competition among the ladies.

What of the women who are not married? Would it not be worth the time of any ambitious and thirsty young man to seek these out so they could be married ladies and home-brew makers?

Doubtless it would—but the only unmarried ladies the tourist could find were in short skirts because of youth and not fashion! —Exchange.

Make Life Hard to Bear For Many Berlin Women.

Too many women mistake their pains and aches for troubles peculiar to the sex. More often disordered kidneys are causing the aching back, dizzy spells, headache and irregular urination. Kidney weakness becomes dangerous if neglected. Use a time-tried kidney remedy—Doan's Kidney Pills. Hosts of people testify to their merit. Read a Berlin case:

Mrs. J. Edward Brittingham, Washington St., says: "I recommend Doan's Kidney Pills at every opportunity. I had kidney complaint and my back ached a great deal. I often had to neglect my work. Headaches were frequent and my kidneys didn't act right. Rheumatic pains settled in my joints and for several days I couldn't take a step and suffered awfully. I knew Doan's Kidney Pills had helped others so I tried them. They were just what I needed and soon the rheumatic pains left, my back was free from pain and my kidneys were in good order."

The Public's Interest In Telephone Earnings

The public is directly interested in the quality of service furnished by this Company and what it pays for such service.

It follows then that the public is concerned in the Company's earnings, because if the earnings are inadequate, the service cannot be maintained at a high standard. On the other hand, if earnings are excessive, the public is entitled to lower rates.

The aim of this Company has always been to charge rates that will yield a fair but not excessive return on the investment. This is necessary to attract the new capital required to keep step with the growth and progress of the community.

When we were forced finally to seek relief through increased rates, we did not ask the Public Service Commission to approve rates high enough to yield a fair return. We hoped that the future would bring reductions in costs and that increased efficiency would be obtained. This, together with moderate increases in rates, we hoped would result within a reasonable time in providing sufficient revenues to yield a fair return.

The Commission, in authorizing our rate increases, stated that the new rates would yield a return of about 5.3% on the value of our property.

During the two years that have passed since these rates were established, we have directed every energy toward furnishing the best possible service and toward the effecting of economies so that our investors might be afforded the return to which they are entitled.

In the first nine months of this year, our earnings have been at the rate of 5.7% a year on our investment in Maryland.

The return is still inadequate, being less than the legal interest rate. But we have made progress and this gives us confidence that with our present rates we can, by constantly increasing efficiency and persistent economy, earn a return sufficient to attract the new capital necessary to permit us to expand our system.

Glacier "Got a Move."

Chased by a glacier which suddenly came to activity after having been inactive for years, a trio of Minnesota geological student climbers hurriedly abandoned camp. The students went to Glacier National park to study Heaven's Peak glacier, pitching their camp 50 feet from the end of the ice wall. They were awakened by a dull rumbling and with daylight they discovered a widening crack some 200 feet back on the glacier and noted that the wall of ice was advancing. They hurriedly moved and half an hour later the ice had covered their camp site. The ice moved about 200 feet down the valley, advancing about one foot a minute.

Island Now Sheep Pasture.
The island of Cuttyhunk, in Buzzards' bay, is to be turned into a sheep pasture. The head of the American Woolen Company is now the owner of the greater part of Cuttyhunk, and this is a new venture of his in turning the island pastures over to sheep. Neighboring islands have long been used for sheep pasturing, the animals ranging wild for the greater part of the year, with a little extra feeding during the winter.

Testing Wooden Crates.

The forest products laboratory of the forest service, United States Department of Agriculture, was recently called upon to test wooden crates that would be satisfactory for carrying army aircraft bombs. A Poor Combination.

A brief commencement story is told about the governor of Maine who, while addressing the students at Bowdoin college, said, "Your graduation campus with its beautiful garbages of green," etc. Evidently he started to say "garment," then switched to "herbage," but the combination that resulted was hardly a happy one.—Boston Transcript.

LESSON FOR NOVEMBER 26

LESSON TEXT—Luke 11:23.
GOLDEN TEXT—The Son of Man is come to seek and to save that which is lost.—Luke 19:10.
REFERENCE MATERIAL—Matt. 4:23; 9:35-36.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Brings a Little of the Kingdom of God to the World.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus the Great Missionary.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Jesus Meeting All Human Needs.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Jesus the Ideal Missionary.

I. The Great Missionary's Field (vv. 1-3).

He went throughout every city and village. The true missionary goes to every body, for all need the gospel.

1. His Message (v. 1). He preached the glad tidings of the Kingdom of God. The gospel message is truly good tidings, for the great King is offering to rebellious sinners salvation through Jesus Christ.

2. His Helpers (v. 1). The twelve apostles were with Him. The missionary should utilize the help of others.
3. Supported by Saved Women (v. 2). Out of grateful hearts certain women who had experienced the saving power of the gospel, ministered unto Jesus of their substance.

II. The Great Missionary Teaching (vv. 4-21).

1. The Parable of the Sower (vv. 4-21). (1) The sower—Jesus (see Matt. 13:27). (2) The seed—the Word of God (v. 11). (3) The kinds of ground (vv. 5-8). (4) Wayside (v. 5). This foot-trodden path pictures the hardened heart upon which no impression can be made. The preached word finds no entrance, and Satan snatches it away as birds pick up the grain from the hard-bitten path. In such cases (a) cannot spring up and result in salvation (v. 12). (b) Stony ground (v. 6). This is not stones mixed with earth, but a thin layer of earth on a ledge of rock. The seed falling upon such earth springs up quickly, but the plant soon dies when exposed to the sun. This pictures the hearer who receives with joy the message of the gospel, but when persecution and trials come because of following Christ he gives up and deserts the cause (v. 13). (c) Thorny ground (v. 7). This ground is good, but it has thorns growing in it. The seeds spring up, but the plant has no room to develop. This pictures the Christians who bear no Christian fruit because of being preoccupied with "cares, riches and pleasures" of this life (v. 14). (d) Good ground (v. 8). The seed here sprang up and bore fruit to the full measure. This pictures the honest heart which receives the gospel, and allows it to produce its fruit.

2. Kinship with Jesus Christ (vv. 10-21). Jesus teaches here that there is a relationship to Him which is closer than the tie of blood—He is our Father.

III. The Great Missionary Doing Wonders (vv. 22-30).

1. Calming the Storm (vv. 22-25). (1) Jesus asleep (v. 23). While the disciples were sailing the ship the Master fell asleep. (2) The frightened disciples (v. 24). Their ships were filled with water, the disciples awoke Jesus with their cry of peril. (3) Jesus rebuked the wind and water (v. 24). At His word there was a great calm. (4) Jesus rebuked the disciples (v. 25). He did not rebuke them for waking Him, but for their lack of faith.

2. Casting Out Demons (vv. 26-30). Demon-possession was in that day, and is today, an awful reality. (1) Jesus met by the demoniac (vv. 26-29). (2) Jesus' question (v. 30). The purpose of this question doubtless was to bring the real man to consciousness—to enable him to distinguish between the demon and himself. (3) The demon's request (vv. 31, 32). They asked permission to enter into a herd of swine. It seems that the demons have a dislike for disbelievers and that they cannot act without Divine permission. (4) The request granted (v. 32, 33). Just why this was done we do not know. Since Jesus did it we must believe that it was wise. (5) The effect upon the people (vv. 34-37). (a) The keepers of the swine went and told what they had seen and done. (b) The people made investigation. They saw the man clothed and in his right mind, and heard the testimony of those who had seen what was done. (c) Bewitched Jesus to depart from them. (d) Request of the man whom He healed (vv. 38, 39). He desired to be with Jesus. This was natural and right, but his responsibility was to go home and show them what great things God had done for him.

Pure Religion.

Pure religion is undivided before God and the Father is this, to visit the widow and the fatherless in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted from the world.—James 1:27.

Aiding the Weak.

We are that are strong ought to bear the infirmities of the weak, and not to please ourselves.—Romans 15:1.

The Wise Man.

A wise man will make more opportunities than he finds.—Bacon.

Safe Rule to Observe.

It is a good and safe rule to observe in every place as if you meant to spend your life there, never committing an opportunity of doing a kindness, or speaking a true word, or making a friend.—John Bunyan.

It Should Be Hint Enough.

When people begin to ask us how much we weigh, there comes over us a sad and solemn feeling that it's about time to cut down on the starchy stuff.

Simplicity of Christian Faith

By REV. JOHN C. PAGE
Teacher of Bible Doctrine, Moody

TEXT—But I fear lest by any means, as the serpent beguiled Eve through his subtlety, so your minds should be corrupted from the simplicity that is in Christ.—II Cor. 11:3.

In the heart of the great apostle there was a certain well-defined fear which finds expression in this text. He was not afraid that his converts would be drawn back into a world of sin, but that they would be drawn back into a world of error, of superstition, or idolatry, nor did he fear lest under persecution they might deny the name of Christ.

It Is Not Automatic.

However much we may wish that we had, however much we may act as though we had—we have not a young people's society that is automatic. It will not run itself. I am wondering if a very positive conviction of the above fact would not help a good many of us materially.

Why, even your self-filling fountain pen does not walk from your fingers, go to the inkwell, drink from the supply there and return to your fingers ready for action. Really, if it is a self-filling pen, ought it not to fill itself when empty without any effort on your part? It will not do it. You must take it to the ink, immerse the pen, press the button, release it, then the ink flows into the pen.

Have we not expected sometimes that if we purchased a pledge and hung it on the wall, drew up a constitution, secured from each a signed pledge card, elected our officers, and appointed our committee, the organization would run itself? It will never do it. You have the machinery, but you haven't the power.

I believe there are committee chairmen who have felt that no meetings were necessary, no prayer, study and work were needed for the very life of the committee. Somehow, the conclusion was arrived at that the committee would run itself—and mistake.

Not long ago I was surprised, and I am not easily surprised, either, by a society president, who, when he had his Executive Committee together, opened the business by asking, "What business have we before us this evening?" He evidently thought that when the members got together the business would be automatically produced. It wasn't. Some business was gradually worked up, but the meeting was a pretty poor one.

Have not leaders too often believed that all that was necessary for a Sunday-evening prayer meeting was a goodly attendance, and an individual appointed as leader, at the table? The result has often shown that the meeting does not run itself, if it is to run smoothly and accomplish something worth while.

Now I am making a few who think that to make the Efficiency Campaign a success, all you need to do is to purchase the test leaflets, distribute them among the members, buy an Efficiency Campaign chart and hang it on the wall, and then watch the thermometer on the chart go up. It won't go, that is all—unless you do more than just get your machinery together. You must have power.

I think I have emphasized my single point in enough different ways to make it plain.

Organization is a wonderful thing, our committee work and the Efficiency Campaign are very definite, but we are not working with an organization that is automatic. We must put life into it; that means we must put ourselves into it, our best selves. We must study methods, we must plan carefully, pray without ceasing and work indefatigably. Therein is the secret of the success of well-organized societies. The organization must be given life through action upon the part of those who make up the organization.

Surely our organization is not automatic.—Forward.

How Not to Take Cold.

Some persons are subject to frequent colds, while others seldom, if ever, have a cold. You will find that the latter take good care of themselves. They take a shower or cold sponge bath every day in a warm room, avoid over heated rooms, sleep with a window open or partly open, avoid excesses, over eating, becoming over heated and then chilled and getting the feet wet. Then, when they feel the first indication of a cold, they take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy without delay and it is soon over.

Correct opinion on points of morality is a good thing—but it is not righteousness, by any means. Righteousness has been defined as the "condition of soul which causes it to move along the lines of truth and duty." It is right will, not correct knowledge, that tells most, for one can know the right, and yet not do it.—Selected.

Good Health.

If you would enjoy good health, keep your bowels regular. No one can reasonably hope to feel well, when constipated. When needed, take Chamberlain's Tablets. They are mild and gentle.

"You, Too, Can Have Beautiful Hair"

LONG, silken, vigorous hair is the birthright of every woman. Worry, poor health, strenuous living, neglect, etc., soon cause hair to weaken and fall out. The scalp must be kept free from infection, the hair roots must be nourished. Discriminating men and women make it a practice to use

Rawleigh's Hair Tonic regularly to keep the scalp healthy and promote the growth of the hair. They find this splendid preparation very helpful in treating dandruff, falling hair, and other scalp diseases. Washing the hair with Rawleigh's Liquid Shampoo or Shampoo Jelly avoids the dangers of ordinary soaps which in time weaken and destroy the hair roots. Proper use of Rawleigh's Shampoo and Hair Tonic will aid wonderfully in preserving and beautifying the hair.

Depend upon me to supply you with Rawleigh's Hair Tonic and Shampoo as well as other Toilet Preparations and Good Health Products. Hold your orders for me. I expect to be around your way soon. For quick parcel post or express service, write or phone

Taylor--Benson.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Benson was the scene of a beautiful wedding Wednesday evening, the contracting parties being their daughter, Doris, and Thomas Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Taylor.

The pastor of the bride, Rev. S. N. Pilchard, performed the ceremony, in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends.

The house was decorated with chrysanthemums and evergreens. The bride carried white roses and ferns.

Miss Laura Bethards played the Wedding March.

Mr. and Mrs. Taylor were the recipients of expensive and useful presents. They left on the midnight train from Salisbury to spend a few days in Philadelphia and other places, after which they will return to the home of her parents for the present.

The Advance joins their many friends in wishing them health and happiness.

A Timely Suggestion.

This is the season of the year when the prudent and careful housewife replenishes her supply of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is almost certain to be needed before the winter is over and results are much more prompt and satisfactory when it is kept at hand and given as soon as the first indication of a cold appears and before it has become settled in the system. There is no danger in giving it to children as it contains no opium or other harmful drug.

Buy the Advance instead of borrowing it, and you will feel more respectable.

George A. Harrison.

George A. Harrison, of Berlin, Worcester County, Maryland, member of the firm of Harrison's Nurseries, died at the Presbyterian Hospital, Philadelphia, Pa., at 5 o'clock P. M., Saturday, November the eighteenth. Mr. Harrison had not been at his best for many months past, but bravely contended against a complication of physical disorders until the end came. His condition was regarded as serious, but not hopeless until the past week. His passing takes from the community and from the business interest in which he was concerned, one who was not only highly esteemed by all who knew him as a patriotic and loyal citizen, but one whose place will be hard to fill in the chosen occupation of his life. A large host of intimate friends, as well as business associates keenly mourn their loss.

Mr. Harrison was born at Roxana, Delaware, December 9th, 1870, and was the second son of the late Joseph G. Harrison, the founder of the Harrison's Nurseries. Mr. Harrison has, for more than thirty-five years, been associated with his brother, Senator Orlando Harrison, in the conduct of the business of the Harrison's Nurseries, which is one of the largest, if not the largest, nursery interest in the United States. In addition to the nursery business, Mr. Harrison was director and stockholder in several other companies. He was a man who thoroughly loved his life-work; and to him an unusual pride in the condition of his orchards above the financial considerations. It is confidently affirmed that he had supervision of more tree-growing than any other man living.

As a citizen his marked business and executive ability was recognized and honored by his fellow citizens in being their choice as a member of the City Council several times, a position he filled with characteristic earnestness and individuality. He was also, as sheriff of Worcester County, in which capacity he collectedly was a strict enforcer of the law and order. Generally known as "A. H." Harrison, he was popular with all who knew him; especially among the many men under his employ. Prompt, efficient, energetic, yet kind and considerate to all, Mr. Harrison was a member of the Stevens Episcopal Church of Berlin, Md., with which he was united under the pastorate of the Rev. W. Ernest Greenwell. Surviving Mr. Harrison, in the immediate family, are his wife, Mrs. Olevia H. Harrison; two daughters, Mrs. Lee W. Davis and Miss Eunice; two sons, Joseph G. and Burgrave. One brother and two sisters survive him: Senator Orlando Harrison; Mrs. W. B. S. Powell, of Ocean City, Md.; and Mrs. Achah H. Purnell, of Berlin, Md. The funeral service was held in the church of which he was a member, Tuesday, November 21st, at 2:30 P. M., by the pastor, Rev. S. N. Pilchard, and Rev. J. Russell Verbycke.

A great profusion of beautiful flowers, and friends from far and near, (many more than could enter the church,) proved the love of the people for the deceased, and their sympathy for those left behind. The stores and school closed for the funeral. The choir sang feelingly "Abide With Me" and "Asleep in Jesus," and Miss Nellie Collins sang two beautiful solos.

A letter of sympathy was read from St. Paul's Methodist Church (colored) signed by the pastor and secretary.

The Red Men attended, and to part in the services at the grave, in Buckingham Cemetery.

Card Of Thanks

Mrs. Olevia H. Harrison and family, together with Senator Orlando Harrison, sisters and other relatives, desire to express their sincere appreciation and thanks to the many friends who expressed their sympathy and rendered such loving service in the hour of their deep bereavement.

The Latest Gleanings From All
Over the State

THINGS SEEN AND HEARD

Cumberland.—George Coffinberger, Martinsburg, a Baltimore and Ohio laborer, was struck by Pennsylvania Railroad engine No. 983 at Cumbo, receiving injuries from which he died a few minutes later.

Rockville.—In a suit against Dr. Jesse S. Trumpp of Linden, this county, for $5,000 damages for the loss of a dog, Girard H. Childs, also of Linden, was given judgment for $50 by a jury in the Circuit Court here.

Cumberland.—More than $16,000 has been realized as a result of the Salvation Army Home Service Appeal for $18,347. It was announced at the final meeting of the officers and workers of the campaign teams at the Fort Cumberland Hotel. The workers have about 1000 calls yet to make.

Hagerstown.—Because he refused to fight a forest fire after having been summoned by Forest Warden A. C. McAllister, Clearspring, Hager Harr, prominent Big Pool farmer, was arrested. The testimony of Harr's physician, Dr. J. P. Perry, revealed that he suffered from asthma and bronchial trouble, which rendered him physically unable to fight fires, and Justice Mason, of Hancock, freed him of the charge.

Bethesda.—Representative Frederick N. Zihlman of the Sixth district delivered an address here in connection with the laying of the cornerstone of the new temple of Bethesda Lodge No. 204, A. F. & A. M. Presentation of the Washington trowel was made by Charles E. Callahan, Deputy Grand Master of Virginia, at the conclusion of which Percy Clift, secretary of the Washington trowel, Washington Lodge, A. F. & A. M. of Alexandria, Va., spoke. Benediction was pronounced by the Rev. James M. McCallister.

Cumberland.—The George's Creek Coal Company, Inc., filed a bill in the Circuit Court of Allegany county for an injunction to restrain Francis J. Drum, president District No. 6, United Mine Workers of America, Midland and Frostburg locals of the United Mine Workers, and 74 individuals from interfering with the affairs of the company, or with employees of the company, or persons who wish to take employment. The papers were sent to Chief Judge A. Hunter Boyd, who is at Annapolis, for an order. A number of men signed with the George's Creek Coal Company to resume work several weeks ago, but it is said that less than half actually took employment, due to intimidation.

Princess Anne.—Jake Downes, for whom a bench warrant was issued at the September term of the Circuit Court for Somerset county, is believed to have adopted a Santa Claus method to make his escape from the jail at Princess Anne, by crawling through the stove hole, climbing up the chimney to the roof of the jail, and then descending by the water spout to the ground. Deputy Sheriff Dryden says he knows of no other way in which Downes could have escaped, as the doors and windows were closed and barred. Downes was in the jail during the afternoon, but when his supper was carried to him, at 6 o'clock, he was missing. He is a small man, weighing only about 110 pounds. Downes is from Salisbury and at the September term of court testified in behalf of the defendant in a battery case. At the conclusion of his testimony several witnesses testified that he had agreed to accept a sum of money from the defendant to testify as he did. Downes was arrested upon a bench warrant on a charge of perjury and has since been lodged in jail here.

Baltimore.—At the annual meeting of the Eastern Shore Society, held at the Hotel Rennett, officers for the ensuing year were elected. George L. Radcliffe of the Dorchester Chapter was chosen president, succeeding John H. K. Shanahan, and Walter R. Gale was re-elected secretary-treasurer of the association. Phillips Lee Goldsborough again was chosen honorary member of the board of governors. Reports as to the present membership of the society, read by Mr. Gale, showed a marked increase over former years. There now are 600 members. Vice-presidents of the association, nine in number, one representing each county, are as follows: J. Horner Ireland, Kent; William E. Jones, Somerset; George W. Dexter, Talbot; Benjamin W. Woolford, Dor. Arthur G. Barrett, Cecil; R. Sonté Rose, Queen Anne's; Frank D. Mills, Worcester; George E. Salisbury, Caroline; and L. Wesley Cooper, Wicomico. An entertaining program was furnished by Lafayette Temple, the humorist. A buffet supper concluded the meeting.

New State Rule Reviewed By Governor.

What reorganization of the State government will mean to Maryland is to be set forth in detail by Governor Ritchie at the annual session of the Governors' Conference, to be held at the Greenbrier Hotel, White Sulphur Springs, Va., December 14, 15 and 16. To this end he has made additional studies of the Reorganization Act, which becomes effective, January 1, and arranged a summary showing just what changes will be made in the State's administrative officer.

The summary, in part, is as follows: Department of Finance—This department will be headed by the Comptroller and the Treasurer. The State Auditor, the Bank Commissioner, the Insurance Commissioner, the State Tax Commission and the State Purchasing Agent are all assigned to this department, although these officials all continue to be appointed by the Governor.

The more important administrative changes are as follows: State Auditor's Department—The duties of the State Auditor, which at present cover the accounts of all State departments, State-owned and State-aided institutions, and all Clerks of Court, Registrars of Wills, Sheriffs, State's Attorneys and Collectors of State Taxes, are broadened so as to cover all county treasurers, collectors, fee officers and County Commissioners as well as State taxes and receipts are concerned.

This department has very much more work than its present staff can do, so that the audits are not frequent enough. To obviate this, an annual appropriation is made for auditing assistance of nearly $20,000 instead of a little over $6,000, as at present. Payment of Bills—All bills for merchandise, materials and supplies purchased by any of the departments or institutions of the State are required to be promptly forwarded to the Comptroller for audit and review and if found correct they are to be paid by the Treasurer upon warrant of the Comptroller.

The Comptroller, however, is given the power to exempt from this requirement purchases by the State from time to time, returning to the Comptroller a statement of the purchases.

Monthly Accounting for Fees—Every department, institution or official governmental agency is required to account monthly to the Comptroller and pay to the Treasurer all fees and revenues received by it, and the Comptroller credits the same to the agency so accounting; and these funds can be paid out only on warrant in accordance with law.

In order to provide for cases in which such monthly accounting may not be advisable, the Comptroller is authorized with the Governor's approval, to grant exemptions.

Department of Welfare—This department will be headed by the Board of Welfare, with a salary of $4,000, and four unpaid members, at least one of whom shall be a woman. This board will take over the duties of the State Board of Prison Control, which will be abolished, and the new board will manage the Maryland Penitentiary and the House of Correction. In addition to this, the five institutions for the insane and feeble-minded are placed in this department and are required to report to the Director of Welfare quarterly. These institutions will continue to be managed by their respective boards of management and trustees exactly as at present.

The Lunacy Commission and its secretary are abolished, and in their place there will be a Board of Mental Hygiene, placed in this department, consisting of the Commissioner of Mental Hygiene and six unpaid members, four of whom must be physicians, and at least one of whom must be a woman. The Commissioner is required to have had at least five years experience in the treatment of mental diseases.

Examining and Licensing Boards—There are 19 of these at present. Each will be required to submit annually to the Board of Public Works, an estimate of its fees and expenses for the ensuing year, and only such expenses can be incurred as the board approves. This will provide supervision over the expenditures made by these boards, which is now lacking, as the boards at present can use their fees practically as they please.

Roads Ready For Winter.

State Roads Chairman John N. Mackall and Assistant Chief Engineer H. D. Willard returned from an inspection of the State roads on the Eastern Shore. Mr. Mackall reported that they were never in better condition to stand cold weather. The Commission has shut down on all construction work for the winter, with the exception of a few jobs which there are only short stretches to complete.

The last link in the York road, connecting Maryland with the Pennsylvania State roads system, will be opened for travel within a few days.

City Densely Populated.

Bonham is the most densely populated city in the world.

DOULTRY

Improvement Made in Flock by Culling. Aid of All Hen Except Most Prolific Layers.

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture. That culling the poultry flock to get rid of all those birds except the vigorous, prolific layers results in noticeable improvement in the progeny is shown by recent investigations at the United States experimental farm, Beltsville, Md.

ville, Md. The late moulters selected from a flock of 30 Rhode Island Hens in the fall of 1920 had seven more eggs per bird during their second year than the original flock as pullets. They were used as breeders the following spring, and the first fled pullets to commence laying in the fall of 1921 were found to be the offspring of these late-moulting hens. Their pullets in a period of seven months have already averaged about two dozen eggs per bird more than the original flock.

But it is not a small number of eggs that the poultry progeny excel, but also in the value of the product, as the distribution was more even, a much larger percentage of the eggs being laid during the winter months. The late moulters also laid more eggs during the winter months than the original flock.

Methods Adopted by California Community Result in Better Health of Laying Flocks.

A mortality of less than 10 per cent for the year among hens entered in the egg-laying contest of Sonoma county, California, last year is reported to the United States Department of Agriculture by local extension workers, who worked out the feeding formula used in the contest. The health record of the hens entered and their laying averages of 176 eggs per hen for the 364 days have led many poultrymen to adopt the management and feeding methods used in the contest. It is estimated that 50 per cent of the poultrymen of the county have changed their method of feeding during the last few years, due to extension work influence.

TRADE-MARK ON FRESH EGGS

New Jersey Organization Making Use of Small Sticker on Produce Sold by Members.

A small trade-mark sticker is now put on all eggs sold by members of the North Haledon Leghorn club in Passaic county, N. J. This organization was formed as a result of a meeting of poultrymen of the community, to discuss the development of the poultry industry in that section. Each member pays two cents per bird owned, 8,000 birds being pledged at the first meeting of the club. All members use the trade-mark and guarantee eggs sold under it.

DOULTRY NOTES

Water is almost as important as feed in egg production.

A large red comb indicates health and egg production.

Males in pens reduce the total egg yield for the year.

Early maturing pullets usually make good egg producers.

Ninety eggs pay cost. The 150-egg hen is worth six 100-egg hens.

Half blue ornament and half lard or tallow makes a good fouse killer.

OLD GOODIES.

Sally Lunn was a famous pastry cook in England and she was the one who originated the hot bread of that name. This was a favorite breakfast food of George Washington.

Sally Lunn—This one quart of flour, four eggs, one-half cup of melted butter or shortening, one-half cup of sugar, one-half cup of yeast, a pinch of salt, and a cup of water, one cup of oil, and two tablespoons of sugar. Bake in a greased pan for one hour.

Sweet Potato Pudding—Peel, peel, and when cold grig enough sweet potatoes to weigh a pound. Cream one-half cupful of butter with three-fourths of a cupful of sugar and the beaten yolks of four eggs, a teaspoonful each of cinnamon and nutmeg, the rind and juice of an orange, three tablespoons of any fruit juice, fold in the whites of two eggs well beaten. Mix well, put into a buttered baking dish and bake about twenty minutes. Cover with a meringue prepared with the remaining egg whites. Serve hot.

Lee Sponge Cake.—Prepare a sponge cake and bake in layers. For the filling beat until stiff two egg whites, add one pound of pulverized sugar, the grated rind and juice of an orange and the juice of half a lemon. Spread the mixture on the layers before they are cold.

Hill Cookies.—Take four eggs, one pound of sugar, one-half pound of butter, mace to flavor, one teaspoonful of soda, and a cup of cream of tartar. Add flour to make a stiff dough. Roll very thin and bake in a quick oven.

VICTIM OF PRACTICAL JOKE

Rather Mean Trick, Credit to Member of Washington Club, Played on Business Man.

They are telling a story around the Backus club, a practical joke played upon an out-of-town visitor who is most punctilious in the manner in which he draws all the contracts for the company of which he is president. It appears that a short time ago he came to Washington prepared to close a deal involving a small amount of money. When the papers were finally typed he scanned them carefully, and when about to affix his signature he was asked by one of the other parties of the deal to see his fountain pen, as he wanted to keep it as a souvenir of the occasion. Rather appreciating the compliment, he did so, and that night retained the pen. A day or two after his arrival home he had occasion to look up the contract, and found, to his dismay, that there were no signatures to it. He was puzzled, and when he had simply made him use a fountain pen that was filled with disappearing ink. When the hoax was explained to him by wire he sent back the following message: "I'm returning with by own ink. The signer is or me."—Washington Star.

Small, but Powerful.
They are tiny plants, the smallest living things known. They are sometimes called bacteria or microbes. Of course, these germs are larger than others, but the largest cannot be seen without the aid of a powerful microscope.

Agas of Common Trees.
The heart of the common oak, it is said, begins to rot at the age of 300 years. The green oak, it is said, is undisturbed it rarely lives much beyond 600 years. A larch may live 750 years, a silver fir 425, and a pine over 1000 years. The few have a remarkable power of resisting time's ravages, and may survive for 1,000 years or more.

What do you look for?

When you buy shoes, what is uppermost in your mind, style or comfort? You probably suppose that most people think of style the looks of a shoe.

Nearly everybody wants good-looking shoes, that's true, but most people are looking for comfortable shoes.

Among women, the so-called fashion shoes are bought by only fifteen per cent. Eighty-five women out of one hundred think of comfort first.

invited to come out and help in the great work.

Enterprise Started in New York to Teach Art of Elocution to Preachers.

Ingersoll used to say that on the stage they pretend to be natural, and
in the pulpit it is natural to pretend.
It was a wicked saying when printed
without the winning smile; but what
preachers, not how to act, but how to
use their voices to the best advantage?
Such an enterprise is now afoot in
New York city, conducted by Evelyn
Hall, an actress, under Theater school
auspices—which proves that the melancholy Preacher of Jerusalem was
wrong when he said there is nothing
new under the sun. Nor is it a thing
to be laughed at. Many a good sermon is spoiled because the preacher
does not know how to deliver it. Surely, if the preacher has the best of
good news to tell, he ought to use
every aid of art to tell it. Joseph
Parker learned much from his friend,
Sir Henry Irving, and Beecher used
to study Edwin Booth—asking him to repeat the Lord's Prayer, that he
might hear it in a manner worthy of
its depth and beauty. As between an
untaught voice and an artificial elocution
there is little to choose, but
without going to either extreme there
is an art of using the voice which brings out the natural quality and power, and it should be employed in the service of the Gospel—Christian Century.

Taylor--Benson.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Benson was the scene of a beautiful wedding Wednesday evening, the contracting parties being their daughter, Doris, and Thomas Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Taylor.

The pastor of the bride, Rev. S. N. Pilchard, performed the ceremony, in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends.

The house was decorated with chrysanthemums and evergreens. The bride wore white roses and ferns.

Miss Laura Bethards played the Wedding March.

Mr. and Mrs. Taylor were the recipients of expensive and useful presents. They left on the midnight train from Salisbury to spend a few days in Philadelphia, and other places, after which they will return to the home of her parents for the present.

The Advance joins their many friends in wishing them health and happiness.

Smack--McCabe.

The Presbyterian Manse was the scene of a very pretty wedding Saturday evening, Nov. 18th, when John Lester Smack, son of Mrs. Georgiana Smack, and Della Mae McCabe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joshua McCabe, both of Berlin, were united in marriage by Rev. J. Russell Verbruyke.

The bride was becomingly attired in a wedding dress of white duchesse satin.

She was accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Washington McCabe, and Miss Virgie McCabe, a younger sister of the bride. Others who witnessed the ceremony, were Mrs. Sally Smack and daughter, Miss Mabel, and Mrs. Elsie Whittington.

The happy couple will reside near Berlin.

Their host of friends join in wishing them a long and happy married life.

Carey--Hastings.

Minnie G. Hastings, of Berlin, was united in marriage to William L. Carey, of Bishopville, Md., on Thursday evening, Nov. 23rd, at the Presbyterian Manse by the Rev. J. Russell Verbruyke. The wedding was a quiet one.

A Timely Suggestion.

This is the season of the year when the prudent and careful housewife replenishes her supply of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is almost certain to be needed before the winter is over and results are much more prompt and satisfactory when it is kept at hand and given as soon as the first indication of a cold appears and before it has become settled in the system. There is no danger in giving it to children as it contains no opium or other harmful drug.

Buy the Advance instead of borrowing it, and you will feel more respectable.

George A. Harrison.

George A. Harrison, of Berlin, Worcester County, Maryland, member of the firm of Harrison's Nurseries, died at the Presbyterian Hospital, Philadelphia, Pa., at 5 o'clock P. M., Saturday, November the eighteenth. Mr. Harrison had not been at his best for many months past, but bravely contended against a complication of physical disorders until the end came. His condition was regarded as serious, but not hopeless until the past week. His passing takes from the community and from the business interest in which he was concerned, one, who was not only highly esteemed by all who knew him as a patriotic and loyal citizen, but one whose place will be hard to fill in the chosen occupation of his life. A large host of intimate friends, as well as business associates keenly mourn their loss. Mr. Harrison was born at Roxana, Delaware, December 9th, 1870, and was the second son of the late Joseph G. Harrison, the founder of the Harrison's Nurseries. Mr. Harrison has, for more than thirty-five years, been associated with his brother, Senator Orlando Harrison, in the conduct of the business of the Harrison's Nurseries, which is one of the largest, if not the largest, nursery interest in the United States. In addition to the local nursery business, Mr. Harrison was director and stockholder in several other companies. He was a man who thoroughly loved his life-work; and to a unusual pride in the condition of his orchards above the financial considerations. It is confidently affirmed that he had supervision of more tree-growing than any other man living.

As a citizen his marked business and executive ability was recognized and honored by his fellow citizens in being their choice as a member of the City Council several times, which position he filled with characteristic earnestness and individuality; and, also, as sheriff of Worcester County, in which capacity he unflinchingly was a strict enforcer of the law and order. Generally known as "Al" Harrison, he was popular with all who knew him; especially among the many men under his employ. Prompt, efficient, energetic, yet kind and considerate to all, Mr. Harrison was a member of the Stevenson Episcopal Church of Berlin, Md., with which he was united under the pastorate of the Rev. W. Ernest Greenfield. Surviving Mr. Harrison, in the immediate family, are his wife, Mrs. Olivia H. Harrison; two daughters, Mrs. Lee W. Davis and Miss Eunice; two sons, Joseph G. and Burbage. One brother and two sisters survive him: Senator Orlando Harrison; Mrs. W. B. Powell, of Ocean City, Md., and Mrs. Achsa H. Purnell, of Berlin, Md. The funeral service was held in the church of which he was a member, Tuesday, November 21st, at 2:30 P. M., by the pastor, Rev. S. N. Pilchard, and Rev. J. Russell Verbruyke.

A great profusion of beautiful flowers, and friends from far and near, (many more than could enter the church,) proved the love of the people for the deceased, and their sympathy for those left behind.

The stores and school closed for the funeral. The choir sang feelingly "Abide With Me" and "Anthem In Jesus," and Miss Nellie Collins sang two beautiful solos.

A letter of sympathy was read from St. Paul's Methodist Church (colored) signed by the pastor and secretary.

The Red Men attended, and to a part in the services at the grave, in Buckingham Cemetery.

Card Of Thanks

Mrs. Olivia H. Harrison and family, together with Senator Orlando Harrison, sisters and other relatives, desire to express their sincere appreciation and thanks to the many friends who expressed their sympathy and rendered such loving service in the hour of their deep bereavement.

More Than He Bargained For

By H. LOUISE RAYBOLD

"I don't care to marry a coward!" The words flashed forth from the white lips of an imperious girl who crouched in the stern of the catboat and held out a single-stoned ring to the man who faced her astounded.

"But, Millicent, I'm not afraid for myself. Can't you understand? It's of you I'm thinking." Wade Norrie had never seen his fiancée in a temper before, and the experience was unpleasantly disconcerting and disillusioning. Then he, too, set his lips. "We are going back, nevertheless."

"Am I to understand that if I weren't here you would keep on?" demanded the girl.

Wade threw a glance at the darkening sky above, then out toward the horizon, where a sharply defined black line speckled with white indicated advancing wind. "No, I hardly think I would," he murmured frankly.

"There, you see?" Her tone was cruelly triumphant. Did she really suppose that caution was synonymous with cowardice? Millicent herself was an up-to-date little daredevil, but surely that didn't justify his taking her into undoubted danger, and for so unimportant an affair as a dance at Kimball Point.

Some moments later, Wade assisted a silent girl to the dock and, himself silent, watched her run up the path to the Shermans' summer home. Then, angrily, he hauled up the sail again. There was nothing left to do but to show her how little afraid he personally was. Straight into the white squall he careened and Millicent, turning, tossed at the Mercy of the Waves.

ling, perhaps reluctantly, on the top step, saw the Waterbird scudding seaward at an ominous pitch.

Wade was too much occupied in managing his small craft to worry very much about what the outcome of the wild ride would be. Long ago he had passed the position where he had naturally have looked for Kimball's Point and nothing now intervened between him and the open sea. Momentarily expecting the cessation of what, at worst, he had supposed to be a summer squall, he lifted his eyes at last to the west, only to be dumbfounded at the solidarity of the cloudbank there. Something chill and ominous about the wind at the same moment forced itself upon his attention.

This was more than he had bargained for. He must avenge about at the earliest possible moment. But before that moment came, catastrophe had overtaken him. A sudden, violent gust, a shiver of the entire boat, and the mainmast snapped in two, dragging the sail in the water like the wing of a wounded bird.

Wade all his life afterward remembered that night of agony, tossing at the mercy of the waves, drenched with spray, half frozen. Morning brought cessation of the storm but no hope, for the sun rose upon a shoreless waste of water. Nevertheless, Wade pluckily set to work with the sculling oar, partly to get some warmth into him, partly in a desperate effort to raise land or a lighthouse.

Well on toward noon, when Wade was feeling the effects of his long fast and unusual exertions, he caught a glimpse far away of what was undoubtedly a boat. Wade wondered if, after all, Millicent had seen his reckless departure and if, when he failed to appear again, she would have started out a rescuing party. Very likely the boat he had sighted was looking for him.

Anxiously he waited, though at one time its crew had not observed his frenzied signaling. Then, suddenly, it swerved directly toward him.

Meanwhile Millicent had spent a wakeful night, made restless by the storm without as well as the reproaches of her own heart. To be sure, she expected Wade had many hours before landed safely at Kimball's Point and a little sheepishly she hoped he would come around in the morning and apologize for scaring her half to death.

But morning brought no Wade. Toward night Millicent usually called his hotel, only to learn that he had not come in and that the Waterbird had not been docked that night. Then it was that roiling boat sped in his direction, only to report absolute failure. Days later word came in of a wrecked catboat found drifting twenty miles off shore, but by that time Millicent had given up hope and mourned Wade as driven to his death by her perversity.

As a matter of fact, Wade had taken on the adventure of his life. The boat so opportunely met was one of those daring craft which, now and again, in the spirit of Joshua Slocum and his Spray, set out to cross the ocean. Only a forty-footer, she was stanch, adequately equipped, seaworthy.

This man they had come upon was a problem. With no wireless, his rescue could not be signaled. On the other hand, to make a harbor would be to lose valuable time.

"Tell you what we'll do," said the skipper. "We're short one man anyway, and we'll sign you on, Norris, if you're willing."

And Wade, reflecting that the only person for whom he held the slightest interest in the world had just returned his ring and called him a coward, replied that to do so would be a great pleasure.

Weeks later Millicent, a thinner, more chastened Millicent than the imperious girl of old, listlessly unfolded the morning paper. Suddenly she gasped and her face slowly whitened. The shock of it was tremendous.

Forty-footer arrives at Cowes with crew of six, among them Wade Norris, thought to be drowned.

Wade was alive! Wade was alive! At first the realization of that miraculous fact was enough for Millicent. Little by little, the somber thought claimed her attention that she had little right to rejoice. Suddenly to find that she had not been, in effect, his murderer, did not lessen her responsibility.

An hour later, Millicent received a cable.

"Sail for home today. Give you most wonderful experience of my life. Love, Wade."

Millicent let the cable fall into her lap and her eyes were starry. Fate was being better to her than she deserved.

Tact of Lord Rosebery Shows in Way He Avoided Offending Well-Meaning Individual.

An incident in connection with the visit of Lord Rosebery, the former British premier, to Oxford some years ago to unveil Lord Salisbury's bust is told by the Rt. Rev. Sir David Hunter Blair in his "New Medley of Memories." He says: "I had repeated to his Oxford hostess a story told me by the principal of a Scottish university, of how Lord Rosebery, engaged to speak at a secret liberal meeting in a northern city, found himself previously dining with a fanatically teetotal provost, who provided for his guests no other liquid refreshment than orangeade in large glass jugs. As this depressing beverage circulated, the liberal leader's spirits fell almost to zero; and it was by the advice of my friend the principal that, between the dinner and the meeting, he drove venture a terrace to an hotel, and quaffed a pint of dry champagne before mounting the platform and making a speech of fiery eloquence, which the good provost attributed entirely to the orangeade. The lady, unknown to me, passed on the delectable story to one of the Union committee, who took it very seriously; the result being that when Lord Rosebery reached the committee room, just before the inauguration ceremony, a grave young man whispered to him confidentially: 'There are tea and coffee here; but I have got your pint of champagne behind that screen; will you come and have it now?' 'Well, do you know?' said the great man, with his usual tact, 'I think for once in a way I will have a cup of coffee.'"

Birds Deserve Better Treatment.
Birds are actually the most helpful animal friend which man has, destroying the insect and rodent pests which devour his crops, and acting as scavengers to prevent the dangerous increase of carrion or filth. Yet most of them look upon man as an enemy and a stranger, and certainly not without cause, for have not birds watched the development of man, and watched them spread throughout the earth, watched entire species rise, rule and perish, watch the multitude of changes of a million years? Mammals are strangers, newcomers upon the face of the earth, often deadly enemies of the birds which fear them because of these things.

New York Birds.
Many species of birds are to be found within 50 miles of New York. At the Museum of Natural History there is a special collection of such birds, and they are more numerous and diversified than is generally supposed.

Screech owls, one of the smallest and commonest of owls of eastern North America, are among them. The owl's peculiar quivering notes may often be heard on moonlight nights in the country and where there are trees in town. It nests in hollow trees, either in the orchard or forest, and lays four to six white eggs, usually in April in the latitude of New York; it also nests freely in bird boxes. The present species is remarkable for being dichromatic, presenting two phases of plumage—the one gray, the other red, irrespective of sex, age or season.

Shrewd Mining Promoter Knew Just How Long Women Would Keep Secret His Imparted.

The psychology of selling was probably never applied better than in the disposal of the Welsmann Mining company during the copper boom of 1909 and 1907. Mr. Welsmann, who owned all the stock, gave a lawn party in the western city where he lived at the time. To this affair he invited all the men in the town who had any money worth his while, as well as their wives.

Taking aside the ladies one at a time, he confided to them over a glass of lemonade the following: "I would like to see you make a little pin money without any risk, if I could trust you not to betray my confidence by taking your husband into any plans. I don't mind you buying 100 shares of Welsmann Mining stock, on which you will make 1,000 per cent, but if you should divulge this to your husband he might buy several thousand shares, and interfere with my plans in the market."

Of course, every lady gave her sacred promise, and broke it before she went to bed.

Welsmann Mining, which was listed on an eastern market, was sold to the last share before noon the next day. —Wall Street Journal.

Slipping in Saskatoon.
Recently in Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, there was a home-brew contest for women only.

And all of these women were married women.

There is a law in Saskatchewan which permits the making of home brew; only, and the women are given licenses to allow them to indulge in this industry. There is keen competition among the ladies.

What of the women who are not married? Would it not be worth the time of any ambitious and thirsty young man to seek them out so they could be married ladies and home-brew makers?

Doubtless it would—but the only unmarried ladies the tourist could find were in short skirts because of youth and not fashion!—Exchange.

Make Life Hard to Bear For Many Berlin Women.

Too many women mistake their pains and aches for troubles peculiar to the sex. More often disordered kidneys are causing the aching back, dizzy spells, headache and irregular urination. Kidney weakness becomes dangerous if neglected. Use a time-tried kidney remedy—Doan's Kidney Pills. Hosts of people testify to their merit. Read a Berlin case:

Mrs. J. Edward Brittingham, Washington St., says: "I recommend Doan's Kidney Pills at every opportunity. I had kidney complaint and my back ached a great deal. I often had to neglect my work. Headaches were frequent and my kidneys didn't act right. Rheumatic pains settled in my joints and for several days I couldn't take a step and suffered awfully. I knew Doan's Kidney Pills had helped others so I tried them. They were just what I needed and soon the rheumatic pains left, my back was free from pain and my kidneys were in good order."

The Public's Interest In Telephone Earnings

The public is directly interested in the quality of service furnished by this Company and what it pays for such service.

It follows then that the public is concerned in the Company's earnings, because if the earnings are inadequate, the service cannot be maintained at a high standard. On the other hand, if earnings are excessive, the public is entitled to lower rates.

The aim of this Company has always been to charge rates that will yield a fair but not excessive return on the investment. This is necessary to attract the new capital required to keep step with the growth and progress of the community.

When we were forced finally to seek relief through increased rates, we did not ask the Public Service Commission to approve rates high enough to yield a fair return. We hoped that the future would bring reductions in costs and that increased efficiency would be obtained. This, together with moderate increases in rates, we hoped would result within a reasonable time in providing sufficient revenues to yield a fair return.

The Commission, in authorizing our rate increases, stated that the new rates would yield a return of about 5.3% on the value of our property.

During the two years that have passed since these rates were established, we have directed every energy toward furnishing the best possible service and toward the effecting of economies so that our investors might be afforded the return to which they are entitled.

In the first nine months of this year, our earnings have been at the rate of 5.7% a year on our investment in Maryland.

The return is still inadequate, being less than the legal interest rate. But we have made progress and this gives us confidence that with our present rates we can, by constantly increasing efficiency and persistent economy, earn a return sufficient to attract the new capital necessary to permit us to expand our system.

Glacier "Got a Move."

Chased by a glacier which suddenly came to activity after having been inactive for years, a trio of Minnesota geological student climbers hurriedly abandoned camp. The students went to Glacier National park to study Heaven's Peak glacier, pitching their camp 50 feet from the end of the ice wall. They were awakened by a dull rumbling and with daylight they discovered a widening crack some 200 feet back on the glacier and noted that the wall of ice was advancing. They hurriedly moved and half an hour later the ice flow had covered their camp site. The ice moved about 200 feet down the valley, advancing about one foot a minute.

Island Now Sheep Pasture.
The island of Cuttyhunk, in Buzzard's bay, is to be turned into a sheep pasture. The head of the American Woolen company is now the owner of the greater part of Cuttyhunk, and this is a new venture of his in turning the island pastures over to sheep. Neighboring islands have long been used for sheep pasturing, the animals running wild for the greater part of the year, with a little extra feeding during the winter.

Testing Wooden Crates.

A Poor Combination.
A brief commencement story is told about the governor of Maine who, while addressing the students at Bowdoin college, said, "Your spacious campus with its beautiful garbages of green," etc. Evidently he started to say "garment," then switched off onto "herbage," but the combination that resulted was hardly a happy one.—Boston Transcript.

LESSON TEXT—Luke 4:1-23.
GOLDEN TEXT—The Son of Man is
come to seek and to save that which is lost.—Luke 19:10.
REFERENCE MATERIAL—Matt. 4:23;
4:25-28.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Brings a Little
the Gift Back to Life.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus the Great Missionary.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—
Jesus Meeting All Human Needs.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—
Jesus the Great Missionary.

I. The Great Missionary's Field (vv. 1-3).

He went throughout every city and village. The true missionary goes to everybody, for all need the gospel.

1. His Message (v. 1). He preached the glad tidings of the kingdom of God. The gospel message is truly good tidings, for the great King is offering to rebellious sinners salvation through Jesus Christ.

2. His Helpers (v. 1). The twelve apostles were with Him. The missionary should utilize the help of others.

3. Supported by Saved Women (vv. 2, 3). Out of grateful hearts certain women who had experienced the saving power of the gospel ministered unto Jesus of their substance.

II. The Great Missionary Teaching (vv. 4-21).

1. The Parable of the Sower (vv. 4-21). (1) The sower—Jesus (see Matt. 13:27). (2) The seed—the Word of God (v. 11). (3) The kinds of ground (vv. 5-8). (a) Wayside (v. 5). This foot-trodden path pictures the "hard-hearted" upon which no impression can be made. The seed falls upon such ground, and Satan snatches it away as birds pick up the grain from the hard-beaten path. In such cases faith cannot spring up and result in salvation (v. 12). (b) Stony ground (v. 6). This is not stony mixed with earth, but a thin layer of earth on a ledge of rock. The seed falling upon such earth springs up quickly, but the plant soon dies when exposed to the sun. This pictures the hearer who receives with joy the message of the gospel, but when persecution and trials come because of following Christ he gives up and deserts the cause (v. 16). (c) Thorny ground (v. 7). This ground is good, but it has thorns growing in it. The seeds spring up, but the plant has no room to develop. This pictures the Christians who bear no Christian fruit because of being preoccupied with "cares, riches and pleasures" of this life (v. 14). (d) Good ground (v. 8). The seed here springs up and bears fruit for the full measure. This pictures the "good heart" which receives the gospel message and allows it to produce in its life a full harvest of grain (v. 10). The application of this parable is found in verses 16-18.

2. Kinship with Jesus Christ (vv. 21-23). Jesus teaches here that there is a relationship to Him which is closer than the tie of blood.

III. The Great Missionary Doing Wonders (vv. 23-30).

1. Calming the Storm (vv. 23-25). (1) Jesus asleep (v. 23). While the disciples were sailing the ship the Master fell asleep. (2) The frightened disciples (vv. 23, 24). As their ships were filled with water the disciples awoke Jesus with their cry of peril. (3) Jesus rebuked the wind and water (v. 24). At His word there was a great calm. (4) Jesus rebuked the disciples (v. 25). He did not rebuke them for waking Him, but for their lack of faith.

2. Casting Out Demons (vv. 26-30). Demon-possession was in that day, and is today, an awful reality. (1) Jesus met by the demoniac (vv. 26-29). (2) Jesus' question (v. 30). The purpose of this question doubtless was to bring the real man to consciousness—to enable him to distinguish between the demon and himself. (3) The demon's request (vv. 31, 32). They asked permission to enter into a herd of swine. It seems that the demons have a dislike for disembodiment. The devil cannot act without Divine permission. (4) The request granted (vv. 32, 33). Just why this was done we do not know. Since Jesus did it, we must believe that it was wise. (5) The effect upon the people (vv. 34-37). (a) The keepers of the swine went and made it known in the city and country. (b) The people made investigation. They saw the man clothed and in his right mind, and heard the testimony of those who had seen what was done. (c) Besought Jesus to depart from them. (d) Request of the man whom He healed (vv. 38, 39). He desired to be with Jesus. This was natural and right, but his responsibility was to go home and show them what great things God had done for him.

It Should Be Hint Enough.

Simplicity of Christian Faith

By REV. JOHN C. PAGE
Bible Institute, Chicago.

TEXT—But I fear lest by any means, as the serpent beguiled Eve through his subtlety, so your minds should be corrupted from the simplicity that is in Christ.—1 Cor. 11:3.

In the heart of the great apostle there was a certain and well defined fear which finds expression in this text. He was not afraid that his converts would be drawn back into worldliness, superstition, or idolatry, nor did he fear lest under persecution they might deny the name of Christ. Knowing that they were subject to many temptations he feared most of all that which is always the grave possibility in Christian experience, the subtlety of Satan in corrupting the minds of Christian believers from the simplicity that is in Christ.

The apostle knew that through "science, falsely so-called," or "philosophy and vain deceit," the mind of the Christian might be corrupted and the joy of salvation, and the power for testimony be lost.

This fear was caused by the presence of those to whom the apostle refers in the 13th verse of this chapter, as "false prophets; deceitful workers, transforming themselves into the apostles of Christ, and no marvel, for Satan himself is transformed into an angel of light." Therefore it is no great thing if his ministers also be transformed as the ministers of righteousness.

There was in Paul's day and there is in our day, a righteousness proclaimed, which is not "the righteousness of God," but a poor, cheap, inefficient substitute. The first peril of the Christian lies in the possibility of his mind being corrupted from the simplicity that is in Christ in reference to this matter of righteousness. God provides a righteousness for the Christian believer in His Son, who is made unto us righteousness. This righteousness alone is valid before God. It was this that the apostle had in mind when he said, "Not having mine own righteousness but that which is of the faith of Christ, the righteousness which is of God by faith." Concerning this same matter John Bunyan wrote: "The believer in Christ is now, by grace, shrouded under so complete and blessed a righteousness that the law from Mr. Stual can find no fault nor diminution therein." This righteousness in its scope and operation may be regarded as the sum total of all that God commands, requires, approves and provides. No wonder the apostle feared that the Christian might be corrupted from the simplicity and sufficiency that is in Christ, hence the warning lest they be beguiled away.

The mind of the Christian believer must be carefully guarded against error and falsity. In other words, the mind must be renewed day by day. The Word of God is the means of this renewing. The great essential, after a heart experience of God's saving grace, is a mind well informed in Bible truth. There is a measure of peril in being spiritually minded without being scripturally intelligent. Not without significance does the apostle use the figure of a helmet in speaking of salvation, and not without great cause and abiding anxiety on our part does he bid us put on "the helmet of salvation" if we would be strong to stand against the foe.

The simplicity of the Christian faith and its sufficiency to save to the uttermost all who believe, is the result of our Lord's work at Calvary. The sinner's boast is a crucified Savior. Every truly saved sinner knows this. Christ crucified is to the believer the wisdom and power of God. It is the great and outstanding peculiarity of Christianity. It is the one great solution of all problems, for every problem in the world is traceable in some way or other to the problem of sin, the sin of the individual heart. But this boast, this glorying in the Cross is not the dominant note in the religion of today, and herein lies the danger of the believer's mind being led astray. From much that is written and said one would think that it made little difference whether Christ was crucified or not. Some speak lightly and even slightly of individual salvation through faith in a crucified Savior. Others seem to think that humanity can best be handled in bulk. In referring to the salvation of one's own soul a recent writer, speaking of Christ, says: "On his vision of the Kingdom of God the petty, selfish conception of individual salvation dwindles into comparative insignificance. He that seeks thus to save his soul here or hereafter shall lose it." Such a statement is absurd in the light of Christ's own words. For in His estimate of a single soul He placed its value over against the worth of the whole world and said: "What shall I profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" Any scheme or system that overlooks the individual salvation must fail. As another has well said: "Our own souls must be saved, not in order to have a good time in the next world, but because it is the task that first of all confronts us and because we help our neighbors by what we are much more than by what we do."

But Strength Is Always Given.

In old age we understand better how to avert troubles; in youth how to endure them.—Schopenhauer.

Acts With Irresistible Power.

No receptacle has ever been made with sufficient strength to resist the bursting power of frozen water.

Personalities Barred.

We like our friends to be perfectly frank about other people.—Boston Transcript.

It Is Not Automatic.

However much we may wish that we had, however much we may act as though we had—we have not a young people's society that is automatic. It will not run itself. I am wondering if a very positive conviction of the above fact would not help a good many of us materially.

Why, even your self-filling fountain pen does not walk from your fingers, go to the inkwell, drink from the supply there and return to your fingers ready for action. Really, if it is a self-filling pen, ought it not to fill itself when empty without any effort on your part? It will not do it. You must take it to the ink, immerse the pen, press the button, release it, then the ink flows into the pen.

Have we not expected sometimes that if we purchased a pledge and hung it on the wall, drew up a constitution, secured from each a signature, pledged our officers, elected our officers, and appointed our committees, the organization would run itself? It will not do it. You have the machinery, but you haven't the power.

I believe there are committee chairmen who have felt that no meetings were necessary, no prayer, study and work were needed for the very life of the committee. Somehow, the conclusion was arrived at that the committee would run itself—and mistake.

Not long ago I was surprised, and I am not easily surprised, either, by a society president, who, when he had his Executive Committee together, opened the business by asking, "What business have we before us this evening?" He evidently thought that when the members got together the business would be automatically produced. It wasn't. Some business was gradually worked up, but the meeting was a pretty poor one.

Have not leaders too often believed that all that was necessary for a Sunday-evening prayer meeting was a goodly attendance, and an individual appointed as leader, at the table? The result has often shown that the meeting does not run itself, if it is to run smoothly and accomplish something worth while.

Now I am finding a few who think that to make the Efficiency Campaign a success, all you need to do is to purchase the test leaflets, distribute them among the members, buy an Efficiency Campaign chart and hang it on the wall, and then watch the thermometer on the chart go up. It won't go, that is all—unless you do more than just get your machinery together. You must have power.

I think I have emphasized my single point in enough different ways to make it plain.

Organization is a wonderful thing, our committee work and the Efficiency Campaign are very definite, but we are not working with an organization that is automatic. We must put life into it; that means we must put ourselves into it, our best selves. We must study methods, we must plan carefully, pray without ceasing and work indefatigably. Therein is the secret of the success of well-organized societies. The organization must be given life through action upon the part of those who make up the organization.

How Not to Take Cold.

Some persons are subject to frequent colds, while others seldom, if ever, have a cold. You will find that the latter take good care of themselves. They take a shower or cold sponge bath every day in a warm room, avoid over heated rooms, sleep with a window open or partly open, avoid excesses, over eating, becoming over heated and then chilled and getting the feet wet. Then, when they feel the first indication of a cold, they take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy without delay and it is soon over.

Correct opinion on points of morality is a good thing—but it is not righteousness, by any means. Righteousness has been defined as the "condition of soul which causes it to move along the lines of truth and duty." It is right will, not correct knowledge, that tells most for one can know the right, and yet not do it.—Selected.

Good Health.

If you would enjoy good health, keep your bowels regular. No one can reasonably hope to feel well, when constipated. When needed, take Chamberlain's Tablets. They are mild and gentle.

"You, Too, Can Have Beautiful Hair"

LONG, silken, vigorous hair is the birthright of every woman. Worry, poor health, strenuous living, neglect, etc., soon cause hair to weaken and fall out. The scalp must be kept free from infection, the hair roots must be nourished. Discriminating men and women make it a practice to use

regularly to keep the scalp healthy and promote the growth of the hair. They find this splendid preparation very helpful in treating dandruff, falling hair, and other scalp diseases. Washing the hair with Rawleigh's Liquid Shampoo or Shampoo Jelly avoids the dangers of ordinary soaps which in time, weaken and destroy the hair roots. Proper use of Rawleigh's Shampoo and Hair Tonic will aid wonderfully in preserving and beautifying the hair.

Morris Timmons, who has been employed in our American store, has been promoted to a Wilmington American store. The position here has been filled by Will Thomason.

The members of Stonewall Council No. 199 Jr. O. U. A. M. are requested to attend Divine Worship at Mt. Zion Church Sunday morning, Nov. 26th, at 11 o'clock. All Jr. Order men are invited.

The ladies of the Industrial Guild of St. Paul's Episcopal Church will hold their annual bazaar in Dirickson's Hall Tuesday, Nov. 28th. There will be a fine variety of plants and cut flowers. Doors open at 2.

Mabel Derrickson, of Ocean City, attended the dedication of the new bridge at Chincoteague Wednesday, returning home Saturday, after spending the week with relatives and friends.

All persons having jewelry to be mended at H. O. Cropper's will please call for same before Xmas, as I am selling out everything in the jewelry store at cost, and will discontinue the jewelry business after Xmas. This will enable me to give more room and time to my optical business. Thanking all my friends for their patronage and hoping to save them money on their Xmas presents, this, my last Xmas, I am H. O. Cropper.

Taylor--Benson.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Benson was the scene of a beautiful wedding Wednesday evening, the contracting parties being their daughter, Doris, and Thomas Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Taylor.

The pastor of the bride, Rev. S. N. Pilchard, performed the ceremony, in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends.

The house was decorated with chrysanthemums and evergreens. The bride carried white roses and lilies.

Miss Laura Bethards played the Wedding March.

Mr. and Mrs. Taylor were the recipients of expensive and useful presents. They left on the mid-night train from Salisbury to spend a few days in Philadelphia and other places, after which they will return to the home of her parents for the present.

The advance joins their many friends in wishing them health and happiness.

Smack--McCabe.

The Presbyterian Manse was the scene of a very pretty wedding Saturday evening, Nov. 18th, when John Lester Smack, son of Mrs. Georgiana Smack, and Della Mae McCabe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joshua McCabe, both of Berlin, were united in marriage by Rev. J. Russell Verbyrke.

The bride was becomingly attired in a charming dress of white duchess satin.

She was accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Washington McCabe, and Miss Virgie McCabe, a younger sister of the bride. Others who witnessed the ceremony, were Mrs. Sally Smack and daughter, Miss Mabel, and Mrs. Elsie Whittington.

The happy couple will reside near Berlin.

Their host of friends join in wishing them a long and happy married life.

Carey--Hastings.

Minnie G. Hastings, of Berlin, was united in marriage to William L. Carey, of Bishopville, Md., on Thursday evening, Nov. 23rd, at the Presbyterian Manse by the Rev. J. Russell Verbyrke. The wedding was a quiet one.

The happy couple will reside near Berlin.

Chamberlain's Tablets Have Done Her a World of Good.

"Chamberlain's Tablets have done me a world of good," writes Mrs. Ella L. Button, Kirkville, N. Y. "I have recommended them to a number of my friends and all who have used them praise them highly." When troubled with indigestion or constipation, give them a trial and realize for yourself what an excellent medicine it is.

A letter of sympathy was read from St. Paul's Methodist Church (colored) signed by the pastor and secretary.

The Red Men attended, and took part in the services at the grave, in Buckingham Cemetery.

George A. Harrison.

George A. Harrison, of Berlin, Worcester County, Maryland, member of the firm of Harrison's Nurseries, died at the Presbyterian Hospital, Philadelphia, Pa., at 5 o'clock P. M., Saturday, November 18th, 1922.

Mr. Harrison had not been at his best for many months past, but bravely contended against a complication of physical disorders until the end came. His condition was regarded as serious, but not hopeless until the past week. His passing takes from the community and from the business interest in which he was concerned, one, who was not only highly esteemed by all who knew him as a patriotic and loyal citizen, but one whose place will be hard to fill in the chosen occupation of his life.

A large host of intimate friends, as well as business associates keenly mourn their loss. Mr. Harrison was born at Roxana, Delaware, December 9th, 1870, and was the second son of the late Joseph G. Harrison, the founder of the Harrison's Nurseries.

Mr. Harrison has, for more than thirty-five years, been associated with his brother, Senator Orlando Harrison, in the conduct of the business of the Harrison's Nurseries, which is one of the largest, if not the largest, nursery interests in the United States.

In addition to the local nursery business, Mr. Harrison was director and stockholder in several other companies. He was a man who thoroughly loved his life-work; and to him an unusual pride in the condition of his orchards above the financial considerations. It is confidently affirmed that he had supervision of more tree-growing than any other man living.

As a citizen his marked business and executive ability was recognized and honored by his fellow citizens in being their choice as a member of the City Council several times, which position he filled with characteristic earnestness and individuality; and, also, as sheriff of Worcester County, in which capacity he unflinchingly was a strict enforcer of the law and order.

Generally known as "AP" Harrison, he was popular with all who knew him; especially among the many men under his employ. Prompt, efficient, energetic, yet kind and considerate to all. Mr. Harrison was a member of the Stevenson Episcopal Church of Berlin, Md., with which he was united under the pastorate of the Rev. W. Ernest Greenfield. Surviving Mr. Harrison, in the immediate family, are his wife, Mrs. Olivia H. Harrison; two daughters, Mrs. Lee W. Davis and Miss Eunice; two sons, Joseph G. and Burdage. One brother and two sisters survive him: Senator Orlando Harrison; Mrs. W. B. S. Powell, of Ocean City, Md., and Mrs. Achsah H. Purnell, of Berlin, Md.

The funeral service was held in the church of which he was a member, Tuesday, November 21st, at 2:30 P. M., by the pastor, Rev. S. N. Pilchard, and Rev. J. Russell Verbyrke.

A great profusion of beautiful flowers, and friends from far and near, (many more than could enter the church,) proved the love of the people for the deceased, and their sympathy for those left behind.

The stores and school closed for the funeral. The choir sang feelingly "Abide With Me" and "Asleep In Jesus," and Miss Nellie Collins sang two beautiful solos.

A letter of sympathy was read from St. Paul's Methodist Church (colored) signed by the pastor and secretary.

The Red Men attended, and took part in the services at the grave, in Buckingham Cemetery.

The Latest Gleanings From All
Over the State

THINGS SEEN AND HEARD

Cumberland.—George Coffinberger, Martinsburg, a Baltimore and Ohio laborer, was struck by Pennsylvania Railroad engine No. 283 at Cumber, receiving injuries from which he died a few minutes later.

Rockville.—In a suit against Dr. Jessie S. Trumpour of Linden, this county, for $5,000 damages for the loss of a dog, Girard H. Childs, also of Linden, was given judgment for $50 by a jury in the Circuit Court here.

Cumberland.—More than $10,000 has been realized as a result of the Salvation Army Home Service Appeal for $18,347. It was announced at the final meeting of the officers and workers of the campaign teams at the Fort Cumberland Hotel. The workers have about 1000 calls yet to make.

Hagerstown.—Because he refused to fight a forest fire after having been summoned by Forest Warden A. C. McAllister, Clearspring, Hager, prominent Big Pool farmer, was arrested. The testimony of Hager's physician, Dr. J. P. Perry, revealed that he suffered from eczema and bronchial trouble, which rendered him physically unfit to fight fires, and Justice Mason, of Hancock, freed him of the charge.

Bethesda.—Representative Frederick N. Zihlman of the Sixth district delivered an address here in connection with the laying of the cornerstone of the new temple of Bethesda, Lodge No. 204, A. F. & A. M. Presentation of the Washington trophy was made by Charles E. Callahan, Deputy Grand Master of Virginia, at the conclusion of which Percy Clift, worshipping master of Alexandria, Washington Lodge, No. 1, A. F. & A. M., of Alexandria, Va., spoke. Benediction was pronounced by the Rev. James Kirkpatrick, A. L. Pitt and C. H. Becker assisted John R. Dyer in the ceremony.

Cokeville.—The George's Creek Coal Company, Inc., filed a bill in the Circuit Court of Allegany county for an injunction to restrain Francis J. Drum, president District No. 6, United Mine Workers' of America, Midland and Prossburg locals of the United Mine Workers, and 74 individuals from interfering with the affairs of the company, or with employees of the company, or persons who wish to take employment. The papers were sent to Chief Judge A. Hunter Boyd, who is at Annapolis, for an order. A number of men signed with the George's Creek Coal Company to resume work several weeks ago, but it is said that less than half actually took employment, due to intimidation.

Princess Anne.—Jake Downes, for whom a bench warrant was issued at the September term of the Circuit Court for Somerset county, is believed to have adopted a Santa Claus method to make his escape from the jail at Princess Anne, by crawling through the stove hole, climbing up the chimney to the roof of the jail, and then descending by the water spout to the ground. Deputy Sheriff Dryden says he knows of no other way in which Downes could have escaped, as the doors and windows were closed and barred. Downes was in the jail during the afternoon, but when his supper was carried to him, at 6 o'clock, he was missing. He is a small man, weighing only about 110 pounds. Downes is from Salisbury and at the September term of court testified in behalf of the defendant in a burglary case. At the conclusion of his testimony several witnesses testified that he had agreed to accept a sum of money from the defendant to testify as he did. Downes was arrested upon a bench warrant on a charge of perjury and has since been lodged in jail here.

Baltimore.—At the annual meeting of the Eastern Shore Society, held at the Hotel Rennert, officers for the ensuing year were elected. George L. Radcliffe of the Dorchester Chapter was chosen president, succeeding John H. K. Shannahan, and Walter R. Gale was re-elected secretary-treasurer of the association. Phillips Lee Goldsborough again was chosen honorary member of the board of governors. Reports as to the present membership of the society, read by Mr. Gale, showed a marked increase over former years. There now are 600 members. Vice-presidents of the association, nine in number, one representing each county, are as follows: J. Norman Ireland, Kent; William E. Jones, Somerset; George W. Dexter, Talbot; Benjamin W. Woolford, Dr. Arthur G. Barret, Cecil; R. Sonté Rose, Queen Anne's; Frank D. Mills, Worcester; George E. Salsbury, Caroline, and L. Wesley Cooper, Wicomico. An entertaining program was furnished by Lafayette Temple, the humorist. A buffet supper concluded the meeting.

New State Rules Reviewed By Governor.

What reorganization of the State government will mean to Maryland is to be set forth in detail by Governor Ritchie at the annual session of the Governors' Conference, to be held at the Greenbrier Hotel, White Sulphur Springs, Va., December 14, 15 and 16. To this end he has made additional studies of the Reorganization Act, which becomes effective January 1, and arranged a summary showing just what changes will be made in the State's administrative offices.

The summary, in part, is as follows: Department of Finance—This department will be headed by the Comptroller and the Treasurer. The State Auditor, the Bank Commissioner, the Insurance Commissioner, the State Tax Commission and the State Purchasing Agent are all assigned to this department, although these officials all continue to be appointed by the Governor.

The more important administrative changes are as follows: State Auditor's Department—The duties of the State Auditor, which at present cover the accounts of all State departments, State-owned and State-aided institutions, and all Clerks of Court, Registrars of Wills, Sheriffs, State's Attorneys and Collectors of State Taxes, are broadened so as to cover all county treasurers, collectors, fee officers and County Commissioners so far as State taxes and receipts are concerned.

This department has very much more work than its present staff can do, so that the audits are not frequent enough. To obviate this an annual appropriation is made for auditing assistance of nearly $25,000 instead of a little over $10,000, as at present. Payment of Bills—All bills, for merchandise, materials and supplies purchased by any of the departments or institutions of the State are required to be promptly forwarded to the Comptroller for audit and review and it found correct they are to be paid by the Treasurer upon warrant of the Comptroller.

The Comptroller, however, is given the power to exempt from this requirement each purchase as he may, from time to time, determine it is better for the department or institution to pay cash, and to facilitate the payment of bills.

Monthly Accounting for Expenses—Department, institution or other governmental agency is required to account monthly to the Comptroller and pay to the Treasurer all fees and revenues received by it, and the Comptroller credits the same to the agency so accounting; and these funds can be paid out only on warrant in accordance with law.

In order to provide for cases in which such monthly accounting may not be advisable, the Comptroller is authorized with the Governor's approval, to grant exceptions.

Department of Welfare—This department will be headed by the Board of Welfare, consisting of the Director of Welfare, with a salary of $4,000, and four unpaid members, at least one of whom shall be a woman. This board will take over the duties of the State Board of Prison Control, which will be abolished, and thus the new board will manage the Maryland Penitentiary and the House of Correction.

In addition to this, the five institutions for the insane and feeble-minded are placed in this department and are required to report to the Director of Welfare quarterly. These institutions will continue to be managed by their respective boards of management and trustees exactly as at present.

The Lunacy Commission and its secretary are abolished, and in their place there will be a Board of Mental Hygiene, placed in this department, consisting of the Commissioner of Mental Hygiene and six unpaid members, four of whom must be physicians, and at least one of whom must be a woman. The Commissioner is required to have had at least five years experience in the treatment of mental diseases.

Examining and Licensing Boards—There are 19 of these at present. Each will be required to submit annually to the Board of Public Works an estimate of its fees and expenses for the ensuing year, and only such expenses can be incurred as the board approves. This will provide supervision over the expenditures made by these boards, which is now lacking, as the boards at present can use their fees practically as they please.

Roads Ready For Winter.

State Roads Chairman John N. Mackall and Assistant Chief Engineer H. D. Willard returned from an inspection of the State roads on the Eastern Shore. Mr. Mackall reported that they were never in better condition to stand cold weather. The Commission has shut down on all construction work for the winter, with the exception of a few jobs where there are only short stretches to complete.

The last link in the York road, connecting Maryland with the Pennsylvania State roads system, will be opened for travel within a few days.

POULTRY

Improvement Made in Flock by Getting Rid of All Those Birds Except Most Prolific Layers.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Examining a Hen to Find if She is Laying—Measuring Distance Between Pelvic Bones.

This late monitor, selected from a flock of 100 Rhode Island Reds in the fall of 1920 laid seven more eggs per bird during their second year than the original flock as a whole. They were used as breeders the following spring, and the first Red pullets to commence laying in the fall of 1921 were found to be the offspring of these late-monitoring birds. Their pullets in a period of seven months have already averaged about two dozen eggs per bird more than the original flock.

But it is not alone in number of eggs that the late-monitors progeny excel, but also in the value of the product, as the distribution was more even, a much larger proportion of the eggs being laid during the winter months. In the last seven months the daughters of these late-monitors set a record for the number of eggs laid, but the value of these products was not as high as the late-monitors, about 15 per cent more during the same period. It is expected that this margin will increase during the next few months.

FEEDING METHODS FOR EGGS

Methods Adopted by California Community Result in Better Health of Laying Flocks.

A mortality of less than 10 per cent for the year among hens entered in the egg-laying contest of Sonoma county, California, last year is reported to the United States Department of Agriculture by local extension workers, who worked out the feeding formula used in the contest. The health record of the hens entered and their laying average of 178 eggs per hen for the 364 days have led many poultrymen to adopt the management and feeding methods used in the contest. It is estimated that 50 per cent of the poultrymen of the county have changed their method of feeding during the last five years, due to extension work influence.

TRADE-MARK ON FRESH EGGS

New Jersey Organization Making Use of Small Sticker on Produce Sold by Members.

A small trade-mark sticker is now put on all eggs sold by members of the North Haledon Leghorn club in Passaic county, N. J. This organization was formed as a result of a meeting of poultrymen of the community with the agricultural extension agent to discuss the development of the poultry industry in that section. Each member pays two cents per bird owned, 8,000 birds being pledged at the first meeting of the club. All members use the trade-mark and guarantee eggs sold under it.

Water is almost as important as feed in egg production.

A large red comb indicates health and egg production.

Males in pens reduce the total egg yield for the year.

Early maturing pullets usually make good egg producers.

Ninety eggs pay cost. The 150-egg hen is worth six 100-egg hens.

Half blue ornament and half hard or tallow makes a good louse killer.

OLD GOODIES.

Sally Lunn was a famous pastry cook in England and she was the one who originated the hot bread of that name. This was a favorite breakfast bread of George Washington.

Sally Lunn.—Take one quart of flour, four eggs, one-half cupful of melted butter or shortening, one-half a yeast cake softened in one-fourth of a cupful of water, one teaspoonful of salt, and two tablespoonfuls of sugar. Beat the eggs very light, add one cupful of milk, and beat again. Stir well and beat in the flour. When perfectly smooth let rise in a well buttered bowl. When well risen beat down, let rise again, beat down, then put into the greased muffin pans in which they are to bake. When very light bake in a moderately hot oven. Serve hot, breaking them open to butter them.

Sweet Potato Pudding.—Parboil, peel, and when cold grate enough sweet potatoes to weigh a pound. Cream one-half cupful of butter with three-fourths of a cupful of sugar, add the beaten yolks of four eggs, a teaspoonful each of cinnamon and nutmeg, the rind and juice of an orange, three tablespoonfuls of any fruit juice, fold in the whites of two eggs well beaten. Mix well, put into a buttered baking dish and bake about twenty minutes. Cover with a r-riquette prepared with the remaining egg whites. Serve hot.

Lee Sponge Cake.—Prepare a sponge cake and bake in layers. For the filling beat until stiff two egg whites, add one pound of pulverized sugar, the grated rind and juice of an orange and the juice of half a lemon. Spread the mixture on the layers before they are cold.

Hill Cookies.—Take four eggs, one pound of sugar, one-half pound of butter, mace to flavor, one teaspoonful of soda and two of cream of tartar. Add flour to make a soft dough. Roll very thin and bake in a quick oven.

VICTIM OF PRACTICAL JOKE

Rather Mean Trick, Credited to Member of Washington Club, Played on Business Man.

They are telling a story around the Racquet club of a practical joke played upon an out-of-town visitor who is most punctilious in the manner in which he draws all the contracts for the company of which he is president. It appears that a short time ago he came to Washington prepared to close a deal involving a small amount of money. When the papers were finally typed he scanned them carefully, and when about to affix his signature he was asked by one of the other parties of the deal to use his fountain pen, as he wanted to keep it as a souvenir of the occasion. Rather appreciating the compliment, he did so, and that night entrained for Boston. A day or two after his arrival home he had occasion to look up the contract, and found, to his dismay, that there were no signatures to the agreement. His Washington friends had simply made him use a fountain pen that was filled with disappearing ink. When the box was explained to him by wire he sent back the following message: "Returning with my own ink. The dinner is on me."—Washington Star.

Small, but Powerful.
Germs are not little animals. They are tiny plants, the smallest living things known. They are sometimes called bacteria or microbes. You might have some idea of the size of a germ if you could take a grain of sand and split it into a million pieces. Of course, some germs are larger than others, but the largest cannot be seen without the aid of a powerful microscope.

Agas of Common Trees.
The heart of the common oak, it is said, begins to rot at the age of 200 years, so even when an oak is undisturbed it rarely lives much beyond 500 years. A larch may live 275 years, a silver fir 425, and a pine over 500 years. The yew has a remarkable power of resisting time's ravages, and may survive for 1,000 years or more.

What do you look for?

When you buy shoes, what is uppermost in your mind, style or comfort? You probably suppose that most people think of style—the looks of a shoe.

Nearly everybody wants good-looking shoes, that's true, but most people are looking for comfortable shoes.

Among women, the so-called fashion shoes are bought by only fifteen per cent. Eighty-five women out of one hundred think of comfort first.

Enterprise Started in New York to Teach Art of Elocution to Preachers.

Ingersoll used to say that on the stage they pretend to be natural, and
in the pulpit it is natural to pretend.
It was a wicked saying when printed
without the winning smile; but what
theater school organized to teach
preachers, not how to act, but how to
use their voices to the best advantage?
Such an enterprise is now afoot in
New York city, conducted by Evelyn
Hall, an actress, under Theater school
auspices—which proves that the melancholy Preacher of Jerusalem was
wrong when he said there is nothing
new under the sun. Nor is it a thing
to be laughed at. Many a good sermon is spoiled because the preacher
does not know how to deliver it. Surely, if the preacher has the best of
good news to tell, he ought to use
every aid of art to tell it. Joseph
Parker learned much from his friend,
Sir Henry Irving, and Beecher used
to study Edwin Booth—asking him to repeat the Lord's Prayer, that he
might hear it in a manner worthy of
its depth and beauty. As between an
untaught voice and an artificial elocution
there is little to choose; but
without going to either extreme there
is an art of using the voice which
brings out its natural quality and
power, and it should be employed in
the service of the Gospel.—Christian Century.

More Than He Bargained For

By H. LOUISE RAYBOLD

"I don't care to marry a coward!" The words flashed forth from the white lips of an imperious girl who crouched in the stern of the catboat and held out a single-stoned ring to the man who faced her astounded.

"But, Millicent, I'm not afraid for myself. Can't you understand? It's of you I'm thinking." Wade Norris had never seen his fiancée in a temper before, and the experience was unpleasantly disconcerting and disillusioning. Then he, too, set his lips. "We are going back, nevertheless."

"Am I to understand that if I weren't here you would keep on?" demanded the girl.

Wade threw a glance at the darkening sky above, then out toward the horizon, where a sharply defined black line speckled with white indicated an advancing wind. "No, I hardly think I would," he murmured frankly.

"There, you see?" Her tone was cruelly triumphant. Did she really suppose that caution was synonymous with cowardice? Millicent herself was an up-to-date little daredevil, but surely that didn't justify his taking her into an undoubted danger, and for so unimportant an affair as a dance at Kimball Point.

Some moments later, Wade assisted a silent girl to the dock and, himself silent, watched her run up the path to the Shermans' summer home. Then, angrily, he hauled up the sail again. There was nothing left to do but to show her how little afraid he personally was. Straight into the white squall he careened and Millicent, turning at the mercy of the waves, ing, perhaps reluctantly, on the top step saw the Waterbird scudding seaward at an ominous pitch.

Wade was too much occupied in managing his small craft to worry very much about what the outcome of the wild ride would be. Long ago he had passed the position, where he would naturally have tacked for Kimball's Point and nothing now intervened between him and the open sea. Momentarily expecting the cessation of what, at worst, he had supposed to be a summer squall, he lifted his eyes at last to the west, only to be dumbfounded at the solidarity of the cloudbank there. Something chill and ominous about the wind at the same moment forced itself upon his attention.

This was more than he had bargained for. He must swing about at the earliest possible moment. But before that moment came, catastrophe had overtaken him. A sudden, violent gust, a shiver of the entire boat, and the masts snapped in two, dragging the sail in the water like the wing of a wounded bird.

Wade all his life afterward remembered that night of agony, tossing at the mercy of the waves, drenched with spray, half frozen. Morning brought cessation of the storm but no hope, for the sun rose upon a shoreless waste of water. Nevertheless, Wade pluckily set to work with the sculling oar, partly to get some warmth into him, partly in a desperate effort to raise land or a lighthouse.

Well on toward noon, when Wade was feeling the effects of his long fast and unusual exertions, he caught a glimpse far away of what was undoubtedly a boat. Wade wondered if, after all, Millicent had seen his rock-less departure and if, when he failed to appear again, she would have started out a searching party. Very likely the boat he had sighted was looking for him.

Anxiously he waited, though at one time its crew had not observed his frenzied signaling. Then, suddenly, it swerved directly toward him.

Meanwhile Millicent had spent a wakeful night, more restless by the storm without as well as the reproaches at her own heart. To be sure, she expected Wade had many hours before landed safely at Kimball's Point and a little sheepishly she hoped he would come around in the morning and apologize for scaring her half to death.

But morning brought no Wade. Toward night Millicent casually called his hotel, only to learn that he had not come in and that the Waterbird had not been docked that night. Then it was that racing boats sped in his direction, only to report absolute failure.

Days later word came in of a wrecked catboat found drifting twenty miles off shore, but by that time Millicent had given up hope and mourned Wade as driven to his death by her perversity.

As a matter of fact, Wade had taken on the adventure of his life. The boat so opportunely met was one of those daring craft which, now and again, in the spirit of Joshua Slocum and his Spray, set out to cross the ocean. Only a forty-footer, she was stanch, adequately equipped, seaworthy.

This man they had come upon was a problem. With no wireless, his rescue could not be signalled. On the other hand, to make a harbor would be to lose valuable time.

And Wade, reflecting that the only person for whom he held the slightest interest in the world had just returned his ring and called him a coward, replied that to do so would be a great pleasure.

Weeks later Millicent, a thinner, more chastened Millicent than the imperious girl of old, listlessly unfolded the morning paper. Suddenly she gasped and her face slowly whitened. The shock of it was tremendous.

Forty-footer arrives at Cowes with crew of six, among them Wade Norris, thought to be drowned. Wade was alive! Wade was alive! At first the realization of that miraculous fact was enough for Millicent.

cent. Each, little by little, the somber thought claimed her attention that she had little right to rejoice. Suddenly to find that she had not been, in effect, his murderer, did not lessen her responsibility.

Millicent let the cable fall into her lap and her eyes were starry. Fate was being better to her than she deserved.

Tact of Lord Rosebery Shown in Way He Avoided Offending Well-Meaning Individual.

An incident in connection with the visit of Lord Rosebery, the former British premier, to Oxford some years ago to unveil Lord Salisbury's bust is told by the Rt. Rev. Sir David Hunter Blair in his "New Medley of Memories." He says: "I had repeated to his Oxford hostess a story told me by the principal of a Scottish university, of how Lord Rosebery, engaged to speak at a great liberal meeting in a northern city, found himself previously dining with a fanatically zealous provost, who provided for his guests no other liquid refreshment than orangeade in large glass jugs. As this depressing beverage circulated, the liberal leader's spirits fell almost to zero, and it was by the advice of my friend the principal that, between the dinner and the meeting, he drove en route to a hotel, and quaffed a pint of dry champagne before mounting the platform and making a speech of fiery eloquence, which the good provost attributed entirely to the orangeade. The lady, unknown to me, passed on the delightful story to one of the Union committee, who took it very seriously; the result being that when Lord Rosebery reached the committee room, just before the inauguration ceremony, a grave young man whispered to him confidentially: 'There are tea and coffee here; but I have got your pint of champagne behind that screen; will you come and have it now?' (Well, do you know?) said the great man, with his usual tact, 'I think for once in a way I will have a cup of coffee.'

Birds Deserve Better Treatment. Birds are actually the most helpful animal friend which man has, destroying the insect and rodent pests which devour his crops, and acting as scavengers to prevent the dangerous increase of carrion or filth. Yet most of them look upon man as an enemy and a stranger, and certainly not without cause, for have not birds watched the development of mammals, watched them spread throughout the earth, watched entire species rise, rule and perish, watch the multitudes of changes of a million years? Mammals are strangers, newcomers upon the face of the earth, often deadly enemies of the birds, which fear them because of these things.

Many species of birds are to be found within a radius of New York. At the Museum of Natural History there is a special division of such birds, and they are so numerous and diversified that it is generally supposed.

Screech owls, one of the smallest and commonest of owls of eastern North America, are among them. The owl's peculiar quavering notes may often be heard on moonlight nights in the country and where there are trees in town. It nests in hollow trees, either in the orchard or forest, and lays four to six white eggs, usually in April in the latitude of New York; it also nests freely in bird boxes. The present species is remarkable for being dichromatic, presenting two phases of plumage—the one gray, the other red, irrespective of sex, age or season.

Shrewd Mining Promoter Knew Just How Long Women Would Keep Secret He Imparted.

The psychology of selling was probably never applied better than in the disposal of the Weissmann Mining company during the copper boom of 1906 and 1907. Mr. Weissmann, who owned all the stock, gave a lawn party in the western city where he lived at the time. To this affair he invited all the men in the town who had any money worth his while, as well as their wives.

Taking aside the ladies one at a time, he confided to them over a glass of lemonade the following:

"I would like to see you make a little pin money without any risk, if I could trust you not to betray my confidence by talking your husband into my plans. I don't mind you buying 100 shares of Weissmann Mining stock, on which you will make 1,000 per cent, but if you should divulge this to your husband he might buy several thousand shares and interfere with my plans in the market."

Of course, every lady gave her sacred promise, and broke it before she went to bed.

Weissmann Mining, which was listed on an eastern market, was sold to the last share before noon the next day. —Wall Street Journal.

Sipping in Saskatoon. Recently in Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, there was a home-brew contest for women only.

And all of these women were married women.

There is a law in Saskatchewan which permits the making of home brew only, and the women are given licenses to allow them to indulge in this industry. There is keen competition among the ladies.

What of the women who are not married? Would it not be worth the time of any ambitious and thirsty young man to seek these out so they could be married ladies and home-brew makers?

Doubtless it would—but the only unmarried ladies the tourist could find were in short skirts because of youth and not fashion—Exchange.

Make Life Hard to Bear For Many Berlin Women.

Too many women mistake their pains and aches for troubles peculiar to the sex. More often disordered kidneys are causing the aching back, dizzy spells, headache and irregular urination. Kidney weakness becomes dangerous if neglected. Use a time-tried kidney remedy—Doan's Kidney Pills. Hosts of people testify to their merit. Read a Berlin case:

Mrs. J. Edward Brittingham, Washington St., says: "I recommend Doan's Kidney Pills at every opportunity. I had kidney complaint and my back ached a great deal. I often had to neglect my work. Headaches were frequent and my kidneys didn't act right. Rheumatic pains settled in my joints and for several days I couldn't take a step and suffered awfully. I knew Doan's Kidney Pills had helped others so I tried them. They were just what I needed and soon the rheumatic pains left, my back was free from pain and my kidneys were in good order."

The Public's Interest In Telephone Earnings

The public is directly interested in the quality of service furnished by this Company and what it pays for such service.

It follows then that the public is concerned in the Company's earnings, because if the earnings are inadequate, the service cannot be maintained at a high standard. On the other hand, if earnings are excessive, the public is entitled to lower rates.

The aim of this Company has always been to charge rates that will yield a fair but not excessive return on the investment. This is necessary to attract the new capital required to keep step with the growth and progress of the community.

When we were forced finally to seek relief through increased rates, we did not ask the Public Service Commission to approve rates high enough to yield a fair return. We hoped that the future would bring reductions in costs and that increased efficiency would be obtained. This, together with moderate increases in rates, we hoped would result within a reasonable time in providing sufficient revenues to yield a fair return.

The Commission, in authorizing our rate increases, stated that the new rates would yield a return of about 5.3% on the value of our property.

During the two years that have passed since these rates were established, we have directed every energy toward furnishing the best possible service and toward the effecting of economies so that our investors might be afforded the return to which they are entitled.

In the first nine months of this year, our earnings have been at the rate of 5.7% a year on our investment in Maryland.

The return is still inadequate, being less than the legal interest rate. But we have made progress and this gives us confidence that with our present rates we can, by constantly increasing efficiency and persistent economy, earn a return sufficient to attract the new capital necessary to permit us to expand our system.

Glacier "Got a Move."

Chased by a glacier which suddenly came to activity after having been inactive for years, a trio of Minnesota geological student climbers hurriedly abandoned camp. The students went to Glacier National park to study Heaven's Peak glacier, pitching their camp 50 feet from the end of the ice wall. They were awakened by a dull rumbling and with daylight they discovered a widening crack some 200 feet back on the glacier and noted that the wall of ice was advancing. They hurriedly moved and half an hour later the ice had covered their camp site. The ice moved about 200 feet down the valley, advancing about one foot a minute.

Island Now Sheep Pasture.

The island of Cuttyhunk, in Buzzard's Bay, is to be turned into a sheep pasture. The head of the American Woolen Company is now the owner of the greater part of Cuttyhunk, and this is a new venture of his in turning the island pastures over to sheep. Neighboring islands have long been used for sheep pasturing, the animals running wild for the greater part of the year, with a little extra feeding during the winter.

Justice Above All.

If the thing is unjust, thou hast not succeeded though bonfires blazed from north to south and bells rang and the just thing lay trampled out of sight to all mortal eyes—a seemingly abolished and annihilated thing.—Exchange.

Testing Wooden Crates.

The forest products laboratory of the forest service, United States Department of Agriculture, was recently called upon to test wooden crates that would be satisfactory for carrying army aircraft bombs. Seven types of crates were tried in the experiment and one type was evolved that would not only carry 300-pound bombs, but also 1,500-pound bombs.

A Poor Combination.

A brief commencement story is told about the governor of Maine who, while addressing the students at Bowdoin college, said, "Your spacious campus with its beautiful garbages of green," etc. Evidently he started to say "garment," then switched on to "herbage," but the combination that resulted was hardly a happy one.—Boston Transcript.

LESSON TEXT—Luke 9:1-3.
GOLDEN TEXT—The Son of Man is
come to seek and to save that which is lost.—Luke 19:10.

REFERENCE MATTER.—Matt. 4:23; 9:12-13.

Girl Back to Life.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus the Great Missionary.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—
Jesus Meeting All Human Needs.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—
Jesus the Ideal Missionary.

Jesus the Ideal Missionary.

1. The Great Missionary's Field (vv. 1-3).

He went throughout every city and village. The true missionary goes to everybody, for all need the gospel.

2. His Message (vv. 1, 2). He preached the glad tidings of the kingdom of God. The gospel message is truly good tidings, for the great King is offering to rebellious sinners salvation through Jesus Christ.

3. His Helpers (v. 1). The twelve apostles were with Him. The missionary should utilize the help of others.

4. Supported by Saved Women (vv. 2, 3). Out of grateful hearts certain women who had experienced the saving power of the gospel ministered unto Jesus of their substance.

5. The Great Missionary Teaching
(vv. 4-21).

1. The Parable of the Sower (vv. 4-21). (1) The sower—Jesus (see Matt.
13:27). (2) The seed—the Word of God (v. 11). (3) The kinds of ground (vv. 5-8). (a) Wayside (v. 5). This foot-trodden path pictures the hard-hearted upon which no impression can be made. The preached word finds no entrance, and Satan snatches it away
as birds pick up the grain from the hard-beaten path. In such cases faith cannot spring up and result in salvation (v. 12). (b) Stony ground (v. 6).
This is not stones mixed with earth,
but a thin layer of earth on a ledge of rock. The seed falling upon such earth springs up quickly, but the plant soon dies when exposed to the sun. This pictures the hearer who receives with joy the message of the gospel, but when persecution and trials come because of following Christ he gives up and deserts the cause (v. 13). (c) Thorny ground (v. 7). This ground is good, but it has thorns growing in it.
The seeds spring up, but the plant has no room to develop. This pictures the Christians who bear no Christian fruit because of being preoccupied with "cares, riches and pleasures" of this life (v. 14). (d) Good ground (v. 8).
The seed here springs up and bears fruit to the full measure. This pictures the true hearer who receives the message and allows it to produce in his life a full harvest of grain (v. 10).
The sowing of this parable is found in verses 12-15.

2. Kingdom with Jesus Christ (vv. 16-21). Jesus teaches here that there is a relationship to Him which is closer than the tie of blood.

III. The Great Missionary Doing
Wonders (vv. 22-25).

1. Calming the Storm (vv. 22-25).
(1) Jesus asleep (v. 23). While the disciples were sailing the ship the Master fell asleep. (2) The frightened disciples (vv. 23, 24). As their ships were filled with water the disciples awoke Jesus with their cry of peril. (3) Jesus rebuked the wind and water (v. 24). At His word there was a great calm. (4) Jesus rebuked the disciples (v. 25). He did not rebuke them for waking Him, but for their lack of faith.

2. Casting out Demons (vv. 26-30).
Demon-possession was the day, and is today, an awful reality. (1) Jesus met by the demoniac (vv. 26-29).
(2) Jesus' question (v. 30). The purpose of this question doubtless was to bring the real man to consciousness—to enable him to distinguish between the demon and himself. (3) The demon's request (vv. 31, 32). They asked permission to enter into a herd of swine.
It seems that the demons have a dislike for disembodiment. The devil cannot act without Divine permission.
(4) The request granted (vv. 32, 33).
Just why this was done we do not know. Since Jesus did it we must believe that it was wise. (5) The effect upon the people (vv. 34-37). (a) The keepers of the swine went and made it known in the city and country. (b)
The people were amazed. They saw the man clothed and in his right mind, and heard the testimony of those who had seen what was done.
(c) Besought Jesus to depart from them. (6) Request of the man whom He healed (vv. 38, 39). He desired to go with Jesus. This was natural and right, but his responsibility was to go home and show them what great things
God had done for him.

Pure Religion.

Pure religion and undoubted before
God and the Father is this, to visit the widow and the fatherless in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted
from the world.—James 1:27.

Aiding the Weak.

We then that are strong ought to bear the infirmities of the weak, and not to please ourselves.—Romans 15:1.

The Wise Man.

A wise man will make more opportunities than he finds.—Bacon.

Safe Rule to Observe.

It is a good and safe rule to sojourn in every place as if you meant to spend your life there, never mistaking an opportunity of doing a kindness, or speaking a true word, or making a friend.—John Ruskin.

It Should Be Hint Enough.

When people begin to ask us how much we weigh, there comes over us a sad and solemn feeling that it's about time to cut down on the starchy stuff.

Simplicity of Christian Faith

By REV. JOHN C. PAGE
Bible Institute, Chicago.

TEXT.—But I fear lest by any means,
as the serpent beguiled Eve through his subtlety, so your minds should be corrupted from the simplicity that is in Christ.—II Cor. 11:3.

In the heart of the great apostle
there was a certain and well defined fear which finds expression in this text. He was not afraid that his converts would be drawn back into worldliness, superstition, or idolatry, nor did he fear lest under persecution they might deny the name of Christ.

Knowing that they were subject to many temptations he feared most of all that which is always the grave possibility in Christian experience, the subtlety of Satan in corrupting the minds of Christian believers
from the simplicity that is in Christ.

The apostle knew that through "science, falsely so-called," or "philosophy and vain deceit," the mind of the Christian might be corrupted and the joy of salvation, and the power for testimony be lost.

This fear was caused by the presence of those to whom the apostle refers in the 13th verse of this chapter, as "false prophets; deceitful workers, transforming themselves into the apostles of Christ, and no marvel, for Satan himself is transformed into an angel of light." Therefore it is no great thing if his ministers also be transformed as the ministers of righteousness.

There was in Paul's day and there is in our day, a righteousness proclaimed, which is not "the righteousness of God," but a poor, cheap, inefficient substitute. The first peril of the Christian lies in the possibility of his mind being corrupted from the simplicity that is in Christ in reference to this matter of righteousness. God provides a righteousness for the Christian believer in His Son, who is made unto us righteousness. This righteousness alone is valid before God. It was this that the apostle had in mind when he said, "Not having mine own righteousness but that which is of the faith of Christ, the righteousness which is of God by faith." Concerning this same matter John Bunyan wrote: "The believer
in Christ is now, by grace, shrouded
under so complete and blessed a righteousness that the law from Mt.
Sinai can find no fault nor diminution therein." This righteousness in its scope and operation may be regarded as the sum total of all that God commands, requires, approves and provides. No wonder the apostle feared that Christian believers might be corrupted from the simplicity that is in Christ, hence the warning lest their minds be transformed as the minds of the unbeliever. The Christian believer must be carefully guarded against error and falsity. In other words,
the mind must be renewed day by day.
The Word of God is the means of this renewing. The great essential, after a heart experience of God's saving grace, is a mind well informed in Bible truth. There is a measure of peril in being spiritually minded without being scripturally intelligent. Not without significance does the apostle
use the figure of a helmet in speaking of salvation, and not without great cause and abiding anxiety on our part does he bid us put on "the helmet of salvation" if we would be strong to stand against the foe.

The simplicity of the Christian faith
and its sufficiency to save to the utter-most all who believe, is the result of our Lord's work at Calvary. The sinner's boast is a crucified Savior.
Every truly saved sinner knows this.
Christ crucified is to the believer the wisdom and power of God. It is the great and outstanding peculiarity of Christianity. It is the one great solution of all problems, for every problem
in the world is traceable to some way
or other to the problem of sin, the sin of the individual heart. But this boast, this glorying in the Cross is not the dominant note in the religion of today, and herein lies the danger
of the believer's mind being led astray.
From much that is written and said
one would think that it made little difference whether Christ was crucified or not. Some speak lightly and even slightingly of individual salvation
through faith in a crucified Savior.
Others, mean to think that humanity can best be handled in bulk. In referring to the salvation of one's own soul a recent writer, speaking of Christ, says: "In His vision of the Kingdom of God the petty, selfish conception of individual salvation dwindle into comparative insignificance. He that seeks thus to save his soul here or hereafter shall lose it." Such a statement is absurd in the light of Christ's own words. For in His estimate of a single soul He placed its value over against the worth of the whole world and said: "What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" Any scheme or system that overlooks the individual salvation must fail. As another has well said: "Our own souls must be saved, not in order to have a good time in the next world, but because it's the task that first of all confronts us and because we help our neighbors by what we are much more than by what we do."

to avert troubles in youth how to endure them.—Schopenhauer.

It Is Not Automatic.

However much we may wish that we had, however much we may not as though we had—we have not a young people's society that is automatic. It will not run itself. I am wondering if a very positive conviction of the above fact would not help a good many of us materially.

Why, even your self-filling fountain pen does not walk from your fingers, go to the inkwell, drink from the supply there and return to your fingers ready for action. Really, if it is a self-filling pen, ought it not to fill itself when empty without any effort on your part? It will not do it. You must take it to the ink, immerse the pen, press
the button, release it, then the ink flows into the pen.

Have we not expected sometimes that if we purchased a pledge and hung it on the wall, drew up a constitution, secured from each a signed pledge card, elected our officers,
and appointed our committees, the organization would run itself? It will never do it. You have the machinery, but you haven't the power.

I believe there are committee
chairmen who have felt that no
meetings were necessary, no prayer, study and work were needed for the very life of the committee. Somehow, the conclusion was arrived at that the committee would run itself—sad mistake.

Not long ago I was surprised, and I am not easily surprised, either,
by a society president, who, when he had his Executive Committee together, opened the business by asking, "What business have we before us this evening?" He evidently thought that when the members got together the business
would be automatically produced.
It wasn't. Some business was gradually worked up, but the meeting was a pretty poor one.

Have not leaders too often believed that all that was necessary for a Sunday-evening prayer meeting was a goodly attendance, and an individual appointed as leader, at the table? The result has often shown that the meeting does not run itself, if it is to run smoothly
and accomplish something worth while.

Now I am finding a few who think that to make the Efficiency Campaign a success, all you need to do is to purchase the test leaflets, distribute them among the members, buy an Efficiency Campaign chart and hang it on the wall, and then watch the thermometer on the chart go up. It won't go, that is all—unless you do more than just get your machinery together. You must have power.

I think I have emphasized my single point in enough different ways to make it plain.

Organization is a wonderful thing,
our committee work and the Efficiency Campaign are very definite,
but we are not working with an organization that is automatic. We must put life into it; that means we must put ourselves into it, for best selves. We must study methods, we must plan carefully, pray
without ceasing and work indefatig-ably. Therein is the secret of the success of well-organized societies.
The organization must be given life through action upon the part of those who make up the organization.

Surely our organization is not automatic.—Forward.

How Not to Take Cold.

Some persons are subject to frequent colds, while others seldom, if ever, have a cold. You will find that the latter take good care of themselves. They take a shower or cold sponge bath every day in a warm room, avoid overheated rooms, sleep with a window open or partly open, avoid excesses, over-eating, becoming over heated and then chilled and getting the feet wet. Then,
when they feel the first indication of a cold, they take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy without delay and it is soon over.

Correct opinion on points of morality is a good thing—but it is not righteousness, by any means. Righteousness has been defined as the "condition of soul which causes
it to move along the lines of truth and duty." It is right will, not correct knowledge, that tells most,
for one can know the right, and yet not do it.—Selected.

Good Health.

If you would enjoy good health, keep your bowels regular. No one can reasonably hope to feel well, when constipated. When needed, take Chamberlain's Tablets. They are mild and gentle.

"You, Too, Can Have Beautiful Hair"

LONG, silken, vigorous hair is the highlight of every woman.
Worry, poor health, strenuous living, neglect, etc., soon cause hair to weaken and fall out. The scalp must be kept free from infection, the hair roots must be nourished.
Discriminating men and women make it a practice to use

Taylor--Benson.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Benson was the scene of a beautiful wedding Wednesday evening, the contracting parties being their daughter, Doris, and Thomas Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Taylor.

The pastor of the bride, Rev. S. N. Pilchard, performed the ceremony, in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends.

Miss Laura Bethards played the Wedding March.

Mr. and Mrs. Taylor were the recipients of expensive and useful presents. They left on the midnight train from Salisbury to spend a few days in Philadelphia and other places after which they will return to the home of her parents for the present.

The Advance joins their many friends in wishing them health and happiness.

Smack--McCabe.

The Presbyterian Manse was the scene of a very pretty wedding Saturday evening, Nov. 18th, when John Lester Smack, son of Mrs. Georgiana Smack, and Della Mae McCabe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joshua McCabe, both of Berlin, were united in marriage by Rev. J. Russell Verbycke.

The bride was becomingly attired in a charming dress of white duchesse satin.

She was accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Washington McCabe, and Miss Virginia McCabe, a younger sister of the bride. Others who witnessed the ceremony were Mrs. Sally Smack and daughter, Miss Mabel, and Mrs. Elsie Whittington.

The happy couple will reside near Berlin.

Their host of friends join in wishing them a long and happy married life.

Carey--Hastings.

Minnie G. Hastings, of Berlin, was united in marriage to William L. Carey, of Bishopville, Md., on Thursday evening, Nov. 23rd, at the Presbyterian Manse by the Rev. J. Russell Verbycke. The wedding was a quiet one.

A Timely Suggestion.

This is the season of the year when the prudent and careful housewife replenishes her supply of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is almost certain to be needed before the winter is over and results are much more prompt and satisfactory when it is kept at hand and given as soon as the first indication of a cold appears and before it has become settled in the system. There is no danger in giving it to children as it contains no opium or other harmful drug.

M., Saturday, November the eighteenth. Mr. Harrison had not been at his best for many months past, but bravely contended against a complication of physical disorders until the end came. His condition was regarded as serious, but not hopeless until the past week. His passing takes from the community and from the business interest in which he was concerned, one, who was not only highly esteemed by all who knew him as a patriotic and loyal citizen, but one whose place will be hard to fill in the chosen occupation of his life. A large host of intimate friends, as well as business associates keenly mourn their loss. Mr. Harrison was born at Roxana, Delaware, December 9th, 1870, and was the second son of the late Joseph G. Harrison, the founder of the Harrison's Nurseries. Mr. Harrison has, for more than thirty-five years, been associated with his brother, Senator Orlando Harrison, in the conduct of the business of the Harrison's Nurseries, which is one of the largest, if not the largest, nursery interest in the United States. In addition to the local nursery business, Mr. Harrison was director and stockholder in several other companies. He was a man who thoroughly loved his life-work; and to a unusual pride in the condition of his orchards above the financial considerations. It is confidently affirmed that he had supervision of more tree-growing than any other man living.

As a citizen his marked business and executive ability was recognized and honored by his fellow citizens in being their choice as a member of the City Council several times, which position he filled with characteristic earnestness and individuality; and, also, as sheriff of Worcester County, in which capacity he unflinchingly was a strict enforcer of the law and order. Generally known as "Al" Harrison, he was popular with all who knew him; especially among the many men under his employ. Prompt, efficient, energetic, yet kind and considerate to all. Mr. Harrison was a member of the Stevenson Episcopal Church of Berlin, Md., with which he was united under the pastorate of the Rev. W. Ernest Greenfield. Surviving Mr. Harrison, in the immediate family, are his wife, Mrs. Olivia H. Harrison; two daughters, Mrs. Lee W. Davis and Miss Eunice; two sons, Joseph G. and Burbage One brother and two sisters survive him: Senator Orlando Harrison; Mrs. W. B. S. Powell, of Ocean City, Md., and Mrs. Achsah H. Purnell, of Berlin, Md. The funeral service was held in the church of which he was a member, Tuesday, November 21st, at 2:30 P. M., by the pastor, Rev. S. N. Pilchard, and Rev. J. Russell Verbycke.

A great profusion of beautiful flowers, and friends from far and near, (many more than could enter the church,) proved the love of the people for the deceased, and their sympathy for those left behind.

The stores and school closed for the funeral. The choir sang feelingly "Abide With Me" and "Asleep in Jesus," and Miss Nellie Collins sang two beautiful solos.

A letter of sympathy was read from St. Paul's Methodist Church (colored) signed by the pastor and secretary.

The Red Men attended, and to part in the services at the grave, in Buckingham Cemetery.

Card Of Thanks

Mrs. Olivia H. Harrison and family, together with Senator Orlando Harrison, sisters and other relatives, desire to express their sincere appreciation and thanks to the many friends who expressed their sympathy and rendered such loving service in the hour of their deep bereavement.

Taylor--Renson.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Benson was the scene of a beautiful wedding Wednesday evening, the contracting parties being their daughter, Doris, and Thomas Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Taylor.

The pastor of the bride, Rev. S. N. Pilchard, performed the ceremony, in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends.

Miss Laura Bethards played the Wedding March.

Mr. and Mrs. Taylor were the recipients of expensive and useful presents. They left on the mid-night train from Salisbury to spend a few days in Philadelphia and other places, after which they will return to the home of her parents for the present.

The Advance joins their many friends in wishing them health and happiness.

Smack--McCabe.

The Presbyterian Manse was the scene of a very pretty wedding Saturday evening, Nov. 18th, when John Lester Smack, son of Mrs. Georgiana Smack, and Della Mae McCabe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joshua McCabe, both of Berlin, were united in marriage by Rev. J. Russell Verbycke.

The bride was becomingly attired in a charming dress of white duchess satin.

She was accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Washington McCabe, and Miss Virgie McCabe, a younger sister of the bride. Others who witnessed the ceremony, were Mrs. Sally Smack and daughter, Miss Mabel, and Mrs. Elsie Whittington.

The happy couple will reside near Berlin.

Their host of friends join in wishing them a long and happy married life.

Carey--Hastings.

Minnie G. Hastings, of Berlin, was united in marriage to William L. Carey, of Bishopville, Md., on Thursday evening, Nov. 23rd, at the Presbyterian Manse by the Rev. J. Russell Verbycke. The wedding was a quiet one.

A Timely Suggestion.

This is the season of the year when the prudent and careful housewife replenishes her supply of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is almost certain to be needed before the winter is over and results are much more prompt and satisfactory when it is kept at hand and given as soon as the first indication of a cold appears and before it has become settled in the system. There is no danger in giving it to children as it contains no opium or other harmful drug.

Buy the Advance instead of borrowing it, and you will feel more respectable.

George A. Harrison.

More Than He Bargained For

(Copyright, 1922, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"I don't care to marry a coward!" The words flashed forth from the white lips of an imperious girl who crouched in the stern of the catboat and held out a single-stoned ring to the man who faced her astounded.

"But, Millicent, I'm not afraid for myself. Can't you understand? It's of you I'm thinking." Wade Norris had never seen his fiancée in a temper before, and the experience was unpleasantly disconcerting and disillusioning. Then he, too, set his lips. "We are going back, nevertheless."

"Am I to understand that if I weren't here you would keep on?" demanded the girl.

Wade threw a glance at the darkening sky above, then out toward the horizon, where a sharply defined black line speckled with white indicated advancing wind. "No, I hardly think I would," he murmured frankly.

"There, you see?" Her tone was cruelly triumphant. Did she really suppose that caution was synonymous with cowardice? Millicent herself was an up-to-date little daredevil, but surely that didn't justify his taking her into undoubted danger, and for so unimportant an affair as a dance at Kimball Point.

Some moments later, Wade assisted a silent girl to the dock and, himself silent, watched her run up the path to the Shermans' summer home. Then, angrily, he hauled up the sail again. There was nothing left to do but to show her how little afraid he personally was. Straight into the white squall he careened and Millicent, turning at the Mercy of the Waves, ing, perhaps reluctantly, on the top step, saw the Waterbird scudding seaward at an ominous pitch.

Wade was too much occupied in managing his small craft to worry very much about what the outcome of the wild ride would be. Long ago he had passed the position where he would naturally have tucked for Kimball's Point and nothing now intervened between him and the open sea. Momentarily expecting the cessation of what, at worst, he had supposed to be a summer squall, he lifted his eyes at last to the west, only to be dumfounded at the solidarity of the cloudbank there. Something chill and ominous about the wind at the same moment forced itself upon his attention.

This was more than he had bargained for. He must swing about at the earliest possible moment. But before that moment came, catastrophe had overtaken him. A sudden, violent gust, a shiver of the entire boat, and the mainmast snapped in two, dragging the sail in the water like the wing of a wounded bird.

Wade all his life afterward remembered that night of agony, tossing at the mercy of the waves, drenched with spray, half frozen. Morning brought cessation of the storm but no hope, for the sun rose upon a shoreless waste of water. Nevertheless, Wade pluckily set to work with the sculling oar, partly to get some warmth into him, partly in a desperate effort to raise land or a lighthouse.

Well on toward noon, when Wade was feeling the effects of his long fast and unusual exertions, he caught a glimpse far away of what was undoubtedly a boat. Wade wondered if, after all, Millicent had seen his re-

less departure and if, when he failed to appear again, she would have started out a rescue party. Very likely the boat he had sighted was looking for him.

Anxiously he waited, though at one time his crew had not observed his frenzied signaling. Then, suddenly, it swerved directly toward him.

Meanwhile, Millicent had spent a wakeful night, made restless by the storm without as well as the reproaches of her own heart. To be sure, she expected Wade had many hours before landed safely at Kimball's Point and a little sheepishly she hoped he would come around in the morning and apologize for scaring her half to death.

But morning brought no Wade. Toward night Millicent usually called his hotel, only to learn that he had not come in and that the Waterbird had not been docked that night. Then it was that racing boats sped in his direction, only to report absolute failure. Days later word came in of a wrecked catboat found drifting twenty miles off shore, but by that time Millicent had given up hope and mourned Wade as driven to his death by her perversity.

As a matter of fact, Wade had taken on the adventure of his life. The boat so opportunely met was one of those daring craft which, now and again, in the spirit of Joshua Slocum and his Spray, set out to cross the ocean. Only a forty-footer, she was stanch, adequately equipped, seaworthy.

This man they had come upon was a problem. With no wireless, his rescue could not be signalled. On the other hand, to make a harbor would be to lose valuable time.

"Tell you what we'll do," said the skipper. "We're short of men anyway, and we'll sign you on, Norris, if you're willing."

And Wade, reflecting that the only person for whom he held the slightest interest in the world had just returned his ring and called him a coward, replied that to do so would be a great pleasure.

Weeks later Millicent, a thinner, more chastened Millicent than the imperious girl of old, listlessly unfolded the morning paper. Suddenly she gasped and her face slowly whitened. The shock of it was tremendous.

Forty-footer arrives at Cowes with crew of six, among them Wade Norris, thought to be drowned.

Wade was alive! Wade was alive! At first the realization of that miraculous fact was enough for Mil-

cent. Then, little by little, the somber thought claimed her attention that she had little right to rejoice. Suddenly to find that she had not been, in effect, his murderer, did not lessen her responsibility.

An hour later, Millicent received a cable.

"Sail for home today. Owe you most wonderful experience of my life. Love, Wade."

Millicent let the cable fall into her lap and her eyes were stary. Fate was being better to her than she deserved.

An incident in connection with the visit of Lord Rosebery, the former British premier, to Oxford some years ago to unveil Lord Salisbury's bust is told by the Rt. Hon. Sir David Hunter Blair in his "New Medley of Memories." He says: "It had been reported to his Oxford hosts a story, told me by the principal of a Scottish university, of how Lord Rosebery, engaged to speak at a great liberal meeting in a northern city, found himself previously dining with a fanatically teetotal provost, who provided for his guests no other liquid refreshment than orangeade in large glass jugs. As this depressing beverage circulated, the liberal leader's spirits fell almost to zero; and it was by the advice of my friend the principal that, between the dinner and the meeting, he drove ventrally to an hotel, and quaffed a pint of dry champagne before mounting the platform and making a speech of very eloquence, which the good provost attributed entirely to the orangeade. The lady, unknown to me, passed on the delectable story to one of the Union committee, who took it very seriously; the result being that when Lord Rosebery reached the committee room, just before the inauguration ceremony, a grave young man whispered to him confidentially: 'There are tea and coffee here; but I have got your pint of champagne behind that screen; will you come and have it now?' 'Well, do you know?' said the great man, with his usual tact, 'I think for once in a way I will have a cup of coffee.'"

Birds Deserve Better Treatment.

Birds are actually the most helpful animal friend which man has, destroying the insect and rodent pests which devour his crops, and acting as scavengers to prevent the dangerous increase of carrion or filth. Yet most of them look upon man as an enemy and a stranger, and certainly not without cause, for have not birds watched the development of mammals, watched them spread throughout the earth, watched entire species rise, rule and perish, watch the multitudes of changes of a million years? Mammals are strangers, newcomers upon the face of the earth, often deadly enemies of the birds which fear them because of these things.

Many species of birds are to be found within 50 miles of New York. At the Museum of Natural History there is a special collection of such birds, and they are more numerous and diversified than is generally supposed.

Screech owls, one of the smallest and commonest of owls of eastern North America, are among them. The owl's peculiar quivering notes may often be heard on moonlight nights in the country and where there are trees in town. It nests in hollow trees, either in the orchard or forest, and lays four to six white eggs, usually in April in the latitude of New York; it also nests freely in bird boxes. The present species is remarkable for being dichromatic, presenting two phases of plumage—the one gray, the other red, irrespective of sex, age or season.

Shrewd Mining Promoter Knew Just How Long Women Would Keep Secret He Imparted.

The psychology of selling was probably never applied better than in the disposal of the Weissmann Mining company during the copper boom of 1906 and 1907. Mr. Weissmann, who owned all the stock, gave a lawn party in the western city where he lived at the time. To this affair he invited all the men in the town who had any money worth his while, as well as their wives.

Taking aside the ladies one at a time, he confided to them over a glass of lemonade the following:

"I would like to see you make a little pin money without any risk, if I could trust you not to betray my confidence by talking your husband into my plans. I don't mind you buying 100 shares of Weissmann Mining stock, on which you will make 1,000 per cent, but if you should divulge this to your husband he might buy several thousand shares and interfere with my plans in the market."

Of course, every lady gave her sacred promise, and broke it before she went to bed.

Slipping in Saskatoon.

Recently in Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, there was a home-brew contest for women only.

And all of these women were married women.

There is a law in Saskatchewan which permits the making of home brew only, and the women are given licenses to allow them to indulge in this industry. There is keen competition among the ladies.

What of the women who are not married? Would it not be worth the time of any ambitious and thirsty young man to seek these out so they could be married ladies and home-brew makers?

Doubtless it would—but the only unmarried ladies the tourist could find were in short skirts because of youth and not fashion!—Exchange.

Make Life Hard to Bear For Many Berlin Women.

Too many women mistake their pains and aches for troubles peculiar to the sex. More often disordered kidneys are causing the aching back, dizzy spells, headache and irregular urination. Kidney weakness becomes dangerous if neglected. Use a time-tried kidney remedy—Doan's Kidney Pills. Hosts of people testify to their merit. Read a Berlin case:

Mrs. J. Edward Brittingham, Washington St., says: "I recommend Doan's Kidney Pills at every opportunity. I had kidney complaint and my back ached a great deal. I often had to neglect my work. Headaches were frequent and my kidneys didn't act right. Rheumatic pains settled in my joints and for several days I couldn't take a step and suffered awfully. I knew Doan's Kidney Pills had helped others so I tried them. They were just what I needed and soon the rheumatic pains left, my back was free from pain and my kidneys were in good order."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Brittingham had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

STATE NEWS BRIEFLY TOLD

The Latest Gleanings From All Over the State

THINGS SEEN AND HEARD

Cumberland.—George Coffinberger, Marlinburg, a Baltimore and Ohio
laborer, was struck by Pennsylvania Railroad engine No. 983 at Cumberland, receiving injuries from which he died
a few minutes later.

Rockville.—In a suit against Dr.
Jessie S. Trumppour of Linden, this county, for $5,000 damages for the loss of a dog, Edward H. Childs, also of Linden, was given judgment for $50 by a jury in the Circuit Court
last night.

Cumberland.—More than $16,000
has been realized as a result of the Salvation Army Home Service Appeal for $15,247. It was announced at the final meeting of the officers and workers of the campaign teams
at the Fort Cumberland Hotel. The workers have about 1000 calls yet to make.

Hagerstown.—Because he refused to fight a forest fire after having been summoned by Forest Warden
A. C. McAllister, Clearspring, Hager-Harr, prominent Big Pool farmer, was arrested. The testimony of Harr's physician, Dr. J. P. Perry, revealed that he suffered from eczema
and bronchial trouble, which rendered him physically unfit to fight
fires, and Justice Mason, of Hancock, freed him of the charge.

Bethesda.—Representative Frederick N. Zihlman of the Sixth district delivered an address here in connection with the laying of the cornerstone of the new temple of Bethesda Lodge No. 204, A. F. & A. M. Presentation of the Washington trowel was made by Charles E. Callahan, Deputy Grand Master of Virginia, at the conclusion of which Percy Clift,
secretary of the lodge, presented Washington Lodge, A. F. & A. M., of Alexandria, Va., spoke. Benediction was pronounced by the Rev. James Kirkpatrick, A. L. Flint and C. H.
Becker assisted John R. Coyo in the arrangements.

Cumberland.—The George's Creek Coal Company, Inc., filed a suit in the Circuit Court of Allegany County
for an injunction to restrain Francis J. Drum, president District No. 6,
United Mine Workers of America,
Midland and Frostburg locals of the United Mine Workers, and 74 individuals of the company, or persons employed by the company, or persons who wish to take employment. The papers were sent to Chief Judge A.
Hunter Boyd, who is at Annapolis,
for an order. A number of men signed with the George's Creek Coal Company to resume work several weeks ago, but it is said that less than half actually took employment,
due to intimidation.

Princess Anne.—Jake Downes, for whom a bench warrant was issued at the September term of the Circuit Court for Somerset county, is believed to have adopted a Santa Claus method to make his escape from the jail at Princess Anne, by crawling through the chimney to the roof of the jail, and then descending by the water
spout to the ground. Deputy Sheriff Hyden says he knows of no other way in which Downes could have escaped, as the doors and windows were closed and barred. Downes was in the jail during the afternoon, but when his supper was carried to him, at 6 o'clock, he was missing. He is a small man, weighing only about 110 pounds. Downes is from Salisbury and at the September term of court testified in behalf of the defendant in a bastardy case. At the conclusion of his testimony several witnesses testified that he had agreed to accept a sum of money from the defendant to testify as he did. Downes was arrested upon a bench warrant on a charge of perjury and has since been lodged in jail here.

Baltimore.—At the annual meeting of the Eastern Shore Society, held at the Hotel Reunert, officers for the ensuing year were elected. George L. Radcliffe of the Dorchester Chapter was chosen president, succeeding John H. K. Shannahan, and Walter
R. Gale was re-elected secretary.
Treasurer of the association, Philip Lee Goldsborough again was chosen honorary member of the board of governors. Reports as to the present membership of the society, read by Mr. Gale, showed a marked increase over former years. There now are 600 members. Vice-presidents of the association, nine in number, one representing each county, are as follows:
J. Herman Ireland, Kent; William
E. Jones, Somerset; George W. Dexter, Talbot; Benjamin W. Woolford,
Dr. Arthur G. Barrett, Cecil; R. Scott
Rose, Queen Anne's; Frank D. Mills, Worcester; George E. Salisbury,
Caroline, and L. Wesley Cooper, Wicomico. An entertaining program was furnished by Lafayette Temple,
the humorist. A buffet supper confounded the meeting.

New State Rule Reviewed By Governor.

Annapolis.—What reorganization of the State government will mean to Maryland is to be set forth in detail by Governor Ritchie at the annual session of the Governors' Conference, to be held at the Greenbrier Hotel, White Sulphur Springs, Va., December 14, 15 and 16.
To this end he has made additional studies of the Reorganization, and which becomes effective January 1,
and arranged a summary showing just what changes will be made in the State's administrative offices.

The summary, in part, is as follows:
Department of Finance.—This department will be headed by the Comptroller and the Treasurer. The State Auditor, the Bank Commissioner, the Insurance Commissioner, the State Tax Commission and the State Purchasing Agent are all assigned to this department, although these officials will continue to be appointed by the Governor.

The more important administrative changes are as follows:
State Auditor's Department.—The duties of the State Auditor, which at present cover the accounts of all State departments, State-owned and State-aided institutions, and all Clerks of Court, Registrars of Wills, Sheriffs, State's Attorneys and Collectors of State Taxes, are broadened so as to cover all county treasurers, collectors,
fee officers and County Commissioners
so far as State taxes and receipts are concerned.

This department has very much more work than its present staff can do, so that the audits are not frequent enough. To obviate this an annual appropriation is made for auditing an assistant of nearly $20,000 instead of a little over $6,000 as at present.

Payment of Bills.—All bills for merchandise, materials and supplies purchased by any of the departments or institutions of the State are required to be promptly forwarded to the Comptroller for audit and review and if found correct they are to be paid by the Treasurer upon warrant of the Comptroller.

The Comptroller, however, is given the power to exempt from this requirement such purchases as he may, from time to time, determine it is better for the department or institution to pay itself, and to facilitate payments of this character the Comptroller is authorized to advance a working cash balance to each department or institution out of its appropriation.

Monthly Accounting for Fees.—Every department, institution or other governmental agency is required to account monthly to the Comptroller and pay to the Treasurer all fees and revenues received by it, and the Comptroller credits the same to the agency so accounting; and these funds can be paid out only on warrant in accordance with law.

In order to provide for cases in which such monthly accounting may not be available, the Comptroller is authorized with the Governor's approval, to grant exemptions.

Department of Welfare.—This department will be headed by the Board of Welfare, consisting of the Director of Welfare, with a salary of $4,000,
and four unpaid members, at least one of whom shall be a woman. This board will take over the duties of the State Board of Prison Control, which will be abolished, and thus the new board will manage the Maryland Penitentiary and the House of Correction.

In addition to this, the five institutions for the insane and feeble-minded are placed in this department and are required to report to the Director of Welfare quarterly. These institutions will continue to be managed by their respective boards of management and trustees exactly as at present.

The Lunacy Commission and its secretary are abolished, and in their place there will be a Board of Mental Hygiene, placed in this department, consisting of the Commissioner of Mental Hygiene and six unpaid members, four of whom must be physicians, and at least one of whom must be a woman. The Commissioner is required to have had at least five years experience in the treatment of mental diseases.

Examining and Licensing Board.—
There are 19 of these at present. Each will be required to submit annually to the Board of Public Works an estimate of its fees and expenses for the ensuing year, and only such expenses
can be incurred as the board approves.
This will provide supervision over the expenditures made by these boards,
which is now lacking, as the boards
at present can use their fees practically as they please.

Roads Ready For Winter.
State Roads Chairman John N.
Mackall and Assistant Chief Engineer
H. D. Williams returned from an inspection of the State roads on the Eastern Shore. Mr. Mackall reported that they were never in better condition to stand cold weather.

The Commission has shut down on all construction work for the winter, with the exception of a few jobs where there are only short stretches to complete.

The last link in the York road, connecting Maryland with the Pennsylvania State roads system, will be opened for travel within a few days.

City Densely Populated.
Baltimore is the most densely populated city in the world.

POULTRY

Improvement Made in Flock by Getting Rid of All Hens Except Most Prolific Layers.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
That culling the poultry flock to get rid of all these birds except the vigorous, prolific layers results in noticeable improvement in the progeny is shown by recent investigations at the United States experiment farm, Beltsville.

Examining a Hen to Find if She is Laying—Measuring Distance Between Pelvic Bones.

At the Maryland State Experiment Farm
at Beltsville, Md., the late mothers selected from a flock of 100 Rhode Island Reds
in the fall of 1920 had seven more eggs per bird during their second year than the original stock as a whole. They were used as breeders for the following spring, and the first five pullets to commence laying in the fall of 1921 were found to be the offspring of these late-laying hens. These pullets in a period of seven months had already averaged about two more eggs per bird more than the original stock.

But it is not alone in number of eggs that the late-laying progeny excel, but also in the value of the product, as the distribution was more even, a much larger percentage of the eggs being laid during the winter months. In the last seven months the daughters of the late-laying mothers not only averaged two more eggs per bird more than the original stock, but the value of their product was also greater, as the eggs were laid more during the winter months. It is expected that the progeny will increase during the next few months.

FEEDING METHODS FOR EGGS

Methods Adopted by California Community Result in Better Health of Laying Hens.

A mortality of less than 10 per cent for the year among hens entered in the egg-laying contest of Sonoma county, California, last year is reported to the United States Department of Agriculture by local extension workers,
who worked out the feeding formula
used in the contest. The health record of the hens entered and their laying average of 170 eggs per hen for the 364 days have led many poultrymen to adopt the management and feeding methods used in the contest.
It is estimated that 50 per cent of the poultrymen of the county have changed the method of feeding during the last five years, due to extension work influence.

TRADE-MARK ON FRESH EGGS

New Jersey Organization Making Use of Small Sticker on Produce Sold by Members.

A small trade-mark sticker is now put on all eggs sold by members of the North Haledon Leghorn Club in Passaic county, N. J. This organization was formed as a result of a meeting of poultrymen of the community to discuss the development of the poultry industry in that section. Each member pays two cents per bird owned, 8,000 birds being pledged at the first meeting of the club. All members use the trade-mark and guarantee eggs sold under it.

POULTRY NOTES

Water is almost as important as feed
in egg production.

A large red comb indicates health
and egg production.

Males in pens reduce the total egg yield for the year.

Early maturing pullets usually make good egg producers.

Medium weight hens of any variety
are usually most profitable.

Ninety eggs pay cost. The 150 eggs hen is worth six 100-egg hens.

Half blue (bantam) and half lard
or tallow makes a good louse killer.

The price of feed does not always disclose its real value in making eggs.

OLD GOODIES.

Sally Lunn was a famous poultry
cook in England and she was the one who originated the hot bread of that name. This was a favorite breakfast bread of George Washington.

Take one quart
of flour, four eggs, one-half cup of melted butter or shortening, one-half teaspoon of salt, and one-fourth of a cup of water, one teaspoonful of sugar, and two tablespoonsful of suet.
Beat the eggs very light, add one cupful of milk, one cupful of warm water,
the sugar, yeast and melted butter.
Stir well and beat in the flour. When perfectly smooth let rise in a well buttered bowl. When well risen beat down, let rise again, beat down, then put into the greased muffin pans in which they are to bake. When very light bake in a moderately hot oven.
Serve hot, breaking them open to butter them.

Sweet Potato Pudding.—Parboil,
peel, and when cold grate enough
sweet potatoes to weigh a pound.
Cream one-half cupful of butter with three-fourths of a cupful of sugar, add
the beaten yolks of four eggs, a teaspoonful each of cinnamon and nutmeg, the rind and juice of an orange,
three tablespoonsful of any fruit juice,
fold in the whites of two eggs well beaten. Mix well, put into a buttered baking dish and bake about twenty minutes. Cover with a meringue prepared with the remaining egg whites.
Serve hot.

Lee Sponge Cake.—Prepare a sponge cake and bake in layers. For the filling beat until stiff two egg whites,
add one pound of pulverized sugar,
the grated rind and juice of an orange and the juice of half a lemon. Spread the mixture on the layers before they are cold.

Hill Cookies.—Take four eggs, one pound of sugar, one-half pound of butter, one-half pound of lard, one teaspoonful of vanilla, and one of lemon
oil. Cream the sugar and butter, add the flour and mix to a soft dough. Roll very thin and bake in a quick oven.

VICTIM OF PRACTICAL JOKE

Rather Mean Trick, Credited to Mem-

on Business Man.

They are telling a story around the Racquet club of a practical joke played upon an out-of-town visitor
who is most penitential in the manner in which he draws all the contracts
for the company of which he is president. It appears that a short time ago he came to Washington prepared to close a deal involving a small amount of money. When the papers were finally typed he scanned them carefully, and when about to affix his signature he was asked by one of the other parties of the deal to use his fountain pen, as he wanted to keep it as a souvenir of the occasion. Rather appreciating the compliment, he did so, and that night entrained for Boston. A day or two after his arrival home he had occasion to look up the contract, and found, to his dismay, that there were no signatures to the agreement. His Washington friends had simply made him use a fountain pen that was filled with disappearing ink. When the hoax was explained to him by wire he sent back
the following message: "Returning with my own ink. The dinner is on me."—Washington Star.

Germs are not little animals. They are tiny plants, the smallest living things known. They are sometimes called bacteria or microbes. You might have some idea of the size of a germ if you could take a grain of sand and split it into a million pieces. Of course, some germs are larger than others, but the largest cannot be seen without the aid of a powerful microscope.

Ages of Common Trees.
The heart of the common oak, it is said, begins to rot at the age of 300 years, so even when an oak is undisturbed it rarely lives much beyond 500 years. A larch may live 275 years, a silver fir 425, and a pine over 500 years. The yew has a remarkable power of resisting time's ravages, and may survive for 1,500 years or more.

Mustered Out at 70.
Three score years and ten! It is the scriptural statute of limitations. After that you owe no active duties; for you the strenuous life is over. You are a time-expired man, to use Kipling's military phrase. You have served your term, well or less well,
and you are mustered out.—Mark Twain on his 70th birthday.

What do you look for?

When you buy shoes, what is uppermost in your mind, style or comfort? You probably suppose that most people think of style
—the looks of a shoe.

Nearly everybody wants good-looking shoes, that's true, but most people are looking for comfortable shoes.

Among women, the so-called fashion shoes are bought by only fifteen per cent. Eighty-five women out of one hundred think of comfort first.

For good style and solid comfort combined, there is no shoe better than Walk-Over. The Walk-Over trade mark is your guarantee of good quality.

Member of Harrison's Nurseries Firm Dies.

George A. Harrison, of Berlin,
Worcester County, Maryland, member of the firm of Harrison's Nurseries, died at five o'clock p. m. Saturday, November 18th, at the Presbyterian Hospital, Philadelphia, Pa.
The interment took place at Berlin.

He was born at Roxana, Del., December 9, 1870, and was the second son of the late Joseph G. Harrison, the founder of Harrison's Nurseries.

Mr. Harrison has for more than thirty-five years been associated with his brother, Senator Orlando Harrison, in the conduct of the business of Harrison's Nurseries.

The business of Harrison's Nurseries will be continued along the same lines under the able supervision of Senator Orlando Harrison and his sons, who have been active in the management for the past several years.

Enterprise Started in New York to Teach Art of Elocution to Preachers.

Angersoll used to say that on the stage they pretend to be natural, and
in the pulpit it is natural to pretend.
It was a wicked saying when printed
without the winning smile; but what
would he have said had he heard of a
theater school organized to teach
preachers, not how to act, but how to
use their voices to the best advantage?
Such an enterprise is now afoot in
New York city, conducted by Evelyn
Hall, an actress, under Theater school
auspices—which proves that the melancholy Preacher of Jerusalem was
wrong when he said there is nothing
new under the sun. Nor is it a thing
to be laughed at. Many a good sermon is spoiled because the preacher
does not know how to deliver it. Surely, if the preacher has the best of
good news to tell, he ought to use
every aid of art to tell it. Joseph
Parker learned much from his friend,
Sir Henry Irving, and Beecher used
to study Edwin Booth—asking him to repeat the Lord's Prayer, that he
might hear it in a manner worthy of
its depth and beauty. As between an untrained voice and an artificial elocution there is little to choose; but
without going to either extreme there
is an art of using the voice which
brings out its natural quality and
power, and it should be employed in
the service of the Gospel.—Christian Century.

The Public's Interest In Telephone Earnings

The public is directly interested in the quality of service furnished by this Company and what it pays for such service.

It follows then that the public is concerned in the Company's earnings, because if the earnings are inadequate, the service cannot be maintained at a high standard. On the other hand, if earnings are excessive, the public is entitled to lower rates.

The aim of this Company has always been to charge rates that will yield a fair but not excessive return on the investment. This is necessary to attract the new capital required to keep step with the growth and progress of the community.

When we were forced finally to seek relief through increased rates, we did not ask the Public Service Commission to approve rates high enough to yield a fair return. We hoped that the future would bring reductions in costs and that increased efficiency would be obtained. This, together with moderate increases in rates, we hoped would result within a reasonable time in providing sufficient revenues to

The Commission, in authorizing our rate increases, stated that the new rates would yield a return of about 5.3% on the value of our property.

During the two years that have passed since these rates were established, we have directed every energy toward furnishing the best possible service and toward the effecting of economies so that our investors might be afforded the return to which they are entitled.

In the first nine months of this year, our earnings have been at the rate of 5.7% a year on our investment in Maryland.

The return is still inadequate, being less than the legal interest rate. But we have made progress and this gives us confidence that with our present rates we can, by constantly increasing efficiency and persistent economy, earn a return sufficient to attract the new capital necessary to permit us to expand our system.

Glacier "Got a Move."

Chased by a glacier which suddenly came to activity after having been inactive for years, a trio of Minnesota geological student climbers hurriedly abandoned camp. The students went to Glacier National park to study Heaven's Peak glacier, pitching their camp 50 feet from the end of the ice wall. They were awakened by a dull rumbling and with daylight they discovered a widening crack some 200 feet back on the glacier and noted that the wall of ice was advancing. They hurriedly moved and half an hour later the ice flow had covered their camp site. The ice moved about 200 feet down the valley, advancing about one foot a minute.

Island Now Sheep Pasture.

The island of Cuttyhunk, in Buzzards Bay, is to be turned into a sheep pasture. The head of the American Woolen Company is now the owner of the greater part of Cuttyhunk, and this is a new venture of his in turning the island pastures over to sheep. Neighboring islands have long been used for sheep pasturing, the animals running wild for the greater part of the year, with a little extra feeding during the winter.

Testing Wooden Crates.

The forest products laboratory of the forest service, United States Department of Agriculture, was recently called upon to test wooden crates that would be satisfactory for carrying army aircraft bombs. Seven types of crates were tried in the experiment and one type was evolved that would not only carry 300-pound bombs, but also 1,500-pound bombs.

A Poor Combination.

A brief commencement story is told about the governor of Maine who, while addressing the students at Bowdoin college, said, "Your spacious campus with its beautiful garbages of green," etc. Evidently he started to say "garment," then switched off onto "herbage," but the combination that resulted was hardly a happy one.—Boston Transcript.

LESSON TEXT—Luke 9:1-17.
GOLDEN TEXT—The Son of Man is
come to seek and to save that which is
lost.—Luke 9:10.

REFERENCE MATERIAL—Matt. 4:23;
9:12-13.

Girl Back to Life.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus the Great Missionary.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—
Jesus Meeting All Human Needs.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—
Jesus the Ideal Missionary.

I. The Great Missionary's Field (vv. 1-3).

He went throughout every city and village. The true missionary goes to everybody, for all need the gospel.

1. His Message (v. 1). He preached the glad tidings of the kingdom of God. The gospel message is truly a glad tidings, for the great King is offering to rebellious sinners salvation through Jesus Christ.

2. His Helpers (v. 1). The twelve apostles were with Him. The missionary should utilize the help of others.

3. Supported by Saved Women (vv. 2, 3). Out of grateful hearts certain women who had experienced the saving power of the gospel ministered unto Jesus of their substance.

II. The Great Missionary Teaching (vv. 4-21).

1. The Parable of the Sower (vv. 4-21).

(1) The sower—Jesus (see Matt. 13:27).

(2) The seed—the Word of God (v. 11).

(3) The kinds of ground (vv. 5-8).

(a) Wayside (v. 5). This foot-trodden path pictures the hard-hearted upon which no impression can be made. The seed falls upon such ground, but the plant never finds entrance, and Satan snatches it away as birds pick up the grain from the hard-beaten path. In such cases faith cannot spring up and result in salvation (v. 12).

(b) Stony ground (v. 6). This is not stones mixed with earth, but a thin layer of earth on a ledge of rock. The seed falling upon such ground springs up quickly, but the plant soon dies when exposed to the sun. This pictures the hearer who receives with joy the message of the gospel, but when persecution and trials come because of following Christ he gives up and deserts the cause (v. 13).

(c) Thorny ground (v. 7). This ground is good, but it has thorns growing in it. The seeds spring up, but the plant has no room to develop. This pictures the Christians who bear no Christian fruit because of being preoccupied with "cares, riches and pleasures" of this life (v. 14).

(d) Good ground (v. 8). The seed here sprang up and bore fruit to the full measure. This pictures the honest heart which receives the gospel message and produces a harvest of good works.

The application of this parable is found in verses 16-18.

2. Kindly with Jesus Christ (vv. 19-21).

Jesus teaches here that there is a relationship to Him which is closer than the tie of blood.

III. The Great Missionary Doing Wonders (vv. 22-30).

1. Calming the Storm (vv. 22-25).

(1) Jesus asleep (v. 23). While the disciples were sailing the ship the Master fell asleep. (2) The frightened disciples (vv. 23, 24). The disciples were filled with water, the disciples awoke Jesus with their cry of peril. (3) Jesus rebuked the wind and water (v. 24). At His word there was a great calm. (4) Jesus rebuked the disciples (v. 25). He did not rebuke them for waking Him, but for their lack of faith.

2. Casting Out Demons (vv. 26-30).

Demon-possession was in that day, and is today, an awful reality. (1) Jesus met by the demoniac (vv. 26-29). (2) Jesus' question (v. 30). The purpose of this question doubtless was to bring the real man to consciousness—to enable him to distinguish between the demon and himself. (3) The demon's request (vv. 31, 32). They asked permission to enter into a herd of swine. It seems that the demons have a dislike for disembodiment. The devil cannot act without Divine permission. (4) The request granted (v. 32, 33). Just why this was done we do not know. Since Jesus did it we must believe that it was wise. (5) The effect upon the people (vv. 34-37). (a) The keepers of the swine went and made it known in the city and country. (b) The people made investigation. They saw the man clothed and in his right mind, and heard the testimony of those who had seen what was done. (c) Besought Jesus to depart from them. (6) Request of the man whom He healed (vv. 38, 39). He desired to be with Jesus. This was natural and right, but his responsibility was to go home and show them what great things God had done for him.

Pure Religion.

Pure religion is unadorned before God and the Father is this, to visit the widow and the fatherless in their affliction, and to keep himself unstained from the world.—James 1:27.

Aiding the Weak.

We then that are strong ought to bear the infirmities of the weak, and not to please ourselves.—Romans 15:1.

The Wise Man.

Safe Rule to Observe.

It is a good and safe rule to sojourn in every place as if you meant to spend your life there, never omitting an opportunity of doing a kindness, or speaking a true word, or making a friend.—John Ruskin.

It Should Be Hint Enough.

Simplicity of Christian Faith

By REV. JOHN C. PAGE

Bible Institute, Chicago.

TEXT—But I fear lest by any means, as the serpent beguiled Eve through his subtlety, so your minds should be corrupted from the simplicity that is in Christ.—II Cor. 11:3.

In the heart of the great apostle there was a certain and well defined idea which finds expression in this text. He was not afraid that his converts would be drawn back into worldliness, superstition, or idolatry, nor did he fear lest under persecution they might deny the name of Christ.

Knowing that they were subject to many temptations he feared

most of all that which is always the grave possibility in Christian experience, the subtlety of Satan in corrupting the minds of Christian believers from the simplicity that is in Christ.

The apostle knew that through "science, falsely so-called," or "philosophy and vain deceit," the mind of the Christian might be corrupted and the joy of salvation, and the power for testimony be lost.

This fear was caused by the presence of those to whom the apostle refers in the 11th verse of this chapter, as "false prophets; deceitful workers, transforming themselves into the apostles of Christ, and no marvel, for Satan himself is transformed into an angel of light." Therefore it is no great thing if his ministers also be transformed as the ministers of righteousness.

There was in Paul's day and there is in our day, righteousness proclaimed, which is not "the righteousness of God," but a poor, cheap, inefficient substitute. The first peril of the Christian lies in the possibility of his mind being corrupted from the simplicity that is in Christ in reference to this matter of righteousness. God provides a righteousness for the Christian believer in His Son, who is made unto us righteousness. This righteousness alone is valid before God. It was this that the apostle had in mind when he said, "Not having mine own righteousness, but that which is of the faith of Christ, the righteousness which is of God by faith." Concerning this same matter John Bunyan wrote: "The believer in Christ is now, by grace, shrouded under a complete covering. The sinners' boast is a crucified Savior. Sin can find no fault nor diminution therein." This righteousness in its scope and operation may be regarded as the sum total of all that God commands, requires, approves, and rewards. No wonder, then, that the apostle Paul, who was a Jew, a Pharise, a student of the law, and a zealous persecutor of the church, should have been so deeply impressed with the simplicity of the Christian faith and its sufficiency to save to the uttermost all who believe, is the result of our Lord's work at Calvary. The sinners' boast is a crucified Savior. Every truly saved sinner knows this. Christ crucified is to the believer the wisdom and power of God. It is the great and outstanding peculiarity of Christianity. It is the one great solution of all problems, for every problem in the world is traceable in some way or other to the problem of sin, the sin of the individual, hence, that this boast, this glorying in the Cross is not the dominant note in the religion of today, and herein lies the danger of the believer's mind being led astray. From much that is written and said one would think that it made little difference whether Christ was crucified or not. Some speak lightly and even slightly of individual salvation through faith in a crucified Savior. Others seem to think that humanity can best be handled in bulk. In referring to the salvation of one's own soul, a recent writer, speaking of Christ, says: "In his vision of the Kingdom of God the petty, selfish conception of individual salvation dwindles into comparative insignificance. He that seeks thus to save his soul here or hereafter shall lose it." Such a statement is absurd in the light of Christ's own words. For in His estimate of a single soul He placed its value over against the worth of the whole world and said: "What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul? Any scheme or system that overlooks the individual salvation must fail. Against other has well said: 'Our own souls must be saved, not in order to have a good time in the next world, but because it's the task that first of all confronts us and because we help our neighbors by what we are much more than by what we do.'

But Strength Is Always Given.

Acts With Irresistible Power.

No recompose has ever been made with sufficient strength to resist the bursting power of frozen water.

Personalities Barred.

It Is Not Automatic.

However much we may wish that we had, however much we may act as though we had—we have not a young people's society that is automatic. It will not run itself. I am wondering if a very positive conviction of the above fact would not help a good many of us materially.

Why, even your self-filling fountain pen does not walk from your fingers, go to the inkwell, drink from the supply there and return to your fingers ready for action. Really, if it is a self-filling pen, ought it not to fill itself when empty without any effort on your part? It will not do it. You must take it to the ink, immerse the pen, press the button, release it, then the ink flows into the pen.

Have we not expected sometimes that if we purchased a pledge and having it on the wall, drew up a constitution, secured from each a signed pledge card, elected our officers, and explicated our committees, the organization would run itself? It will never do it. You have the machinery, but you haven't the power.

I believe there are committee chairmen who have felt that no meetings were necessary, no prayer, study and work were needed for the very life of the committee. Somehow, the conclusion was arrived at that the committee would run itself—sad mistake.

Not long ago I was surprised, and I am not easily surprised, either, by a society president, who, when he had his Executive Committee together, opened the business by asking, "What business have we before us this evening?" He evidently thought that when the members got together the business would be automatically produced. It wasn't. Some business was gradually worked up, but the meeting was a pretty poor one.

Have not leaders too often believed that all that was necessary for a Sunday-evening prayer meeting was a goodly attendance, and an individual appointed as leader, at the table? The result has often shown that the meeting does not run itself, if it is to run smoothly and accomplish something worth while.

Am I making a law who think that to make the Efficiency Campaign a success, all you need to do is to purchase the test leaflets, distribute them among the members, buy an Efficiency Campaign chart and hang it on the wall, and then watch the thermometer on the chart go up. It won't go, that is all—unless you do more than just get your machinery together. You must have power.

I think I have emphasized my single point in enough different ways to make it plain.

Organization is a wonderful thing, our committee work and the Efficiency Campaign are very definite, but we are not working with an organization that is automatic. We must put life into it; that means we must put ourselves into it, our best selves. We must study methods, we must plan carefully, pray without ceasing and work indefatigably. Therein is the secret of the success of well-organized societies. The organization must be given life through action upon the part of those who make up the organization.

Surely our organization is not automatic.—Forward.

How Not to Take Cold.

Some persons are subject to frequent colds, while others seldom, if ever, have a cold. You will find that the latter take good care of themselves. They take a shower or cold sponge bath every day in a warm room, avoid over heated rooms, sleep with a window open or partly open, avoid excesses, over eating, becoming over heated and then chilled and getting the feet wet. Then, when they feel the first indication of a cold, they take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy without delay and it is soon over.

Correct opinion on points of morality is a good thing—but it is not righteousness, by any means. Righteousness has been defined as the "condition of soul which causes it to move along the lines of truth and duty." It is right will, not correct knowledge, that tells most, for one can know the right, and yet not do it.—Selected.

Good Health.

If you would enjoy good health, keep your bowels regular. No one can reasonably hope to feel well, when constipated. When needed, take Chamberlain's Tablets. They are mild and gentle.

"You, Too, Can Have Beautiful Hair"

LONG, silken, vigorous hair is the birthright of every woman. Worry, poor health, strenuous living, neglect, etc., soon cause hair to weaken and fall out. The scalp must be kept free from infection, the hair roots must be nourished. Discriminating men and women make it a practice to use

regularly to keep the scalp healthy and promote the growth of the hair. They find this splendid preparation very helpful in treating dandruff, falling hair, and other scalp diseases. Washing the hair with Rawleigh's Liquid Shampoo or Shampoo Jelly avoids the dangers of ordinary soaps which in time, weaken and destroy the hair roots. Proper use of Rawleigh's Shampoo and Hair Tonic will aid wonderfully in preserving and beautifying the hair.

Depend upon me to supply you with Rawleigh's Hair Tonic and Shampoo as well as other Toilet Preparations and Good Health Products. Hold your order for me. I expect to be around your way soon. For quick parcel post or express service, write or phone

(Copyright, 1922, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"I don't care to marry a coward!" The words blazed forth from the white lips of an imperious girl who crouched in the stern of the catboat and held out a single-stemmed ring to the man who faced her astounded.

"But, Millicent, I'm not afraid for myself. Can't you understand? It's of you I'm thinking." Wade Norris had never seen his fiancée in a temper before, and the experience was unpleasantly disconcerting and disillusioning. Then he, too, set his lips. "We are going back, nevertheless."

"Am I to understand that if I weren't here you would keep on?" demanded the girl.

Wade threw a glance at the darkening sky above, then out toward the horizon, where a sharply defined black line speckled with white indicated advancing wind. "No, I hardly think I would," he murmured faintly.

"There, you see?" Her tone was cruelly triumphant. Did she really suppose that caution was synonymous with cowardice? Millicent here it was an up-to-date little dandy, but surely that didn't justify his taking her into undoubted danger, and for an important affair as a dance at Kilmull Point.

Some moments later, Wade assisted a silent girl to the dock and, himself silent, watched her run up the path to the Sherman's summer home. Then, angrily, he hauled up the sail again. There was nothing left to do but to show her how little afraid he personally was. Straight into the white squall he careened and Millicent, turning toward the Mercy of the Waves, ing, perhaps reluctantly, on the top step, saw the Waterbird scudding seaward at an ominous pitch.

Wade was too much occupied in managing his small craft to worry very much about what the outcome of the wild ride would be. Long ago he had passed the position where he would naturally have tacked for Kilmull Point and nothing now intervened between him and the open sea. Momentarily expecting the cessation of what, at worst, he had supposed to be a summer squall, he lifted his eyes at last to the west, only to be dumbfounded at the solidarity of the cloudbank there. Something chill and ominous about the wind at the same moment forced itself upon his attention.

This was more than he had bargained for. He must swing about at the earliest possible moment. But before that moment came, catastrophe had overtaken him. A sudden, violent gust, a shiver of the entire boat, and the mainmast snapped in two, dragging the sail in the water like the wing of a wounded bird.

Wade all his life afterward remembered that night of agony, tossing at the mercy of the waves, drenched with spray, half frozen. Morning brought cessation of the storm but no hope, for the sun rose upon a shoreless waste of water. Nevertheless, Wade pluckily set to work with the sculling oar, partly to get some warmth into him, partly in a desperate effort to raise land or a lighthouse.

Well on toward noon, when Wade was feeling the effects of his long fast and unusual exertions, he caught a glimpse far away of what was undoubtedly a boat. Wade wondered if, after all, Millicent had seen his reckless departure and if, when he failed to appear again, she would have started out a rescuing party. Very likely the boat he had sighted was looking for him.

Anxiously he waited, though at one time its crew had not observed his frenzied signals. Then, suddenly, it swerved directly toward him. Meanwhile Millicent had spent a wakeful night, made restless by the storm without as well as the reproaches of her own heart. To be sure, she expected Wade had many hours before reached safety at Kilmull Point and a little sheepishly she hoped he would come around in the morning and apologize for scaring her half to death.

But morning brought no Wade. Toward night Millicent casually called his hotel, only to learn that he had not come in and that the Waterbird had not been docked that night. Then it was that rescuing boats sped in his direction, only to report absolute failure. Days later word came in of a wrecked catboat found drifting twenty miles off shore, but by that time Millicent had given up hope and mourned Wade as driven to his death by her perversity.

As a matter of fact, Wade had taken on the adventure of his life. The boat so opportunely met was one of those daring craft which, now and again, in the spirit of Joshua Slocum and his Spray, set out to cross the ocean. Only a forty-footer, she was stanch, adequately equipped, seaworthy.

This man they had come upon was a problem. With no wireless, his rescue could not be signaled. On the other hand, to make a harbor would be to lose valuable time.

"Tell you what we'll do," said the skipper. "We're short one man anyway, and we'll sign you on, Norris, if you're willing."

And Wade, reflecting that the only person for whom he held the slightest interest in the world had just returned his ring and called him a coward, replied that to do so would be a great pleasure.

Weeks later Millicent, a thinner, more chastened Millicent than the imperious girl of old, listlessly unfolded the morning paper. Suddenly she gasped and her face slowly whitened. The shock of it was tremendous.

Forty-footer arrives at Cowes with crew of six, among them Wade Norris, thought to be drowned.

Wade was alive! Wade was alive! At first the realization of that miraculous fact was enough for Millicent.

cent. Then, little by little, the somber thought claimed her attention that she had little right to rejoice. Suddenly she found that she had not been, in effect, his murderer, did not lessen her responsibility.

An hour later, Millicent received a cable. "Call for home today. Owe you most wonderful experience of my life. Love, Wade."

Millicent let the cable fall into her lap and her eyes were starry. Fate was being better to her than she deserved.

Tact of Lord Rosebery Shown in Way He Avoided Offending Well-Meaning Individual.

An incident in connection with the visit of Lord Rosebery, the former British premier, to Oxford some years ago to unveil Lord Salisbury's bust is told by the Rt. Rev. Sir David Hunter Blair in his "New Medley of Memories." He says: "I had repeated to his Oxford hostess a story told me by the principal of a Scottish university, of how Lord Rosebery, engaged to speak at a great liberal meeting in a northern city, found himself previously dining with a fanatically teetotal provost, who provided for his guests no other liquid refreshment than orangeade in large glass jugs. As this depressing beverage circulated, the liberal leader's speech fell almost to zero; and it was by the advice of my friend the principal that, between the dinner and the meeting, he drove venture a terre to an hotel, and quaffed a plate of dry champagne before mounting the platform and making a speech of fiery eloquence, which the good provost attributed entirely to the orangeade. The lady, unknown to me, passed on the delectable story to one of the Union committee, who took it very seriously; the result being that when Lord Rosebery reached the committee room, just before the inauguration ceremony, a grays young man whispered to him confidentially: 'There are tea and coffee here; but I have got your plate of champagne behind that screen; will you come and have it now?' 'Well, do you know?' said the great man, with his usual tact, 'I think for once in a way I will have a cup of coffee!'

Birds Deserve Better Treatment. Birds are actually the most helpful animal friend which man has, destroying the insects and rodents which devour his crops and acting as scavengers to prevent the dangerous increase of carrion or filth. Yet most of them look upon man as an enemy and a stranger, and certainly not without cause, for have not birds watched the development of mammals, watched them spread throughout the earth, watched entire species rise, rule and perish, watch the multitudes of changes of a million years? Mammals are strangers, newcomers upon the face of the earth, often deadly enemies of the birds which fear them because of these things.

New York Birds. Many of the birds of New York, as the Museum of Natural History there is a special collection of such birds, and they are more numerous and diversified than is generally supposed.

Screech owls, one of the smallest and commonest of owls of eastern North America, are among them. The owl's peculiar quavering notes may often be heard on moonlight nights in the country and where there are trees in town. It nests in hollow trees, either in the orchard or forest, and lays four to six white eggs, usually in April in the latitude of New York; it also nests freely in bird boxes. The present species is remarkable for being dichromatic, presenting two phases of plumage—the one gray, the other red, irrespective of sex, age or season.

WORKED OUT AS HE PLANNED

Shrewd Mining Promoter Knew Just How Long Women Would Keep Secret He Imparted.

The psychology of selling was probably never applied better than in the disposal of the Weismann Mining company during the copper boom of 1909 and 1907. Mr. Weismann, who owned all the stock, gave a lawn party in the western city where he lived at the time. To this affair he invited all the men in the town who had any money worth his while, as well as their wives.

Taking aside the ladies one at a time, he confided to them over a glass of lemonade the following:

"I would like to see you make a little pin money without any risk. If I could trust you not to betray my confidence by taking your husband into my plans, I don't mind you buying 100 shares of Weismann Mining stock, on which you will make 1,000 per cent, but if you should divulge this to your husband he might buy several thousand shares and interfere with my plans in the market."

Of course, every lady gave her sacred promise, and broke it before she went to bed.

Weismann Mining, which was listed on an eastern market, was sold to the last share before noon the next day. —Wall Street Journal.

Bipping in Saskatoon. Recently in Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, there was a home-brew contest for women only.

And all of these women were married women.

There is a law in Saskatchewan which permits the making of home brew only, and the women are given licenses to allow them to indulge in this industry. There is keen competition among the ladies.

What of the women who are not married? Would it not be worth the time of any ambitious and thirsty young man to seek these out so they could be married ladies and home-brew makers?

Doubtless it would—but the only unmarried ladies the tourist could find were in short skirts because of youth and not fashion!—Exchange.

Make Life Hard to Bear For Many Berlin Women.

Too many women mistake their pains and aches for troubles peculiar to the sex. More often disordered kidneys are causing the aching back, dizzy spells, headache and irregular urination. Kidney weakness becomes dangerous if neglected. Use a time-tried kidney remedy—Doan's Kidney Pills. Hosts of people testify to their merit. Read a Berlin case:

Mrs. J. Edward Brittingham, Washington St., says: "I recommend Doan's Kidney Pills at every opportunity. I had kidney complaint and my back ached a great deal. I often had to neglect my work. Headaches were frequent and my kidneys didn't act right. Rheumatic pains settled in my joints and for several days I couldn't take a step and suffered awfully. I knew Doan's Kidney Pills had helped others so I tried them. They were just what I needed and soon the rheumatic pains left, my back was free from pain and my kidneys were in good order."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Brittingham had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

Taylor--Benson.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Benson was the scene of a beautiful wedding Wednesday evening, the contracting parties being their daughter, Doris, and Thomas Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Taylor.

The pastor of the bride, Rev. S. N. Pilchard, performed the ceremony, in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends.

Miss Laura Bethards played the Wedding March.

Mr. and Mrs. Taylor were the recipients of expensive and useful presents. They left on the mid-night train from Salisbury to spend a few days in Philadelphia and other places, after which they will return to the home of her parents for the present.

The Advance joins their many friends in wishing them health and happiness.

Smack--McCabe.

The Presbyterian Manse was the scene of a very pretty wedding Saturday evening, Nov. 18th, when John Lester Smack, son of Mrs. Georgiana Smack, and Della Mae McCabe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joshua McCabe, both of Berlin, were united in marriage by Rev. J. Russell Verbycke.

The bride was becomingly attired in a charming dress of white duchesse satin.

She was accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Washington McCabe, and Miss Virgie McCabe, a younger sister of the bride. Others who witnessed the ceremony, were Mrs. Sally Smack and daughter, Miss Mabel, and Mrs. Elsie Whittington.

The happy couple will reside near Berlin.

Carey--Hastings.

Minnie G. Hastings, of Berlin, was united in marriage to William L. Carey, of Bishopville, Md., on Thursday evening, Nov. 23rd, at the Presbyterian Manse by the Rev. J. Russell Verbycke. The wedding was a quiet one.

A Timely Suggestion.

This is the season of the year when the prudent and careful housewife replenishes her supply of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is almost certain to be needed before the winter is over and results are much more prompt and satisfactory when it is kept at hand and given as soon as the first indication of a cold appears and before it has become settled in the system. There is no danger in giving it to children as it contains no opium or other harmful drug.

Buy the Advance instead of borrowing it, and you will feel more respectable.

George A. Harrison.

George A. Harrison, of Berlin, Worcester County, Maryland, member of the firm of Harrison's Nurseries, died at the Presbyterian Hospital, Philadelphia, Pa., at 5 o'clock P. M., Saturday, November the eighteenth. Mr. Harrison had not been at his best for many months past, but bravely contended against a complication of physical disorders until the end came. His condition was regarded as serious, but not hopeless until the past week. His passing takes from the community and from the business interest in which he was concerned, one, who was not only highly esteemed by all who knew him as a patriotic and loyal citizen, but one whose place will be hard to fill in the chosen occupation of his life. A large host of intimate friends, as well as business associates keenly mourn their loss. Mr. Harrison was born at Roxana, Delaware, December 9th, 1870, and was the second son of the late Joseph G. Harrison, the founder of the Harrison's Nurseries. Mr. Harrison has, for more than thirty-five years, been associated with his brother, Senator Orlando Harrison, in the conduct of the business of the Harrison's Nurseries, which is one of the largest, if not the largest, nursery interest in the United States. In addition to the local nursery business, Mr. Harrison was director and stockholder in several other companies. He was a man who thoroughly loved his life-work; and to him an unusual pride in the condition of his orchards above the financial considerations. It is confidently affirmed that he had supervision of more tree-growing than any other man living.

As a citizen his marked business and executive ability was recognized and honored by his fellow citizens in being their choice as a member of the City Council several times, which position he filled with characteristic earnestness and individuality; and, also, as sheriff of Worcester County, in which capacity he unflinchingly was a strict enforcer of the law and order. Generally known as "Al" Harrison, he was popular with all who knew him; especially among the many men under his employ. Prompt, efficient, energetic, yet kind and considerate to all, Mr. Harrison was a member of the Stevenson Episcopal Church of Berlin, Md., with which he was united under the pastorate of the Rev. W. Ernest Greenfield. Surviving Mr. Harrison, in the immediate family, are his wife, Mrs. Olivia H. Harrison; two daughters, Mrs. Lee W. Davis and Miss Eunice; two sons, Joseph G. and Burgrave. One brother and two sisters survive him: Senator Orlando Harrison; Mrs. W. B. S. Powell, of Ocean City, Md.; and Mrs. Achsah H. Purnell, of Berlin, Md. The funeral service was held in the church of which he was a member, Tuesday, November 21st, at 2:30 P. M., by the pastor, Rev. S. N. Pilchard, and Rev. J. Russell Verbycke.

A great profusion of beautiful flowers, and friends from far and near, (many more than could enter the church,) proved the love of the people for the deceased, and their sympathy for those left behind. The stores and school closed for the funeral. The choir sang feelingly "Abide With Me" and "Asleep in Jesus," and Miss Nellie Collins sang two beautiful solos.

A letter of sympathy was read from St. Paul's Methodist Church (colored) signed by the pastor and secretary.

The Red Men attended, and to part in the services at the grave, in Buckingham Cemetery.
